Iconic Glass Cone reopens its doors

With the £1.5million restoration of Stourbridge's Red House Glass Cone nearing completion, members of the general public are now being invited to take a sneak peek inside the building. The Dudley Council-run site has been partially closed for the last 12 months while essential but sensitive work has been carried out to protect and conserve the building for future generations. While the team is busy completing the finishing touches, it's now safe for people to go into the Cone and see the progress being made. The Cone is free to enter. Opening times are Monday to Friday from 10am to 3pm and Saturday & Sunday from 11am to 4pm.

Nick aiming to intercept scams in the Midlands

Nick Stapleton, from BBC TV series Scam

Interceptors, is heading to the region with a brand-new live show next year.

Nick will be visiting five Midlands venues with How To Beat Scammers, a show designed to help audience members learn how best to protect themselves against an increasing number of clever and complex scams. The show's stop-offs include Stafford Gatehouse on Thursday 13 February, Shrewsbury's Theatre Severn (Sunday 2 March) and Lichfield Garrick (Tuesday 4 March).

Garrick launches this year's Big Ticket Appeal

Lichfield Garrick Theatre has launched its rebranded Big Ticket Appeal, formerly known as the Christmas Ticket Appeal. The hugely popular initiative helps young people who may have experienced trauma, bereavement, illness or financial problems to attend the Garrick's pantomime 'and experience the magic of Christmas no matter what their circumstances'.

Individuals can donate to the Appeal on the theatre's website (lgtl.ink/bigticket) or in person when they attend this year's pantomime. Businesses which would like to become a sponsor should email matthew.clay@lichfieldgarrick.com. This year's Garrick panto, Jack And The Beanstalk, opens this month, on Friday the 22nd.

The hunt is on for the next Young Poet Laureate

The hunt is on for Wolverhampton's next Young Poet Laureate and Primary Poet Champion.

As part of the 2025 Wolverhampton Literature Festival, the council's library service has launched a competition for local schools to find a Young Poet Laureate aged between 12 and 18 and a Primary Poet Champion aged seven to 11.

To enter, children and young people are asked to write a poem about friendship entitled 'Life is better with friends'.

Entries should be emailed to els@wolverhampton.gov.uk

The deadline for submissions is Friday 29 November. Finalists will be invited to a live event to find the overall winner in each age category.

Classical music from across the region...

Halle Orchestra Victoria Hall, Hanley, Stoke-on-Trent, Fri 8 November

The Manchester-based Halle are admired around the world for their extensive orchestral repertoire. This latest Victoria Hall appearance sees Olari Elts (pictured) picking up the baton to conduct a concert featuring compositions by Beethoven (Egmont Overture), Mendelssohn (Violin Concerto) and Tchaikovsky (Symphony No6; Pathétique). The soloist for the evening is acclaimed Dutch violinist Rosanne Philippens.

London Concertante

Lichfield Cathedral, Sun 10 November

While it's a given that they take the business of musicmaking extremely seriously, there's certainly nothing stuffy about London Concertante. Indeed, 50 percent of people who attend a performance by this 33-year-old chamber orchestra are first-time classical music concert-goers - a statistic which speaks volumes for the ensemble's commitment to remaining at all times light-of-touch and refreshingly accessible. The Concertante here present a candlelit performance of Vivaldi's Four Seasons and Ralph Vaughan Williams' The Lark Ascending.

this concert by Jeneba Kanneh-Mason (pictured). A rising star who is following in the footsteps of her celebrated elder siblings, Isata and Sheku, she will be performing Chopin's Piano Concerto No2.

The programme also features Kodály's Dances Of Galánta (at Symphony Hall only), Liszt's Mephisto Waltz and, to send audience members home with a definite spring in their step, Beethoven's effervescent Seventh Symphony.

Hungarian Radio Symphony Orchestra

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Sat 30 November

With Riccardo Frizza appointed as chief conductor in 2023 - their 80th-anniversary year - Hungarian Radio Symphony Orchestra are heading into the future with a renewed vigour and enthusiasm. They are joined for

Three Tenors by Candlelight

Shrewsbury Abbey, Sat 16 November

Operatic classics and timeless favourites abound in this candlelit experience presented by three highly praised tenors: Samuel Kibble, William Searle and Rhys Meilyr. The concert's publicity is promising 'an unforgettable night of music that will stir your soul and leave you spellbound'.

The Phoenix Singers: Gloria!

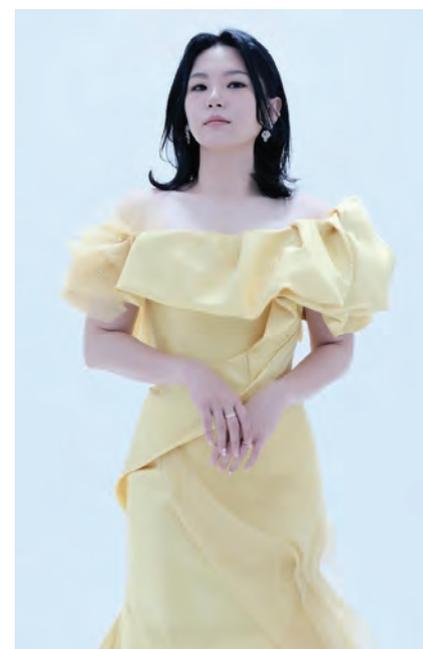

St Chad's Church, Shrewsbury, Sat 16 November

Next year celebrating their 60th birthday, Shrewsbury-based chamber choir The Phoenix Singers perform a repertoire that encompasses a wide variety of music. Their concert this month is a celebration of Baroque masterpieces from the greatest composers of the age. Featured works are Handel's Dixit Dominus, Vivaldi's Gloria, and two pieces by Bach - his joyful motet, Lobet den Herrn, and his dazzling Concerto For Violin & Oboe. The choir is joined by Noxwode Baroque on period instruments.

Classical Spectacular

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Sun 10 November

This annual extravaganza serves up lights, lasers, and more 'spectacular classics' than you can shake a conductor's baton at. Much-loved compositions being given an airing include Ravel's Bolero, Strauss' Also Sprach Zarathustra, Handel's Zadok The Priest, Sibelius' Finlandia and Parry's Jerusalem. Featuring the London Concert Orchestra with conductor Anthony Inglis, the event also includes contributions from the London Concert Choir and the City of Birmingham Choir. The soloists are soprano Haegee Lee (pictured) and tenor Elgan Llŷr Thomas.

PANTO AT THE DOUBLE!

The festive season is drawing ever closer... and we all know what that means, don't we? Yep, that's right, it's Panto time! Oh, yes it is!

At the heart of every great pantomime is a fabulous comedy double-act - two top-quality laughter merchants poised and ready to provide their audience with slapstick, silliness, and a good old-fashioned 'ghost gag' or several.

It might feel like Christmas has crept up on us, but most of these funny folk have had their heads in Pantoland for many a month in preparation. As directors, writers, performers and all-round agents of chaos, they really have seen it all, from costume malfunctions to the hazards of slosh. And they all have one very important thing in common - the power to warm hearts with a good giggle at the chilliest time of the year. We spoke to delightful duos from all around the region, to discover what they've got in store for 2024...

Beauty And The Beast at Wolverhampton Grand

This year sees the return of panto dame Ian Adams, as Madame Fifi Fou-Fou, and comic Tam Ryan, as Joey. The pair have already started their collaboration, writing the show together for the second year running!

This year's script is now signed off and ready! Do you ever have a difference of opinion during the writing process?

Ian: We stopped tinkering last week, didn't we? I think Tam came up with the first idea, the opening number. We've got a funny relationship with music. I'll suggest something, and if Tam doesn't like it, he'll say 'Ooh, it's a bit plinky-plonky'...

Tam: I do say plinky plonky! It's an under-used term.

Ian: ...and I always say 'Trust me' - unless I think he's right!

And how does your working relationship transfer from the page to the stage?

Tam: Working with Ian, we've got a really good rapport, which actually keeps getting better. He knows when I'm going to run off with the ball, and I can see something in his eyes - he doesn't have to signal to me, he doesn't have to give me a pinch. We get each other.

Ian: And when we're writing, I write it because I know that's what he would say!

Beauty And The Beast shows at Wolverhampton Grand Theatre from Saturday 30 November until Sunday 5 January

Jack And The Beanstalk at Lichfield Garrick

Panto favourites Sam Rabone and Ben Thornton return to Lichfield for a Giant of a show. It's the fifth time the pair have walked the boards together at Christmas - and they're ready for anything!

What's it like performing together on stage?

Sam: Awful! I'm quite a good actor really, because people think I like him! He makes me look good as well - the fact he's got no hair, and I have.

Ben: It's lovely having a rapport with someone who you know - it's just easy. You can't rehearse that.

Sam: Being able to let each other breathe as well.

Sometimes when you work with somebody new, you don't know their rhythm.

And what are you most excited about in this year's show?

Sam: We've put a twist on the story, which I really like. I'm excited that it's a different version of Jack And The Beanstalk, which you probably haven't seen around here before. And... we've got slosh back!

Ben: Yeah! Slosh is good - I think I'm going to get my revenge on you this year; that's all I'm saying.

Sam: Revenge of the Slosh! It's going to be the biggest panto we've had.

Jack And The Beanstalk shows at Lichfield Garrick Theatre from Friday 22 November until Sunday 12 January

Sleeping Beauty at Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury

Shrewsbury's favourite Dame, Brad Fitt, is back this year. As well as directing the show, he's also starring as Nurse Nellie alongside returning sidekick Tommy J Rollason, who'll be bringing his circus skills to the stage as Jangles.

Are you both excited about bringing your characters to life?

Brad: I have been Nurse Nellie before. I think this is only my second Sleeping Beauty. At Theatre Severn, we've done lots of different titles. It's good that we're only just starting to repeat them now.

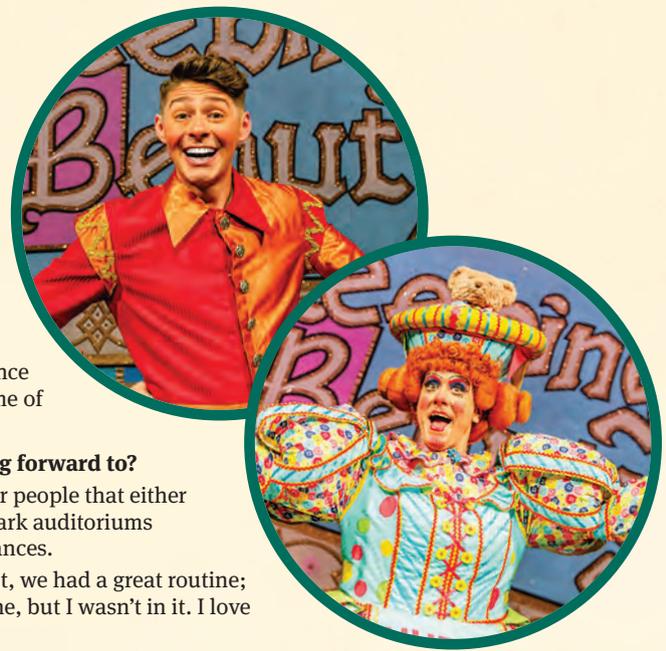

Tommy: My role is to keep the energy up in the show. I like to think I'm part of the audience, really. If anything goes wrong - which it does in panto - the audience can relate to me and Brad. I'm Jangles, who is a jester, so I'll be able to bring some of my juggling tricks along!

You have a long run of shows ahead - is there anything you're really looking forward to?

Brad: One of my favourite shows is the Relaxed performance; I love them. It's for people that either have sensory issues, or maybe they're neurodivergent, or maybe they just find dark auditoriums challenging. We have a great time, and it's become one of my favourite performances.

Tommy: I would say the slosh! When I first came here, for Beauty And The Beast, we had a great routine; it was manic. Then Jack And The Beanstalk last year, we had a great slosh routine, but I wasn't in it. I love physical comedy.

Sleeping Beauty shows at Theatre Severn from Friday 29 November until Sunday 12 January

Peter Pan at Birmingham Hippodrome

Hippodrome legend Matt Slack is ready to shiver his timbers as salty seadog Smee in what will be his 11th consecutive panto at the venue. Birmingham's very own Alison Hammond can't wait to join him on stage for a second year running, this time as the Magical Mermaid.

Alison, what was your favourite moment last year?

Alison: The Strictly dance with Matt! There's always a little moment with me and him - that was one reason I wanted to come back. The only problem is, in that dress, I can't dance! I can't even sit down, because there's glass bubbles on the bottom!

When chaos and silliness reign, how do you keep the show on track, Matt?

Matt: I think we've been doing it for so long now, it just comes naturally - it always has with me. You've got to know where to draw the line, and push the boundaries. We are aimed towards a family audience, but we also want to entertain the adults. It's all about double entendre and disguising it - as long as it goes over the kids' heads and the adults are laughing, that's a job done!

Alison, is there anything that you really want to bring back?

Alison: I'd like to have a little dance moment, and I'd like to sing - I didn't sing last year, really. I think we should have a little Ariel moment. People need to hear what I can unleash!

Peter Pan shows at Birmingham Hippodrome from Saturday 21 December until Sunday 2 February

Dick Whittington at Stoke's Regent Theatre

Local lad Jonathan Wilkes appears as Dick Whittington and celebrates 20 years since his Regent Theatre panto debut. The show sees him reunited with Christian Patterson, who will be whipping up a storm as Sarah the Cook...

After many years performing in the Regent panto, do you recall any mishaps?

Christian: What about when we were doing Peter Pan, Jonny? We did the Mastermind sketch, and you fell off a chair and ripped your trousers from... well, let's just say, from Lands End to John O' Groats!

Jonny: It wasn't a good look. Christian couldn't continue without laughing at me - I just went with it!

Jonny, this is your 20th year in panto at Stoke. How does that feel?

Jonny: My 20th year means the world to me - I still get emotional thinking that I've been asked to do this for 20 years. You could get somebody else, but I tell you what, you wouldn't get the love, care and passion I bring.

And what is it about the audiences that keeps you coming back?

Christian: They're the absolute best!

Jonny: Pantomime is sometimes the first time a young child ever comes into this theatre. It's our responsibility to make them believe what theatre's about - it's a magical place.

It's Panto time! Oh, yes it is!

Goldilocks And The Three Bears at Telford International Centre

This year, Telford's panto has temporarily relocated, while the theatre is undergoing exciting renovations. Don't fret, though - regular comedy twosome Ian Smith and Carl Dutfield are back to wow the crowds as the Circus Ringmistress and Clown...

You two have worked together many times before - what's it like getting back on stage?

Ian: I'm reunited with my son Carl! I think this is probably our 10th year working together now. We first got together in 2014 and then did some tours as well - it's our fourth year together in Telford.

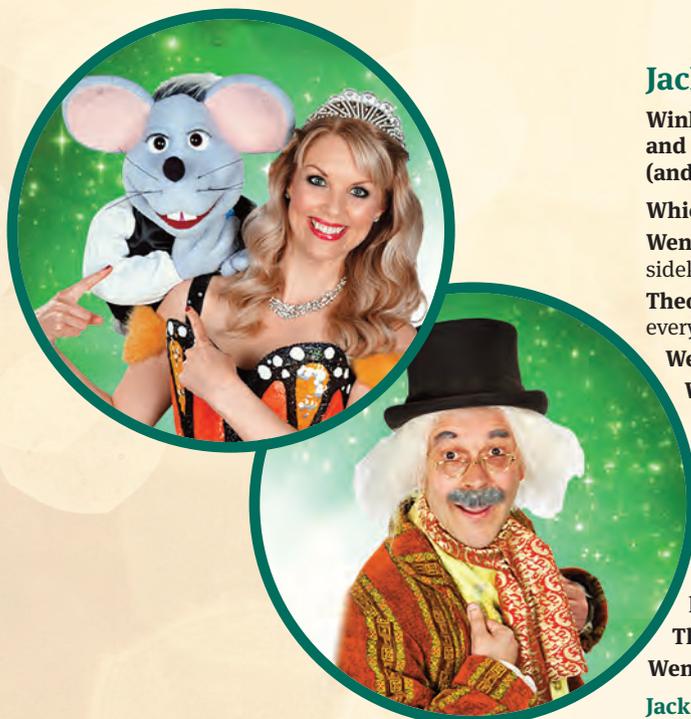

Carl: He was one of my very first panto Dames, when I used to work for a holiday company. Years later we came to Telford together and it's been good ever since!

And what is it about Telford audiences that you love?

Carl: How unexpected they can be. I believe the more unpredictable an audience can be, the better you can become as a performer.

Ian: A comic, someone like Carl, the kids love him; they absolutely adore him. I think the Dame is for the family, but I play mine to the dads and the grannies. Dad's worked really hard to take his family to the theatre to make this memory, so I've got to make sure Dad laughs!

Goldilocks And The Three Bears shows at Telford International Centre from Tuesday 17 December until Thursday 2 January

Jack And The Beanstalk at Stafford Gatehouse

Wink Taylor and Wendy Abrahams are a longstanding double act both on and off the stage - and they will be joined yet again by the ever-popular (and ever-unruly) Theo the Mouse...

Which characters are you all playing in Jack And The Beanstalk?

Wendy: Well, I'm going to be playing the fairy, and Theo is going to be my sidekick. You're going to be working in the dairy, aren't you?

Theo: Yeah, I'm the chief cheese taster! I'm going to eat all the props and everyone will say, 'Oh no, not that mouse. I camembert him!'

Wendy: ...I'm so sorry, it's all started way too early.

Wink: Oh, Edam you all... Theo's cheesy by nature, he really is! I'm going to be playing Squire Penkridge.

So, can we expect Theo to be just as mischievous in this year's panto?

Wink: Oh yes! Last year people were cheering for Wendy and Theo as soon as they arrived.

Wendy: They just know that something naughty and funny is going to happen.

Theo: How dare you, Wendy, you'll be hearing from my solicitors!

Wendy: I think he's going to be far naughtier this year, for some reason...

Jack And The Beanstalk shows at Stafford Gatehouse Theatre from Friday 6 December until Sunday 5 January

Live music from across the region...

Hard-Fi

The Wulfrun at The Halls Wolverhampton,
Fri 22 November

Noughties favourites Hard-Fi visit the region this month in support of their first new material in 10 years. Having made a splash with debut album Stars Of CCTV back in 2005 - following up with a second chart-topper, Once Upon A Time In The West, two years later - the band called it a day in 2014, finally re-forming a couple of years ago. The Staines-upon-Thames four-piece's Wolverhampton stop-off will see them performing songs from EP Don't Go Making Plans, released this very month.

Welly

Albert's Shed, Shrewsbury, Fri 29 November

Welly's musical influences are many and varied, including The Human League, the poppy-disco of Sophie Ellis-Bextor, New Radicals and Mika, and numerous television programmes - among them, er, Postman Pat and Fireman Sam!

Hailing from Southampton and teaming up with guitarists Joe and Matt, bass player Jacob and percussionist Hannah, Welly (aka Elliot Hall) is setting out his stall to write songs that capture a sense of modern-day suburban life. "In the past 100 years, this country's become so diverse, and there's so many people doing amazing different things," he recently told NME. "England doesn't export steel or cars anymore; we export media. There's so many amazing artists, thinkers, musicians - we should focus on that."

The Carrivick Sisters

Burton Folk Club, Staffordshire, Fri 15
November; Newhampton Arts Centre,
Wolverhampton, Sat 16 November

Twins Laura and Charlotte have been performing together since 2006, showcasing their original songs alongside a few carefully chosen covers on guitar, mandolin, fiddle, clawhammer banjo and dobro. Drawing inspiration from their passion both for English folklore and traditional American bluegrass and old-time music, the pair have performed at major festivals in Canada and mainland Europe.

Elkie Brooks

Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury,
Wed 6 November

With an impressive 60-plus years in the music industry behind her and 20 albums under her belt, Elkie Brooks quite rightly continues to hold the title of British Queen of Blues.

Having kicked off her new tour, The Long Farewell, at Shrewsbury Folk Festival back in the summer, she's this month returning to the town to present a gig featuring all her greatest hits, including Pearl's A Singer, Fool (If You Think It's Over), Don't Cry Out Loud and Sunshine After The Rain.

Henge

The Robin, Bilston, Thurs 21 November

"Attention Earth! This is Henge. We bring you the gift of cosmic dross - a kind of music new to your world. There are no Earth words to describe these sounds, but you will learn how to love and dance again!"

So speaks the phenomenon that is Henge, a band of extraterrestrial joymongers who've been providing their ever-expanding fanbase with an out-of-this-world experience for the better part of a decade. The cosmic dross of which they speak is a music that aims to defy definition, lurking somewhere between rave and prog rock in a space 'that nobody knew existed'. As you might imagine with visitors from another planet, the boys sport a somewhat unusual on-stage appearance - expect reptilian masks and plasma-ball headwear...

Beans On Toast

The Sugarmill, Stoke-on-Trent,
Wed 13 November

Self-confessed hippie drunkard Beans On Toast selected his name because he wanted to be called something basic and simple - to reflect his music!

"I'm not the greatest guitarist in the world," he once admitted to Listen Up Manchester. "I play simple three-chord folk songs, but if I see something that interests me, something that intrigues or angers me, I pick up my guitar and I write a song." Emerging from the London folk scene over a decade ago and mainly singing about sex, drugs and politics, Beans On Toast is a surefire bet for an entertaining evening out.

IN THE PINK

After a difficult couple of years in the wake of the Covid pandemic, Manchester indie rock band Courteeners have been back in the groove, celebrating the anniversary of debut LP St Jude, playing their biggest-ever shows and writing new music. A conscious shift towards a poppier sound, new album Pink Cactus Café is the act's strongest set of songs since their debut - and fans are in for a treat on their upcoming tour, singer Liam Fray tells What's On...

I can't believe it's been 16 years since St Jude came out. Thanks for making me feel so old.

We've just had our 18th birthday as a band, so you're not the only one, bud. I've felt old for about 10 years.

The time has obviously flown by. Have you managed to learn anything or gain any perspective along the way?

Do you know what, even the big shows we've done recently [the band played a number of UK festivals this summer], you build up to it and there's a lot of nerves and excitement, and almost as soon as it's done, it's like 'Okay, what's next?' There's never really a time to sit back and take it in.

You played shows celebrating the 15th anniversary of St Jude last year, which obviously involved nostalgia and looking back. Did they inform how you approached the new album and the 'what's next' you mentioned?

I think we changed from the first to the second record, the second to the third, and so on. We've always been a band that moves on. Look, I know what those songs [from St Jude] mean to people, but if you try to make your debut album again and again and again, first, it'd be pretty weird to have old blokes singing about standing at the corner of the bar, but also you have to stay true and honest to yourself.

You clearly have been thinking about it, in terms of how you see your sound evolving.

Yeah, it's quite difficult when you're playing live and seeing how much those songs mean to people - you've got to trust your gut and think [the fans] trust us. We've still got that 'last gang in town' mentality, and it's more to do with that rather than the sonics of the record. And people's tastes evolve as well - you have to give them more credit than to think they just want what they were spoon-fed first time around again and again. That's the joy of the tightrope as well - that's the balancing act. How do we retain what we are, pushing forward and keeping it interesting for everybody, the listener and the band?

New album Pink Cactus Café definitely feels a bit fresher, and sounds, dare I say it, poppier...

Yeah, but it's still us as well; it's still got that heart, guts and soul - it's not scared to wear its heart on its sleeve. And if that means being a bit more delicate in delivery so more people hear it, then that's half the battle. You make the same record as the first one and nobody new comes along for the ride, and I want to reach as many people as possible. I don't just want to play to people in my front room; I want to play to everybody's front room.

Which in some ways is the opposite of the isolated way it came together. Is it true that when you were writing material, you weren't sure whether it might be a solo record or some sort of side project?

Because we were in lockdown, it was the first time I've ever just spent time writing with no real plan. I didn't know when I was gonna see the guys again, so I thought I'd just keep writing so at least there'd be enough for when we did get back together. But it could've been three years, who knows?

And after writing in solitude, you've ended up with an album that features lots of collaboration with other artists. Were you just happy to see as many people as possible?

I'm lucky enough to call some of the people on the record friends - James Skelly [The Coral], Theo [Hutchcraft, from Hurts], DMAs... Brooke Combe. I think everybody in bands that has mates in other bands will tell you they've said 'Oh yeah, we should do a tune together'. I just thought, let's follow this up. It ended up being the most rewarding and collaborative thing we've ever done.

Friends or not, was it a challenge to offer up your tunes to other people?

"Yeah, it was really daunting. There's a definite fear of falling, and am I gonna expose myself as a bad songwriter in front of people I really respect? But when something clicks and something works, it's a real rush.

And you end up with something greater than the sum of its parts?

It's more of a relief, to be honest! But yeah, definitely. People think that all artists are super confident, but I'd argue it's the opposite. When you go on stage, you put on that armour, but when you're in the studio, these [lyrics] are like diary entries - they come from my heart and soul; they're not made up. The lyrics are lived, not just platitudes to serve the song.

That sense of authenticity has often been cited as one of the reasons the band has such a strong connection to the fans, and your gigs become almost spiritual events.

We've got these arena shows coming up, and there's nothing like having 10,000 people in a room all bouncing or all singing one of the slow ones. Someone said it's a bit like going to a football match but everyone supports the same team, and I love that - everyone's in it for the same reasons. We're in rehearsals now, and it sounds massive; we're raring to go.

Speaking of arenas, the upcoming tour is your biggest UK trek in terms of venue sizes, but it sounds like ticket sales are going well, including the Utilita Arena show in Birmingham...

Birmingham has always been so good to us, but everywhere has - even when we go down south, where people think we're just this northern phenomenon. Until now the biggest venue we've ever done in Birmingham is the Academy, but tickets are flying out. We're absolutely made up. That show is the last one of the tour as well, so out with a bang!

Comedy previews from across the region...

Omid Djalili

Lichfield Garrick, Fri 1 & Sat 2 November; Huntingdon Hall, Worcester, Fri 22 & Sat 23 November; Dudley Town Hall, Fri 21 February; Stratford PlayHouse, Stratford-upon-Avon, Sat 22 February; Birmingham Town Hall, Fri 16 May; The Regal, Evesham, Sat 20 September; Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Thurs 9 October

A fella who's been referred to as "the thinking person's Iranian comedian", Omid Djalili is probably one of the most subversive comics currently doing the rounds on the UK comedy circuit.

"I've been breaking away from the Middle Eastern pigeonhole that you people [journalists] have unfairly put me in. I'm a citizen of the world, and I will not be defined by cultural stereotypes. I have a specific viewpoint, which many call 'Djalili-esque', and I think my material reflects that now. Would you like a carpet? Visit my website. I also sell fried chicken, mayonnaise, motorcycle insurance and viagra, very fine price."

Tom Ward

Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Thurs 7 November; The Glee Club, Birmingham, Sun 24 November

Having recently made the decision to eat healthily during the week - "Saturday nights are for colon carnage" - Tom Ward has put together a show that's all about rethinking everything. "The thinness of reality is the theme of Choose Your Delusion," he says. He then goes on to further explain that the evening will see him reflecting on "all the big topics of our time: masculinity, three-star hotels, erectile dysfunction, reality TV, adverts, mental health and virtue-signalling wkers".

Tom's visits to the Midlands this month form part of his second-ever UK tour.

Amy Matthews

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Fri 8 November

A train journey between Glasgow and Manchester saw Amy Matthews suffer an unexpected existential crisis. During the course of the three-hour trip, she found herself ruminating on the price that people have paid as a result of the ever-increasing pace of modern life.

Her train-journey reflections provided the springboard for stand-up offering Commute With The Foxes, a show which she is this month bringing to Birmingham on the back of summer success at the Edinburgh Fringe.

Mark Thomas

Glee Club, Birmingham, Thurs 7 November; Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Wed 13 November

Mark Thomas is no ordinary comedian. Hugely witty and as savage as a rabid dog when it comes to putting hecklers in their place, he takes to the stage with the intention not only of making people laugh but also exposing governmental and corporate exploitation in its many and varied forms. Mark's latest show, Gaffa Tapes, sees him promising an evening of 'jokes, rants, politics, play, and the occasional sing song'.

Mark Watson

Festival Drayton Centre, Market Drayton, North Shropshire, Fri 1 November; Stourbridge Town Hall, Sat 2 November; Evesham Town Hall, Sun 3 November

Well established on the UK comedy circuit, Mark Watson was born in Bristol to Welsh parents and initially delivered his act with a Welsh accent, claiming he felt "more comfortable talking in a voice that I didn't quite recognise as my own".

"Comedy is certainly a time-consuming element of my life," he admits, "but then while I'm out touring and on stage, there are people at home doing far less glamorous things. There have certainly been times when I've been very happy to say, 'Of course I'd like to stay and help out with that plumbing crisis, but the Midlands awaits!'"

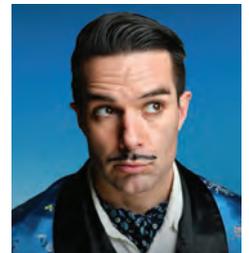

Troy Hawke

The Civic at The Halls Wolverhampton, Sat 30 November

Erudite and home-schooled 1930s throwback Troy Hawke lists his hobbies as playing scrabble, conspiracy theories and calling Manchester City's Erling Haaland "a tremendous Nordic meat shield".

The foppish Errol Flynn-lookalike (Troy, that is, not Erling) - as played by Milo McCabe - had been out and about on the comedy circuit for a good few years before finally hitting the online jackpot and going viral on TikTok.

Troy is visiting Wolverhampton this month with The Greeters Guild, a show in which he 'examines his unlikely genesis, and explores exactly why a well-dressed man simply being nice to people has caused such a kerfuffle'.

Ivo Graham

Brewhouse Arts Centre, Burton upon Trent, Thurs 21 November

Seriously posh and admirably self-deprecating, Ivo Graham won plenty of new fans in 2019 when one of his gags was nominated for the coveted 'best joke of the Edinburgh

Fringe' award: "I've got an Eton-themed advent calendar," explained Ivo, "where all the doors are opened for me by my dad's contacts."

The Tokyo-born Oxford alumnus visits the Midlands with Grand Design, a show which is described by its publicity in the following way: No ball games, no blind alleys, no backstage printers this year; just one of the best stand-ups of his generation, back to prove he's not just Taskmaster's yardstick for failure.

Paddy McGuinness

Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Sat 23 November; The Alexandra, Birmingham, Fri 28 February; The Civic at The Halls Wolverhampton, Sat 1 March

Best known as Peter Kay's sidekick in the hit TV shows Phoenix Nights and Max And Paddy's Road To Nowhere - and more recently as a co-presenter of BBC TV series Top Gear and the critically panned Road Tripping - Paddy McGuinness is one of the UK's most popular comedy talents.

This new tour marks a return to stand-up after a break of eight years, with Paddy having openly admitted he's hitting the road because "the money's run out". "I'm looking forward to getting back in front of a live audience," said the 51-year-old before embarking on the tour, "along with running the gauntlet of cancel culture, click bait and fake news!"

Grace Campbell

Birmingham Town Hall, Sat 9 November; Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Thurs 21 November

Describing herself as the funniest person she has ever met and "famous in North West London", Grace Campbell is a comedian with a fast-growing following and wit to spare.

The daughter of one-time Downing Street director of communications Alistair Campbell, Grace visits the Midlands this month with a new show in which she reflects on numerous significant life changes, from turning 30 and becoming a dog owner, to giving non-monogamy a go and then trying out celibacy. Expect answers to 'big questions about the world, her vagina, and her obsession with making her new dog her entire brand...'

Kane Brown

O2 Institute, Birmingham, Thurs 14 & Fri 15 November; Royal Spa Centre, Leamington Spa, Sat 23 November

Parenthood, family life, relationships and British culture are among the subjects to which Kane Brown regularly returns during his live shows.

The one-time direct-sales executive kickstarted his current career back in 2006 when he enrolled in a two-week course in standup-comedy, since which time he's honed his rib-tickling talents to excellent effect.

Kane visits the region this month with his acclaimed show, Don't Listen To Me.

Carl Hutchinson

Stafford Gatehouse Theatre, Sun 24 November; Glee Club, Birmingham, Sun 16 February; Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Wed 21 May

Observational comedian Carl Hutchinson makes a welcome return with a show that covers all manner of common-or-garden topics. Prior to becoming a full-time stand-up, Carl was a maths teacher. "There are certainly comparisons between the two professions," says the popular Geordie funnyman, "but the definite advantage with comedy is that if you have a bad gig, you can rest assured that you don't have to see the same audience the next day at 10am!" Carl visits the region this month with new show Today Years Old.

Tatty McCloud

Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Fri 15 November

Born in Zimbabwe and raised in France to British parents, London-based Tatty McCloud shot to fame on social media, making a significant splash with her witty observations about the differences between French and British culture.

Tatty has now hit the road with a debut hour of comedy that turns the spotlight on the subject of 'belonging'. Or, to be more precise, the business of 'finding your tribe, or not, and how to be okay with that'.

SPREADING THE WORD

Hit show The Book Of Mormon returns to the Midlands for Christmas

Outrageous musical satire The Book Of Mormon strides into the region next month for a festive run at Birmingham theatre The Alexandra. Hailed ‘the funniest musical of all time’ and a massive hit wherever it lands, the show features a clever script written by three exceptional talents: South Park creators Trey Parker and Matt Stone, and Avenue Q co-creator Robert Lopez...

First staged in 2011 on New York’s Broadway, The Book Of Mormon was an instant success. Written by South Park creators Trey Parker and Matt Stone with Avenue Q co-creator Robert Lopez, the musical takes a firmly tongue-in-cheek look at what happens when two young Mormon men go on a mission to Uganda.

Leaving behind the familiarity and security of their homes in Salt Lake City, Elder Price and Elder Cunningham discover life doesn’t always meet expectations when they land in Africa and meet the locals.

Trey, Matt and Robert created the book, music and lyrics for The Book Of Mormon, and with all three having a proven background in off-the-wall comedy, there’s little wonder the show is packed with humour and great songs.

Winning nine Tony Awards on Broadway, it opened in London in 2013, set the record for the highest single day of sales in West End history, and went on to win four Olivier Awards, including Best New Musical.

The Book Of Mormon has since been performed across three continents, picking up more than 30 awards and breaking box office records in the US, UK and Australia.

So how does a show about a couple of Church of Latter-day Saints members embarking on a mission become such a hit? Somewhat bizarrely, the musical was born from a fascination with the Mormon church which the trio discovered they shared when they met in 2003. Trey and Matt had been to see Avenue Q, and over drinks afterwards they asked Robert about his future projects. They were surprised to hear him say he’d like to create something linked to Joseph Smith, founder of the Mormons - not least because it was a subject they were already considering.

“I remember reading about Smith in an American history textbook in eighth grade and just having to read it twice because I couldn’t believe what I was reading,” says Robert. “When Trey and Matt asked me what I would like to do next, I said ‘I want to do something on Joseph Smith’. And they said ‘What? That’s what we wanna do, too!’”

The Book Of Mormon is just one of a string of hit shows Robert has worked on. Together with his wife and collaborator, Kristen Anderson-Lopez, he wrote songs for Disney films Frozen and Coco - including the international sensation Let It Go. He and Kristen also adapted Frozen into the stage spectacular.

Robert’s talents have been recognised so many times that, to date, he is the only double ‘EGOT’ winner, meaning he’s won all four major US entertainment awards - Emmy, Grammy, Oscar and Tony - twice.

He says that while it was important for The Book Of Mormon to be funny, it also needed to convey the humanity of its characters.

“We were trying to make a show that was about the way we felt about the best parts of religion. We were writing a show about it that was sort of for atheists and believers at the same time, because it summed up how we felt about it - that whether or not the stories are true, they do something that’s good. Believing in something impossible makes you do impossible things.

“People are so quick to laugh at Mormons - and we wanted, in the end, to be able to turn it around on them. Because, really, any belief in anything impossible is sort of funny - but also, it’s very inspiring and empowering. And I think that’s why the show sings so much.”

Perhaps not surprisingly, given that it’s from the creators of anarchic television series South Park, The Book Of Mormon does skate close to the edge where its comedy is concerned. But, says Trey, this is their way of exploring subjects.

“It’s what a lot of not-funny people don’t understand. They don’t get that funny isn’t a tool to attack - it’s a tool to process a thing and to communicate. I think the most profound things I’ve ever heard about life have come out of a comedian’s mouth.”

Despite being the butt of many of the jokes, the Church of Latter-day Saints didn’t protest about the musical. Instead, the Mormons chose to embrace it, even placing adverts in programmes for the actual Book Of Mormon, their tenet of faith.

“Everyone beforehand was like, ‘are you worried?’” Trey recalls. “And we were like

‘no’, because we know Mormons. Mormons are nice people and they’re smart people.” That said, he hadn’t expected the response they did get. “We didn’t think they’d go so far as to take out ads in our programme. They trumped us, really.”

Trey also stresses the plot of the musical is more about the culture clash between the Mormons and the supposed beneficiaries of their mission than about poking fun at the beliefs of the Church of Latter-day Saints.

“It’s specifically a Mormon thing that when you’re 18 you get paired with someone who’s your sudden ‘best friend’ and sent somewhere crazy in the world,” Trey explains.

“So this show is really two kids coming out of high school, basically going out into the world, and thinking they’ve kind of got it and they know it all. And getting their asses handed to them. And I think anyone around the world can relate to that a little bit.”

Trey and Matt met when they were students at the University of Colorado. Together they wrote and directed the film Cannibal! The Musical before creating South Park. Debuting on Comedy Central in 1997, South Park was rapidly an international phenomenon, picking up five Emmys and the Peabody Award.

The duo’s films include South Park: Bigger, Longer & Uncut, the superhero comedy Orgazmo, and the marionette action thriller Team America: World Police.

For Matt, jokes are an essential element in their storytelling.

“Humour is how we deconstruct the world. There is an element to comedy that is ‘laugh at these people’. The Book Of Mormon uses that mockability of the Mormons - and then tries to tell you a larger story, and rope you in and open it up. Laughter breaks down your defences, you know? And then you’re open to a different story.”

The Book Of Mormon shows at The Alexandra, Birmingham, from Tuesday 3 to Saturday 28 December

Come From Away Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, Tues 5 - Sat 9 November

This Olivier and Tony Award winner tells the incredible real-life story of 7,000 air passengers who were grounded in Canada in the wake of 9/11...

As evidenced by its aforementioned success in the glittering-prizes stakes, the show has proved to be an enormous international hit, with audiences on their feet night after night. It returns to the region this month having enjoyed a stellar success on its first visit to the Midlands earlier in the year.

The show was written by husband & wife team Irene Sankoff and David Hein, who freely admit that condensing the story into a stage production was no easy task: "The very first draft, we were working with students, and we had about four hours of material, were around 100 pages in, and the people still weren't off the planes!" recalls Irene. "So it was just a constant peeling away to get to the spine of the story, the truth of the story. There are some amalgamated characters, and some things happened to different people than we portrayed in the musical, but that was in an effort to get it into a succinct story."

Ghost The Musical

Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Tues 12 - Sat 16 November; Malvern Theatres, Tues 26 - Sat 30 November; The Alexandra, Birmingham, Tues 1 - Sat 5 April

The ever-popular stage version of the award-winning film makes a welcome return to the Midlands. For those not in the know, the production tells the story of a ghost named Sam, who, caught between this world and the next, desperately attempts to communicate with girlfriend Molly and warn her that she's in mortal danger from his murderer...

A timeless tale about the power of love - and beautifully blending the genres of romance and comedy - Ghost features The Righteous Brothers' Unchained Melody and numerous songs co-written by Eurythmics' Dave Stewart. The cast includes Les Dennis.

Here & Now: Steps Musical

The Alexandra, Birmingham, Sat 9 - Sat 30 November

Iconic songs from pop group Steps' repertoire provide the backdrop for this brand-new musical premiering at The Alexandra.

A celebration of love and friendship, Here & Now is helmed by former Birmingham Rep artistic director Rachel Kavanaugh.

The show focuses on four friends - Caz, Vel, Neeta and Robbie - as they steer their way through a summer filled with happiness, heartache, hurt and humour.

"Here & Now is a completely original story with new characters," says Rachel. "It's not about Steps, but we use their songs to tell the story. It's brilliant for people who love Steps, but I think that even if you don't know the songs, you'll still enjoy it."

Chicago

Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Mon 25 - Sat 30 November; The Alexandra, Birmingham, Mon 14 - Sat 19 April; Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, Mon 23 - Sat 28 June

Featuring formation dancing, vaudeville influence and no shortage of fishnet tights, Broadway and West End hit Chicago delves into the dark and decidedly murky underbelly of the Windy City during the Jazz Age.

Kander & Ebb's legendary musical, based on real-life events in the Roaring '20s, centres on the character of Roxie Hart, a nightclub singer who shoots her lover. Together with her cell-block rival, double murderess Velma Kelly, Roxie battles to stay off Death Row - an endeavour in which she is ably assisted by smooth-talking lawyer Billy Flynn... Coronation Street's Faye Brookes and former Strictly Come Dancing favourite Kevin Clifton take the lead roles.

Play On!

Birmingham Hippodrome, Wed 6 - Sat 9 November

As retellings of Shakespeare plays go, this one is seriously jazzed up - literally! A clever reimagining of Twelfth Night that brings together street dance choreography with the music of Duke Ellington, Talawa theatre company's Play On! focuses on the character of songwriter Vy as she looks to make it big in the male-dominated world of 1940s Harlem.

The Girl In The Green Room

Old Joint Stock Theatre, Birmingham, Wed 6 & Thurs 7 November

The Girl In The Green Room's reputation on the pub-theatre circuit has been considerably enhanced by a host of five-star reviews and its nomination for numerous off-West End Awards.

Based on a 1925 Walter De La Mare 'ghost story for Christmas', the play follows the fortunes of a young writer who discovers a secret room in a bookshop. Investigating further, he soon finds that there's plenty more to the situation than meets the eye...

Rotten

The Rep, Birmingham, Fri 15 & Sat 16 November

The cost of living, capitalism, mental health and social media are among the topical subjects under the spotlight in this brand-new comedy-thriller - a show which is being publicised as 'Hitchcock meets Lord Of The Flies'.

At the centre of the story are three young regional actresses struggling to survive in London. When they realise that, via their grotty living-room window, they have a front-row seat from which to observe the life of an Instagram 'celebrity', the trio find themselves suddenly involved in a get-rich-quick scheme that soon spirals out of control...

The Comedy Of Terrors

Stafford Gatehouse Theatre, Thurs 14 November

Rumpus Theatre Company are the creatives behind this fast-moving farce, described by its publicity as a madcap comedy of multiple mistaken identity. The play's storyline is way too discombobulating to explain here; suffice to say the show features the character of a budding actor who turns up for an audition at a theatre but then finds herself in line to become a human sacrifice!

Audiences are being advised to expect a show that not only features plenty of mayhem but also a bad attack of, er, wind...

Birdsong

Malvern Theatres, Tues 19 - Sat 23 November; The Rep, Birmingham, Mon 27 January - Sat 1 February

Sebastian Faulks' epic and bestselling novel is set both before and during the Great War. It follows the fortunes of the young Stephen Wraysford as he embarks on a passionate and dangerous affair with the beautiful Isabelle Azaire... This stage version was written by Rachel Wagstaff, who claims she got the nod from Faulks to adapt his novel after she impressed him by knowing the most recent result of his beloved football club, West Ham United.

Othello

Royal Shakespeare Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, until Sat 23 November

Shakespeare's tragic tale of lost handkerchiefs, ruined reputations and mistreated wives has always been one of theatre's most powerful stories. When Iago is overlooked for promotion by Othello, his Machiavellian mind turns to thoughts of vengeance. Othello's willingness to be led by the nose is all grist to Iago's mill, and fatal consequences ensue... John Douglas Thompson stars as Othello.

Christmas shows opening in November

Beauty And The Beast

Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, Sat 30 November - Sunday 5 January

When a young woman is captured by a hideous beast, she finds herself facing a life of isolation in his mysterious palace. The Beast, too, is trapped - seemingly forever - inside the grotesquery of his physical appearance, the consequence of a spell cast upon him by an evil witch. Only Beauty's ability to look beyond his ugliness and see the person within can save him... So that's the storyline - but what about the panto element? Well, there's plenty of that in evidence in this fun family production, which brings together Gladiator's Giant with Six star Jarneia Richard-Noel and panto favourites Tam Ryan and Ian Adams.

The Red Shoes

Swan Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, Thurs 7 November - Sun 19 January

Inspired by Hans Christian Andersen's dark fairy tale about a pair of enchanted shoes that take their wearer to places she doesn't want to go, The Red Shoes has here been adapted by Nancy Harris and brought into the 21st century.

The production is helmed by Kimberley Rampersad, making her Royal Shakespeare Company debut, and carries an age recommendation of seven-plus, with parental discretion advised for children younger than 12.

The Three Musketeers

New Vic Theatre, Newcastle-under-Lyme, Fri 15 November - Sat 25 January

There's plenty of swashbuckling fun to be had at the New Vic Theatre this festive season, courtesy of an imaginative stage version of Alexandre Dumas' classic adventure novel The Three Musketeers. The story has been adapted by New Vic Artistic Director Theresa Heskins, who reveals that the show was chosen after the theatre had engaged with prospective audience members: "Christmas is a time of year when our local families and schools look forward to the treat of a theatre outing together, and so we asked them what they would like to see this year. The answer came back loud and clear. Theatre-in-the-round loves action, so their choice of an all-action adventure is perfect for the New Vic's unique space."

Sleeping Beauty

Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Fri 29 November - Sun 12 January

If you're a dyed-in-the-wool fan of the Theatre Severn panto experience, you'll be delighted to know that this year's offering is following the usual recipe for success.

What does that mean in practice? Well, to put some meat on the bone, it means Telford-born Paul Hendy is writing it, Evolution is producing it, and Brad Fitt is starring in it... Actually, Brad's taking the directorial reins as well, and not for the first time either, having helmed the Theatre Severn pantomime both last year and in 2022.

"There are pantos out there that go a bit near the knuckle - but I don't think ours does, really," says Brad. "I would never tell a joke that was offensive or rude. Sometimes you can use a double entendre - but then that's in your mind, that's not me. You have to blame yourself!"

Jack And The Beanstalk

Lichfield Garrick, Friday 22 November - Sun 12 January

In common with Theatre Severn's pantomime production of Sleeping Beauty (see above), the Garrick's Jack And The Beanstalk has been written by Paul Hendy and is produced by Evolution.

And also in common with Theatre Severn, the Garrick has a 'Dame of longstanding' taking centre-stage in its show... Sam Rabone has spent many a festive season in a nice frock or several at the venue, and this year returns to star as Dame Trot. Ben Thornton is back too, with the cast also including Gill Jordan - better known as 'lazy cow' Doreen Tipton - who will be taking on the role of Fairy Sugarsnap.

Dick Whittington

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Wed 20 November - Sat 4 January

The story of a young man who heads for London in search of fame and fortune is one of the most popular of all pantomimes, not least because of the top adventures in which the happy-go-lucky Dick finds himself involved.

This Belgrade Theatre version of the terrific tale, coming complete with 'breathtaking sets, lavish costumes' and a typically fun-filled script by Iain Lauchlan, is the fastest-selling panto in the venue's history, so best bag yourself a seat or several as soon as possible.

The Wizard Of Oz

The Old Rep, Birmingham, Tues 26 November - Tues 31 December

This classic story from the pen of L Frank Baum has been delighting children for over a century. A marvellous mix of magic, mayhem and munchkins, it tells the story of Dorothy Gale and her unexpected trip over the rainbow to the wonderful land of Oz. There, she meets a scarecrow, a tin man and a cowardly lion, heads off on a journey along the yellow brick road to find the Emerald City, and has more than one unpleasant encounter with the Wicked Witch of the West... If ever a ruby-slipped girl was in need of a wonderful wizard...

The BOA Group is the company behind the show. The Wizard Of Oz is their ninth Christmas production at the Old Rep Theatre.

The Smeds And The Smoos

Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry,
Tues 26 November - Sun 29 December

Another Tall Stories adaptation of a picture book by award-winning collaborators Julia Donaldson and Axel Scheffler, The Smeds And The Smoos tells the intergalactic tale of a young Smed and a young Smoo who fall hopelessly in love. Problem is... the red-coloured Smeds and the blue-coloured Smoos never mix, causing Romeo & Juliet-style complications for the star-crossed lovers... Created for children aged three-plus, this theatrical presentation of Donaldson & Scheffler's delightful space romance comes complete with a powerful but gently conveyed message about difference and tolerance.

The Very Hungry Caterpillar

Tamworth Assembly Rooms, Tues 5 & Wed 6 November; Royal Spa Centre, Leamington Spa, Thurs 7 & Fri 8 November

Eric Carle's 1969 story of The Very Hungry Caterpillar has been translated into more than 60 languages, selling in excess of 50 million copies.

This stage version of Carle's much-loved tale is presented alongside three other popular children's stories by the same author: Brown Bear, Brown Bear; 10 Little Rubber Ducks; and The Very Busy Spider. The show features no fewer than 75 'lovable' puppets.

Disney On Ice Live: Road Trip Adventures

Utilita Arena Birmingham,
Wed 30 October - Sun 3 November &
Fri 8 - Sun 10 November

Grab your mouse ears and get your skates on - Disney On Ice is back in Birmingham with a brand-new show.

Featuring new and classic tales, breathtaking skating, high-flying acrobatics and up-close character interactions, Road Trip Adventures offers families the chance to take 'a wild ride' to a host of popular Disney destinations, including Moana's sun-soaked Motunui and Simba's Pride Lands from The Lion King. Fun with Mary Poppins, Aladdin, Woody and Forky, among others, also features.

Sophie Nüzel: Stories Of A Watersprite

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham,
Thurs 7 - Sat 9 November

When 'things that clinker and clatter' start cluttering up the pond, its inhabitants are left with precious little space in which to play, swim and slither.

Perhaps a little watersprite can save the day? German choreographer and dance maker Sophie Nüzel is the creative force behind this gentle production for audiences aged four-plus.

The performances are suitable for both neurodiverse and neurotypical children, with access-needs for deaf and blind/visually impaired children also addressed.

How A Jellyfish Saved The World

Old Joint Stock Theatre, Birmingham,
Sun 10 November

'Clyde the jellyfish needs a forever friend,' explain talented theatre ensemble Jam Jar in describing the storyline of their latest show. 'When he mistakes a plastic bag for a total jellybabe, will he discover a life in plastic is not so fantastic?'

How A Jellyfish Saved The World has been garnering plenty of praise on its travels and carries an age recommendation of three-plus.

Dinosaur World Live

Lichfield Garrick, Thurs 31 October - Sat 2 November; Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Tues 22 - Thurs 24 April

Dinosaurs are once again roaming the Midlands this autumn, thanks to this interactive show for all the family to enjoy. Youngsters get to meet a host of impressive prehistoric creatures - including, of course, every child's favourite flesh-eating giant, the Tyrannosaurus Rex. A special meet & greet after the show provides the perfect opportunity to make a new dinosaur friend.

HOUNDED BY THE DEAD

Ebenezer Scrooge may not like it, but he's about to be saved - by Rufus Hound as the ghost of Jacob Marley!

Mark Gatiss' acclaimed retelling of Charles Dickens' A Christmas Carol is visiting Birmingham Rep for the festive season. Featuring 'spine-tingling' special effects, the production sees comedian Rufus Hound star as the ghost of Jacob Marley, returning on Christmas Eve to haunt his one-time business partner, the miserly Ebenezer Scrooge. What's On caught up with Rufus to find out more...

I chat to Rufus Hound online on the very first day of rehearsals for A Christmas Carol: A Ghost Story at the Birmingham Rep, and immediately clock that he's immersed himself in the show - by wearing his Muppet Christmas Carol jumper.

It is mid-October, so well before most of us have dug the sequins out of the wardrobe, but with the show opening in November, the team are already feeling festive.

He then says to me: "Don't ask any difficult questions, as we've literally just started."

Fortunately I was planning a more general discussion about the show. Adapted by Mark Gatiss, it premiered at Nottingham Playhouse, transferred to London, and now comes to Birmingham Rep for nearly two months.

So rather than quiz Rufus on the symbolism of the fourth scene, I ask him why he wanted to be in the production.

"I've been a lifelong fan of Mark Gatiss, both as a writer of TV and sketch and as a novelist in his own right. I've read a lot of Mark Gatiss, and I'm fairly familiar with his taste and how he likes things to sit. There's always an element of real class and theatricality, so Mark's version of A Christmas Carol was always going to be very thrilling to me."

Rufus is playing the ghost of Jacob Marley, who visits the miser Ebenezer Scrooge (played by Matthew Cottle) on Christmas Eve. Marley warns Scrooge, his former business partner, to change his ways or suffer in the afterlife - just as Marley himself, who is laden with heavy chains, is doing.

"The role they were offering me in the show was the role Mark himself had played when it was first staged," says Rufus. "So the idea of being in something written by Mark Gatiss which Mark had ostensibly written for himself was too good an opportunity to miss."

Christmas Carols come in all shapes and sizes, and by including 'A Ghost Story' in its title and featuring an age recommendation of 12-plus, this production nails its colours firmly to the mast.

So how has Rufus, who first made his name as a stand-up comedian before moving into theatre and television drama, approached the challenge of creating the spooky Marley? "In this version of the show, Marley is the embodiment of the things Scrooge should be trying to avoid. With this version being a ghost story that's set at Christmas, Marley is all of the things that make the ghosts horrifying.

"In a funny kind of way, with Marley being Scrooge's ex-best friend, it makes him more scary. If we're walking down the street and see someone looking pretty scary, that's bad enough, but if we walk down the street and see someone we know looking really off, that's genuinely terrifying. I think Marley being the first ghost that Scrooge meets means he's the one that really sets Scrooge up for the transformative horror that is about to visit him."

Which moves us onto the subject of just why Charles Dickens' novella has remained so popular with audiences of films, television shows, musicals and stage drama.

"I think I'm probably not alone in that I know the story of A Christmas Carol intimately and yet I've never read it. I've never even been tempted to pick up a copy of it because some stories are just so prevalent.

"I don't think many kids much past the age of six wouldn't be familiar with the idea that an old miser who is mean to everyone and hates Christmas is visited by three ghosts, one from the past, one from the present and one from the future. And upon having it demonstrated to him just how wrong he's getting everything, he wakes up on Christmas morning with a different attitude altogether and sets about mending his evil ways. That, as an archetypal story, is one that every British person is aware of."

So much so, says Rufus, that nobody can resist having a go at adapting the Dickens classic.

"Now does that mean that you've then watched The Muppet Christmas Carol, or does it mean you've seen any one of the thousands of shows that have taken that blueprint and then made it their own?"

"There's a Blackadder version of A Christmas Carol; there's a Catherine Tate version of A Christmas Carol. I don't think there are many long-running TV shows which didn't get to the Christmas special and think 'We'd better do A Christmas Carol!' Even Upstart Crow did A Christmas Carol, and that was set 200 years before the thing was even written!

"As an archetypal tale, the idea that you could, on any given night, be visited by the ghosts of your past, present and future, who then ask you to take stock of yourself, is something that we are all familiar with, and also somewhat rely on for our own moral guidance.

"I think we all know that there's a difference between just getting on with what we were getting on with, and then having a moral pang of some kind that makes us think that maybe we shouldn't have done that."

Rufus' previous stage roles have included Sancho Panza in the Royal Shakespeare Company production of Don Quixote, Dennis' Dad in the RSC's adaptation of David Walliams' The Boy In The Dress, and Garry Essendine in Noel Coward's Present Laughter at Chichester Festival Theatre.

Now he's looking forward to performing A Christmas Carol: A Ghost Story at Birmingham Rep.

"I've spent a good bit of time in this bit of the Midlands. I've spent two years living in Stratford-upon-Avon pretty much. In my stand-up career, I did loads of gigs in Birmingham, in Kings Heath and places like that. I love Birmingham to pieces; it's one of my favourite places to be. I love the Midlands.

"Christmas can be a million things, many of them day-glo and sparkly, but it can also be a time to reflect. In that period of quiet contemplation, you may find yourself yearning for a story which has a little more meat on the bone, and a little more to say about the human condition than, for example, Sleeping Beauty might. And to those people, I would say, you'll find nothing finer on a stage in this country than A Christmas Carol at the Birmingham Rep."

Austentatious: An Improvised Jane Austen Novel

Birmingham Town Hall, Sun 24 November

Austentatious returns to the Midlands having garnered plenty of praise on its previous visits. Lighthearted and delightfully throwaway, the show sees the performers utilising audience suggestions to develop a play that not only pays homage to Jane Austen but also generates plenty of laughter along the way.

Performed in period costume with live musical accompaniment, the production is described by its publicity as 'a riotous, razor-sharp show where swooning is guaranteed'.

Looking For Me Friend

Old Joint Stock Theatre, Birmingham, Thurs 14 November; Stourbridge Town Hall, Tues 26 November; Black Heath Library, Sandwell, Fri 7 March

Eight years after Victoria Wood's untimely death, Paulus The Cabaret Geek is touring this well-reviewed tribute to the comedy legend. As well as providing a whistle-stop tour of some of Victoria's best-loved songs - including, of course, the iconic Ballad Of Barry & Freda (Let's Do It) - the show also aims to offer a beginner's guide to the comedian's career for anybody yet to discover her.

The Rat Pack - A Swingin' Christmas At The Sands

Victoria Hall, Stoke-on-Trent, Sat 30 November; Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Thurs 5 December

The warm and authentic friendship between Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin and Sammy Davis Jr - particularly during its heyday in the late 1950s and early 1960s - continues to be the stuff of legend.

The three superstar singers, affectionately known as The Rat Pack, were fun-loving guys who brought entertainment to millions with a nice'n'easy style it was hard to dislike... This seriously impressive touring show, paying loving tribute to Frank, Dean and Sammy, is packed to its yuletide rafters with memorable tunes - from Frank's My Way, through Dean's Amore, to Sammy's Mr Bojangles. It also features a host of festive favourites, including Winter Wonderland and White Christmas.

Tarot: Shuffle

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Fri 29 November

"We were the best show of 2019, according to Chortle," say Tarot. "And the sixth-best show of 2022, according to the Guardian. Come watch us continue our slow descent into mediocrity!"

They continue: "Joyously silly and uproariously live and in-the-room, we would call it improv, but we've got some self-respect: this is sketch in nighties. Come watch a new tour of big, daft and, above all, live comedy, conjured up in front of your very eyes..."

Tim Murray Is Witches

Old Joint Stock Theatre, Birmingham, Tues 19 & Wed 20 November

US comedian Tim Murray presents a tribute to the LGBTQIA community via a show about his favourite pop-culture witches, along the way making reference to The Craft, Wicked, Hocus Pocus' Sanderson Sisters and Sabrina the Teenage Witch.

"This show was such a risk," Tim told broadwayworld.com. "I thought it might be too niche, but instead it's made people feel so seen. The people who come to see it are so down to have a good time, and I think that because it's so specific, people just lose their minds for it."

Dazzling Diamonds

Stafford Gatehouse Theatre, Sat 16 November; Brierley Civic, Fri 21 February; Tamworth Assembly Rooms, Sat 22 February; Albany Theatre, Coventry, Sat 1 March

If you've been on the lookout for a comedy variety drag show, then your search is at an end! Bringing together 'high-energy dance routines, spectacular live vocals, side-splitting comedy sketches and spectacular costumes', Dazzling Diamonds features three critically acclaimed drag artists who are promising their audience an evening awash with 'glamour, laughter and fun'.

Dad's Army Radio Show

Prince of Wales Theatre, Cannock, Wed 13 November

You've seen the television show, now listen to the radio broadcast, with a pair of talented actors taking up position behind their microphones to play more than 25 characters between them.

Working from original radio scripts - many of the TV episodes of Dad's Army were remade for BBC Radio Four with the original cast - the actors will present three much-loved episodes of Jimmy Perry & David Croft's classic 1970s' sitcom, complete with sound effects and vintage music.

The Nutcracker

Birmingham Hippodrome, Fri 22 November - Sat 14 December

Sir Peter Wright’s version of this firm festive family favourite returns to the Hippodrome courtesy (of course) of Birmingham Royal Ballet. Created in 1990 as a thank-you to the city for its support of the company following its move to the Midlands from London’s Sadler Wells, Sir Peter’s production is seen by many as the finest interpretation of Tchaikovsky’s magnificent and mesmerising score. In true Christmas spirit, the story follows the young Clara as she’s swept up in a fantasy of soldiers, giant rats, snow fairies, magic and mystery, before finally being transformed into a beautiful ballerina. A magical, must-see show for theatre-going dance lovers everywhere, the production was two years ago enhanced by a £1million makeover. BRB’s first-ever ‘relaxed performance’ of The Nutcracker will take place on the 3rd of December at 12.45pm.

Imperial Classical Ballet: Swan Lake

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Mon 4 & Tues 5 November; Malvern Theatres, Sun 24 November

Imperial Classical Ballet here presents a spectacular production of a timeless classic. Set to Tchaikovsky’s mesmerising score, Swan Lake tells the story of Odette, a beautiful princess who, caught under the wicked spell of the evil Von Rothbart, must spend the daytime hours as a swan, returning to human form only when night falls... A sumptuous visual feast, Swan Lake is ideal not only for the seasoned dancer-goer but also the first-time trier.

Rhythm Of The Dance: Christmas Special

Lichfield Garrick, Wed 6 November; Malvern Theatres, Thurs 7 November; Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Sat 9 November; Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Mon 18 November

Rhythm Of The Dance has so far been seen in over 50 countries by more than seven million people. If you’re not yet among them, this latest version (coming complete with a collection of Christmas songs) provides a perfect opportunity to catch up with one of the most popular Irish step dance offerings in the world.

PCK Dance: Imago

Midlands Arts Centre, Birmingham, Wed 13 November

Following long and impressive careers with Company Wayne McGregor, elite dancers Travis Clausen-Knight and James Pett have teamed up to present what they describe as a sophisticated and daring dance duet.

“Imago is a very particular universe that you step into,” James explained to the website SeeingDance. “We want the audience to experience a sort of isolated island that they can really hone in on. Our ideas come from an immediate realisation of something in ourselves; our personal experience.

In Imago, it was about moments in relationships where we saw destructive behaviour, both in ourselves and in others.”

Gladiator II CERT tbc (150 mins)

Starring Paul Mescal, Pedro Pascal, Denzel Washington, Joseph Quinn, Connie Nielsen, Derek Jacobi Directed by Ridley Scott

Paul Mescal has certainly come a long way in a short time. Pretty much unknown five years ago, his big break arrived courtesy of Normal People, a television adaptation of the same-named novel by Sally Rooney, which was screened on BBC Three. Fast forward to 2024, and he's now starring in this blockbuster sequel to an equally blockbusting movie - with no less a legend than Ridley Scott taking the directorial reins! Mescal plays the part of Lucius Verus, a young man who is forced to enter the Colosseum after his home is conquered by the tyrannical emperors who rule Rome with an iron fist. With rage in his heart and the future of the Empire at stake, Lucius must look to his past and somehow find the strength required to return the glory of Rome to its people...

Released Fri 15 November

Heretic CERT 15 (110 mins)

Starring Hugh Grant, Sophie Thatcher, Chloe East, Elle Young, Julie Lynn Mortensen, Haylie Hansen Directed by Scott Beck and Bryan Woods

He may have become a major movie star via a talent for playing charming, foppish and engagingly bumbling young men in British romcoms, but Hugh Grant's career has taken a decidedly sinister turn in recent years. Having been a cinematic baddie in Paddington 2 and Dungeons & Dragons, and a suave but narcissistic oncologist who beats his mistress to death in television miniseries The Undoing, Grant now shifts into no-holds-barred diabolical mode in this critically acclaimed R-rated horror movie... When two young female Mormon missionaries, Sister Barnes and Sister Paxton, knock on the door of Mr Reed, they initially think he's a suitable candidate for conversion. But, after their conversation takes an unexpectedly dark turn, the sisters find themselves suddenly ensnared in a deadly game of cat-and-mouse...

Released Fri 1 November

Paddington In Peru

CERT PG (103 mins)

Starring Olivia Colman, Emily Mortimer, Antonio Banderas, Julie Walters and the voices of Imelda Staunton and Ben Whishaw Directed by Dougal Wilson

Given the sensational success of the original film and its sequel, the fact that Michael Bond's marmalade-sandwich-loving bear is returning for a third cinematic outing comes as absolutely no surprise.

This latest adventure sees Paddington and the Brown family heading to Peru to visit Aunt Lucy. But as you might expect, not everything goes entirely according to plan. Before too long, the intrepid travellers find themselves plunged into an unexpected mystery - one that sees them taking a perilous journey through the Amazon rainforest...

Watch out for a splendid turn from Antonio Banderas as a dashing riverboat captain.

Film highlights in November...

Wicked CERT PG

Starring Cynthia Erivo, Ariana Grande, Jonathan Bailey, Marissa Bode, Ethan Slater, Michelle Yeoh Directed by Jon M Chu

You've seen the stage musical (haven't you?), now check out the film - well, the first of two films, anyway.

The prequel to The Wizard Of Oz, Wicked offers a different and imaginative perspective on Frank L Baum's original much-loved story, chronicling the untold tale of the witches of Oz.

Focusing on the unlikely friendship between the misunderstood Elphaba - the future Wicked Witch of the West - and the popular Glinda - The Good Witch of the North - the story delves into the events leading up to Dorothy's unexpected arrival...

The sequel film, Wicked Part Two, is scheduled for release in November 2025.

Released Fri 22 November

Conclave CERT 12A (120 mins)

Starring Ralph Fiennes, Jacek Koman, Lucian Msamti, Stanley Tucci, John Lithgow, Isabella Rossellini Directed by Edward Berger

With the Pope dead, it falls to Cardinal Lawrence to lead the Conclave in the sober and serious business of selecting the new leader of the Catholic world.

But as high-ranking cardinals gather, Lawrence discovers a secret that could well shake the Church to its very foundations... This film adaptation of Robert Harris' 2016 novel is blessed with an all-star cast and a host of positive reviews.

Ralph Fiennes is seriously impressive as Lawrence. Having twice been an Academy Award nominee - for Schindler's List and The English Patient - there's every chance he might finally be taking Oscar home with him... And watch out, too, for Isabella Rossellini, who's in splendid scene-stealing form as an observant nun...

Conclave's director, Edward Berger, scored a massive success a couple of years back with epic anti-war film All Quiet On The Western Front.

Released Fri 29 November

Moana 2 CERT PG (100 mins)

With the voices of Auli'i Cravalho, Dwayne Johnson, Alan Tudyk, Rachel House, Temuera Morrison, Nicole Scherzinger Directed by David G Derrick Jr, Jason Hand and Dana Ledoux Miller

After enjoying an unexpected hit with the first film some eight years ago, Disney are now releasing this Moana sequel - and will no doubt have high expectations of a similarly impressive box-office return.

Set three years after the events of the original movie, the story finds Moana and Maui embarking on an expansive new voyage alongside a crew of unlikely seafarers. After receiving an unexpected call from her wayfinding ancestors, Moana journeys to the far seas of Oceania and into dangerous, long-lost waters 'for an adventure unlike anything she's ever faced'. Auli'i Cravalho and Dwayne Johnson once again lend their voices to the lead characters.

Released Fri 29 November

BMAG IS BACK!

Birmingham Museum & Art Gallery (BMAG) has reopened more of its spaces following four years of closure due to essential maintenance works.

A jewel in the city's crown, the venue is home to, among other treasures, the world's finest collection of art by the Pre-Raphaelites and a wealth of non-figurative contemporary British 20th-century paintings...

And there's plenty more to recommend BMAG, too. The architecture of the building alone is something at which to marvel, while the iconic tearooms provide the perfect stop-off in which to recharge your batteries and enjoy a cuppa or something more substantial.

New exhibitions showcasing Birmingham past and present, family-focused areas and a world-renowned touring exhibition mean that there's now more than ever to see and do at Birmingham Museum & Art Gallery.

The Bridge Gallery

New for 2024, Modern Muse by Arpita Shah is a series of photographic portraits celebrating the identities and experiences of young South Asian women from Birmingham and the West Midlands.

Arpita took the photographs in 2019, and each portrait is paired with snippets from conversations between her and her sitters. Discussing identity, heritage and representation, they answer the question 'Where do you come from?'

The series was commissioned by GRAIN Projects, with the acquisition funded by a gift in the Will of Tessa Sidey, 2022.

The display also features BMAG's important miniature portrait of Arjumand Banu Begum (Mumtaz Mahal) - the Taj Mahal was built as her tomb - and modern miniatures in the same style.

Industrial Gallery

This spectacular double height space features striking architectural design and imposing gas lights which serve as a reminder of the museum's history.

The Industrial Gallery is now home to Made In Birmingham - a new display exploring some of the characteristics of the city. The display looks beyond the stereotypes to examine the real Birmingham, providing a snapshot - from the 18th century to the present day - of the people, the places and the manufacturing which have helped make Birmingham what it is today.

The complicated relationship many people have with Birmingham is also explored, as is the sense of a warm welcome that the city and its inhabitants provide.

Birmingham as a city of makers - producing everything from HP Sauce to Cadbury's chocolate, buttons to bicycles, fancy metalwork to industrial metalwork, is also acknowledged.

The Round Room

The spectacular Round Room (left image) has showcased Birmingham's art collection for almost 150 years. It's also home to Jacob Epstein's bronze Lucifer and the much-loved penguins Dominicans In Feathers.

One Fresh Take is a new display about how art can be a way to see the world differently. The display features works by numerous renowned artists - from David Cox to Lubaina Himid, and Bridget Riley to Cold War Steve - each showcasing their own fresh take on places which have meaning for them.

Pixel Studio

A brand-new digital gallery and activity space, the Pixel Studio will facilitate screenings of digital work and provide immersive experiences created by local artists and producers. Collaborations using the collections as an inspiration, digital activities, games and workshops will also feature. Films currently on display - and repeated throughout the day - include The Tiny Spark and Excerpt: Mixed Milk.

The Tiny Spark is Pogus Caesar's 2023 film reimagining the 1985 Handsworth Riots. The film - which is on loan from the artist and runs for 16 minutes 44 seconds - includes poetry from Benjamin Zephaniah, a specially composed soundscape by eclectic underground artist Taber-Cayon, emotive performances from spoken-word artists Juice Aleem, Chauntelle Madondo and Samiir Saunders, and artworks by Caesar himself.

Excerpt: Mixed Milk is the work of Birmingham-based filmmaker, animator & artist Martin McNally. The film showcases selected details from museum objects in Birmingham's collection, re-sequencing and binding them according to their similarities, while at the same time exposing hidden narratives and shining a light on intimacy and connection.

The Industrial Gallery

Wild City

Two new galleries dedicated to children and families, Wild City tells stories about nature, wildlife and the natural environment in the past, present and future. It also explores the city's historic links to animals, encouraging children to look at and understand the nature we can see on our doorstep today, while also relaying children's hopes for the future. The space includes the famous portrait of the Official Rat Catcher to the City of Birmingham by Arthur Charles Shorthouse (1870 - 1953). Children's artworks and a small soft play and coffee area also feature.

Curtis Holder: Drawing Carlos Acosta

Curtis Holder, winner of Sky Arts' Portrait Artist Of The Year competition in 2020, was commissioned to draw Birmingham Royal Ballet's director, Carlos Acosta. The display features the Acosta drawing - and Holder's working sketches - as well as drawings of other familiar figures. Holder was inspired by some of the Pre-Raphaelite art in the city collection. Six of the Briar Rose Series by Edward Burne-Jones (1833 - 1898) are also on display.

Temporary Exhibitions

Deviance & Difference

Artworks by graduates from Birmingham City University's School of Art here sit alongside pieces from the museum's historic art collection, with works by Francis Bacon, Donald Rodney and Barbara Hepworth all featuring. The display is curated by internationally acclaimed artist Osman Yousefzada, who has created a way for the artworks to talk to each other, combining pieces from Birmingham's collection with his de-colonial teaching practice. The graduates' artworks are shown next to pieces from the city's collection, and together they create new ideas and connections that might not have been noticed. Showing until Sunday 8 December.

Wildlife Photographer Of The Year

This returning exhibition, on loan from the Natural History Museum in London, features a wealth of exceptional imagery and showcases photographic skills in a number of different categories, with participants hailing from 117 countries and territories all over the world. Showing until Sunday 20 April 2025.

Painted Dreams: The Art Of Evelyn De Morgan

Wolverhampton Art Gallery, until Sun 9 March

Pre-Raphaelite artist Mary Evelyn Pickering De Morgan (1855 - 1919) painted in an elegant style inspired by Italian Renaissance paintings - particularly the work of Botticelli - and often featured female figures and mythological or allegorical subjects in her work.

Wolverhampton Art Gallery is currently displaying 30 of De Morgan's oil paintings and drawings, recreating an exhibition which was held at the venue in 1907.

The original show, the largest of De Morgan's career, certainly made an impression. One reviewer at the Wolverhampton Express & Star newspaper called the pictures "painted dreams", an evocative description which has provided the gallery's current exhibition with its title.

The artworks, here reunited for the first time in more than 100 years, have been loaned from private collections and by the Trustees of the De Morgan Foundation.

Visual Arts previews from around the region

Wildlife Photographer Of The Year

Birmingham Museum & Art Gallery, until Sunday 20 April

“We are facing urgent biodiversity and climate crises, and photography is a powerful catalyst for change.” So says Dr Doug Gurr, director of the Natural History Museum, which has developed and produced this prestigious competition. “As we celebrate 60 years of Wildlife Photographer Of The Year,” adds Dr Gurr, “we also celebrate the generations of visitors who have been inspired by the beauty and majesty of its images, and the millions of connections made with nature.” Visiting Birmingham as part of an extensive national and international tour, the show features a host of awe-inspiring images capturing fascinating animal behaviour and breathtaking landscapes.

Material Worlds: Contemporary Artists And Textiles

Mead Gallery, Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, until Sun 15 December

Hayward Gallery Touring’s new exhibition explores how simple everyday materials are being used to surprise and provoke, ‘creating worlds and telling stories ranging from the personal to the cosmic’. Speaking about the show, its curator, Caroline Achaintre, said: “I wanted the exhibition to emphasise the transition from something quite everyday, domestic and supposedly unspectacular, into the creation of fantastical and extraordinary works, worlds, and visions.”

Rae-Yen Song, song dynasty (2021)

Peace And Noise: Sounds Of The Landscape

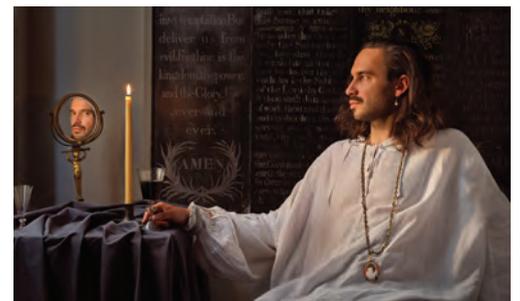

Barber Institute, Birmingham, Sat 16 November - Sunday 26 January

Peace And Noise aims to introduce visitors to the elements of implied sound evident in historical landscapes. The exhibition brings together some of the most sonically interesting examples of landscape prints and watercolours in the Barber’s collection, from rural Dutch scenes of the 17th century, through Gainsborough’s drawings of the rolling English countryside, to noisy, bustling Hogarth cityscapes.

The Reflected Self: Portrait Miniatures 1540 - 1850

Compton Verney, Warwickshire, until Sun 23 February

Across a period exceeding 300 years, portrait miniature paintings created in Britain performed numerous functions. Not only did they serve as emblems of love and loyalty, they were also used as markers of royal favour and exchanged as diplomatic gifts between foreign courts. Compton Verney’s current exhibition celebrates these exquisitely painted portable portraits, bringing together artwork from the gallery’s own collection with important loans from the Dumas Egerton Trust Collection and private lenders. Work by contemporary artists - demonstrating the miniatures’ ongoing relevance and ability to captivate - also features.

Waste Age: What Can Design Do?

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, until Sun 23 February

MAC’s first collaboration with the Design Museum is a group exhibition focusing on a new generation of designers who are ‘rethinking our relationship to everyday things’. Telling the story of the environmental crisis, the show explores how design can transform waste into valuable resources. The exhibition features a new sculptural commission - created by Birmingham-based artist Abdulrazaq Awofeso - which has been inspired by clothes waste markets in Nigeria.

Greener Glass

Stourbridge Glass Museum, until Sun 27 July

With an emphasis on eco-friendly practices and the artistic exploration of environmental themes, the future of glassmaking is brought firmly into focus in this long-running exhibition. The show - co-curated by UK artists in collaboration with University of Birmingham students - features a diverse array of glass artworks produced using a wide range of techniques, including kiln work, glass blowing, mosaic, flame working and cast glass.
