Live music from across the region...

Public Image Ltd

hmv Empire, Coventry, Sat 10 January

Widely regarded as one of the most influential bands of all time, Public Image Ltd's music and vision has led to numerous UK top-20 singles and albums.

Frontman John Lydon, or Johnny Rotten to some, guided the band from debut album First Issue in 1978 through to 1992's That What Is Not. The group's personnel has changed frequently over the years, with Lydon being the only constant member. After a 17-year hiatus, the band re-formed in 2009, and have spent plenty of time out on the road in the ensuing years.

The Orielles

The Tin At The Coal Vaults, Coventry, Wed 28 January

The Orielles' origin story is an unusual one. Coming together at a Halifax house party, they decided to form a band - even though sisters Esme and Sidonie Hand-Halford couldn't actually play any instruments... "We decided, why not make a band," Esme told Yorkshire Live. "We all got on and had the same idea about how we wanted to sound. When we first started out, we were much more of a post-punk band - the surf-pop sound came about as we naturally developed."

Martyn Joseph

Huntingdon Hall, Worcester, Thurs 29 January

Modern folk artist Martyn Joseph is a unique performer who is driven by passion, social awareness, and an abiding love for his trade.

"Really, what I do is try to write songs that might step up and make some sense of a moment in time," explains Martyn, whose career has spanned 40-plus years, during which time he's made 27 studio albums and accumulated more than half a million record sales. "A good song makes you feel like you're not alone in the world."

Krooked Tongue

Drummonds Bar, Worcester, Tues 27 January

Modern alt-rock favourites like Death From Above, Highly Suspect and Royal Blood are among the bands to have influenced and inspired Bristol-based underground rock trio Krooked Tongue, who've steadily been making a name for themselves since the release of their critically acclaimed debut EP, No Vacancy Hotel, a few years back. Their late-month Worcester stop-off comes in advance of debut studio album I Know A Place, currently slated for release on Friday 24 April.

Rob Lamberti presents: Perfectly George

Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Sat 31 January

Now here's a show that no self-respecting George Michael fan will want to miss. Quality counterfeit Rob Lamberti's homage to the late superstar-singer features music from across George's career - from the high-energy 80s pop of Wham!, all the way through to some of the best-known numbers from his time as a solo artist.

The Swaps

Temperance, Leamington Spa, Wed 14 January

It's taken local band The Swaps a good while to capture people's attention, but they're certainly basking in the limelight of national recognition now, having been finalists in the 2025 UK Blues Awards. Building their blend of blues, soul and folk around Beth Brooks' incredible vocals, the trio's Temperance appearance this month sees them sharing the bill with Hammond organist Stevie Watts and singer-songwriter Rachel Croft. As ever, there will be an extended jam at the end, featuring unrehearsed collaborations 'and the excitement of seeing talented musicians perform together for the very first time'.

The Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment

Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Wed 28 January

Much-loved period-instrument ensemble The Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment head to Coventry late this month to present an evening of music both written and inspired by Mozart.

The programme features the composer's A Little Night Music and Clarinet Concerto swan-song, presented alongside an elegant Overture from Arriaga (aka the Spanish Mozart) and an entertaining Divertimento from Michael Haydn.

CBSO: Viennese New Year

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Sun 4 January

Symphony Hall welcomes in the new year with an afternoon concert performed by the City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra. Highly rated soprano Jennifer France lends her incredible voice to proceedings, as Nil Venditti conducts a selection of playful polkas and wonderful waltzes.

The programme is approximately two hours in length and includes Die Fledermaus Overture, Champagne Galop, Blue Danube and Mein Herr Marquis.

Orchestra Of The Swan: Night Music

Warwick Hall, Sun 25 January

An exploration of the varied sound world of the string orchestra lies at the heart of the Orchestra of the Swan's opening concert of 2026. Alongside performances of Mozart's Eine Kleine Nachtmusik and Tchaikovsky's Serenade For Strings, Night Music also features Richter's On The Nature Of Daylight and Piazzolla's Double Concerto For Accordion, Guitar And Strings, for which guitarist Craig Ogden and accordion player Miloš Milivojević (pictured) join the orchestra. The concert has a 3pm start-time.

London Handel Players

Huntingdon Hall, Worcester, Sun 25 January

"From the smallest forces, duos, trios and quartets," explain the London Handel Players, "our ensemble expands to flute and recorder with strings and harpsichord to present a vast repertoire of gems from the 17th and 18th centuries."

Currently celebrating their 25th season of concert performances, the Players' Huntingdon Hall programme sees them performing compositions by, among others, Telemann, Hotteterre, Rameau, JS Bach, and of course, Handel.

The National Youth Orchestra

Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Mon 5 January

Kickstart 2026 by going on an 'unforgettable musical journey' with some of the country's finest young musicians.

The evening's programme features Debussy's Iberia, Karim Al Zand's vibrant soundscape of urban life, City Scenes, Anna Clyne's DANCE - with soloist Inbal Segev - and Maurice Ravel's Rapsodie Espagnole. The concert is free to attend for teenagers up to the age of 19.

Royal String Quartet

Holy Trinity Church, Leamington Spa, Fri 16 January

Bringing artistic ingenuity, a penchant for exploration, and a seemingly limitless exuberance to their concerts, Poland's Royal String Quartet have been making music together for the last quarter of a century, during which time they've picked up numerous prestigious awards and nominations. This month returning to the Midlands under the Leamington Music banner, they're performing a concert programme which features Mozart's String Quartet No13 in D minor, K173, Grażyna Bacewicz's String Quartet No4, and Brahms' String Quartet No2 in A minor, Op51 No2.

Comedy previews from across the region...

Milton Jones

Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Tues 27 January; Artrix, Bromsgrove, Wed 4 February; Rugeley Rose Theatre, Thurs 5 February; Civic Centre, Stourport, Fri 6 February

With a style of humour that's mainly based around puns and one-liners, Milton Jones has established himself as one of Britain's most in-demand funnymen. "If my comedy is working well, I put a cartoon in people's heads that surprises them," explains Milton. "So you start off and they're thinking one thing, then you surprise them by changing the ending as you go along. It's not political or particularly edgy, it's just daft." Gags include: "Militant feminists - I take my hat off to them. They don't like that," and, "Recently on a flight to America, all the way across, my wife was going, 'Why don't you get an upgrade, why don't you get an upgrade?' It took a bit of time, but in the end I got a better wife."

Comedy All Stars

Dudley Town Hall, Sat 24 January

The organisers of this first-ever Comedy All Stars night are very much starting as they mean to go on, presenting a bill that features four seriously talented comedians. Headliner Sara Pascoe (pictured) is joined for the show by Rhys James and Midlands-born comics Sarah Keyworth and Josh Pugh.

Matt Forde

Glee Club, Birmingham, Wed 28 January; Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Wed 4 March; Huntingdon Hall, Worcester, Wed 15 April; Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Thurs 4 June

A one-time advisor to New Labour (he gave up his membership of the party when Jeremy Corbyn became leader), Nottingham-born Matt Forde is this month returning to the Midlands with Defying Calamity, a show in which he aims to 'find positivity in life, despite all the evidence to the contrary in politics and his own health' (Matt was diagnosed with a rare form of bone cancer in 2023 but is now disease-free).

The Eternal Shame of Sue Perkins

Birmingham Town Hall, Fri 23 January; Malvern Theatres, Sat 24 January; Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Sun 25 January; Warwick Art Centre, Coventry, Sat 14 March

Here presenting her first stand-up show in more than a decade, Bake-Off, Taskmaster and Just A Minute star Sue Perkins is promising 'a hilarious treatise on stigma, humiliation and misunderstanding'. In the process, she's aiming to answer a tsunami of questions: what's the fallout when your pituitary gland goes haywire on live TV? How do you convince the public you didn't really fall onto that Hoover attachment? And when intimate photos get splashed all over the internet, how do you switch the shame to dignity and joy?

Mark Simmons

Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Sat 31 January; New Vic Theatre, Newcastle-under-Lyme, Mon 2 March; Lichfield Garrick, Thurs 2 April; Huntingdon Hall, Worcester, Thurs 7 May; Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Fri 8 May; Stafford Gatehouse, Thurs 17 September

A runner-up in the Top 10 Jokes of the Edinburgh Fringe competition in 2022 - "Did you know, if you get pregnant in the Amazon, it's next-day delivery" - Mark Simmons went one better in 2024, emerging from the summertime get-together in the Scottish capital with the Funniest Joke award: "I was going to sail around the globe in the world's smallest ship, but I bottled it." And there's plenty more where those little gems came from, with Mark's talent for one-liners knowing no bounds. He's visiting Coventry this month with brand-new show Jest To Impress.

Phil Wang And Guests!

Lichfield Garrick, Fri 16 January

Phil Wang's first-ever five minutes behind the mic as a stand-up comedian were spent telling other people's gags. "I thought stand-up was like karaoke with jokes," he recalls. "Most of the material I used was stolen, but I learned fast and immediately started writing my own material." Inspired to become a comedian by his desire to avoid having to get up in the mornings, Phil describes his style of humour as smart, cheeky and always changing. He's sharing the Garrick spotlight mid-month with Tom Ward and Shaparak Khorsandi.

Pantomimes continuing into January

Dick Whittington

Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury,
until Sun 4 January

Telling the terrific tale of a young man who heads for London in search of fame and fortune, Dick Whittington makes for a fantastic pantomime - not least because of the top adventures in which the happy-go-lucky title character finds himself involved...

If you're a dyed-in-the-wool fan of the Theatre Severn panto experience, you'll be delighted to know that this year's offering is following the usual recipe for success.

What does that mean in practice? Well, to put some meat on the bone, it means Telford-born Paul Hendy is writing it, Evolution is producing it, and Brad Fitt is both starring in it and taking the directorial reins.

"There are pantos out there that go a bit near the knuckle - but I don't think ours does," says Brad. "I would never tell a joke that was offensive or rude. Sometimes, you can use a double entendre - but then that's in your mind, that's not me. You have to blame yourself!"

Aladdin

The Core, Solihull, until Sun 4 January;
Palace Theatre, Redditch, until Sun 4 January

A perfect story for an evening of family-friendly entertainment finds street youth Aladdin trying against all odds to win the hand of the beautiful princess - and being helped in his endeavours by the mystical genie of the lamp...

At Solihull's Core Theatre (image below), the award-winning Little Wolf Entertainment are presenting their 'most lavish, action-packed family adventure yet'...

Meanwhile, there's an all-star cast adding to the panto magic in Redditch (image above), with children's favourite Dave Benson-Phillips, soap star Bill Ward (Coronation Street and Emmerdale) and Britain's Got Talent's Tony Rudd topping the bill.

Beauty And The Beast

The Albany Theatre, Coventry,
until Sun 4 January

When a young woman is captured by a hideous beast, she finds herself facing a life of isolation in his mysterious palace. The Beast, too, is trapped - seemingly forever - inside the grotesquery of his physical appearance, the consequence of a spell cast upon him by an evil witch. Only Beauty's ability to look beyond his ugliness and see the person within can save him...

Coventry's Albany Theatre is proudly declaring its version of the much-loved fairytale to be 'a dazzling alternative to the traditional Christmas show'. The production comes complete with 'bold storytelling, breathtaking visuals, music and dance'.

Robinson Crusoe

Oldbury Rep Theatre, Fri 9 - Sat 17 January

It's Robinson Crusoe, but not as you know it! This amateur take on the world-famous story features a few elements not found in the Daniel Defoe original, among which are a pantomime Dame and an evil seafarer named Captain Blacktashe. Heck, there's even a fish & chip shop!

So, if you fancy treating yourself to one final dose of traditional Christmastime merriment before the curtain finally comes down on this winter's pantomime season, be sure to grab yourself a ticket asap.

Mother Goose

Stourbridge Town Hall, Sat 17 - Sat 24 January

Just when you thought you were pretty much bidding a fond farewell to pantomime fare for another year, up pops this late arrival on the Midlands panto scene.

Telling the much-loved story of a kindly old lady who's behind on her rent, and a magical goose whose golden eggs might just save her bacon, the production is presented by the award-winning Stourbridge Pantomime Company.

Peter Pan

Royal Spa Centre, Leamington Spa,
until Sun 4 January

Fly away to Neverland with the boy who wouldn't grow up, meet a real fairy, marvellous mermaids, wonderful Wendy and the down-on-their-luck lost boys. Oh, and beware the ever-so-wicked Captain Hook and a very hungry crocodile who goes tick-tock (he swallowed a clock!).

JP McCue and Sean Dodds have made a welcome return for this year's festive family show, which is being produced by pantomime specialists Imagine Theatre.

Cinderella

Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, until Sun 4 January; The ICC, Telford, until Fri 2 January; Lichfield Garrick, until Sun 11 January

With its comical Ugly Sisters, matchmaking fairy godmother, drop-dead-gorgeous Prince Charming, super-cute mice, and fits-one-foot-only glass slipper, Cinderella can justifiably lay claim to being the nation's favourite pantomime story...

The Garrick's version of Cinders (image below) sees a 'Dame of longstanding' take centre-stage; namely, Sam Rabone, who has spent many a festive season in a nice frock or several at the venue. Panto regular Ben Thornton is back too, taking on the role of Buttons...

In Stoke-on-Trent, Jonathan Wilkes leads the Regent Theatre pantomime cast as usual, and is joined by Potteries panto favourite Kai Owen, while the ICC Telford version of the much-loved fairytale is promising 'an unforgettable experience for children and adults alike'.

Robin Hood Birmingham Hippodrome, until Sun 1 February

As if Robin Hood didn't already have enough on his plate dealing with the dastardly Sheriff of Nottingham and wooing the beautiful Maid Marion, the festive season also finds Sherwood Forest's most famous resident getting tangled up in all manner of pantomime traditions (custard pie, anyone?). Gok Wan, Faye Tozer and Matt Cardle here join Hippodrome panto regular Matt Slack, who's playing Robin, for 'the ultimate sheriff-busting pantomime extravaganza'. Christopher Biggins makes a special appearance as King Richard, with Andrew Ryan and Sandra Marvin completing the high-quality line-up.

Sleeping Beauty

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, until Sat 3 January; Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, until Sun 4 January; Worcester Swan Theatre, until Sun 4 January; Stafford Gatehouse Theatre, until Sun 4 January

The tragic tale of a young princess who's tricked by an evil fairy and pricks her finger on a spinning wheel, causing her to fall asleep for 100 years, offers a great story around which to build a pantomime production of real quality... And this festive season has seen four of the region's most popular theatres doing exactly that!

RuPaul's Drag Race UK winner Danny Beard top-bills in Wolverhampton, where the cast also includes impressionist Debra Stephenson and much-loved pantomime favourites Tam Ryan and Ian Adams. Over at the Coventry Belgrade, panto veteran Iain Lauchlan is, as usual, the creative force behind the venue's festive-season offering, while at the Swan Theatre, the Worcester Repertory Company are promising a 'dazzling production' that comes complete with fairies, magic, and heaps of traditional panto fun. The Sleeping Beauty is getting her head down at Stafford's Gatehouse Theatre too, with Mark Rhodes, David Phipps-Davis and Samantha Spragg all making a welcome return to Pantoland.

CHART ATTACK

and one of the greatest rivalries in rock history

A brand-new comedy, about how the race for a number-one single gripped an entire nation, premieres at The Rep in Birmingham next month. Writer John Niven explains how The Battle between Blur and Oasis made national news in the summer of 1995, and why it's worth revisiting in 2026...

The first must-see play of 2026 has its roots in the gloriously hot summer of 1995, when the main item on the British media's agenda - other than ways to avoid overexposure to the blazing sunshine - was the red-hot race for number one between Blur and Oasis.

The hugely popular bands and their fans had developed (some might say manufactured) a rivalry that somehow encompassed the north-south divide as well as working versus middle class. That rivalry only intensified when they released new singles on exactly the same day.

The race between Country House and Roll With It (spoiler alert: the former came out on top) was fuelled by management and marketing teams as much as the bands themselves. This is a key premise of The Battle, a brand-new comedy 'based (mostly) on real events' by award-winning author John Niven (pictured).

Best known for Kill Your Friends, a hilarious music-industry satire set at the height of Britpop (he worked for record label Independent at the time, and famously passed on the chance to sign Coldplay), the Scottish author was initially reticent about writing a play when producer Simon Friend first approached him about doing so.

"I wondered if he was after a Britpop musical, and that's not really what I do," John explains in a glorious central Scottish brogue barely dented by years of living south of the border. "Then I thought there might be a really funny comedy, a sort of David Mamet piece, of men screaming at each other in rooms about something which, when you pull the camera back, is really ridiculous - two pop records; who cares?"

"I thought if we could invest it with the sort of drama of the Cuban missile crisis, it could be really funny."

The seed sown, John dived into research, as well as his own recollections of the industry at the time, and was instantly reminded that the feuding bands had actually started off as comrades in arms.

"I was there in February 1995, and I remember Damon Albarn holding up the Brit Award for Best British Group and saying it should be shared with Oasis, with much love and respect to them. I also found an interview with Noel Gallagher from the same night where he said: 'It's us and Blur against the world now.' But then in August, you have Noel saying he wanted them to get AIDS and die - that's quite a dramatic arc in the course of five months! How do you get from one to the other? It was quite fun unpicking how it happened."

That fun is what fuels the play, which is John's first. He's penned a number of novels and screenplays, but admits he found writing for the stage a huge learning curve.

"If you're writing a movie, you can just put 'cut to Central Park' or whatever, and you don't have to care because it's somebody else's job to hire the camels, train the camels and so on. You can't do that in the theatre. You're much more limited - not in your imagination or what the characters can say, but in terms of where you can go. The 10/12-minute scenes felt very long to me, and it took a bit of getting used to."

Fortunately he had great characters to write about, not least the Gallagher brothers, who he describes as an absolute gift.

"Liam Gallagher is just a joy to write, because you can have him say something pretty crazy and then go online and within a minute find five interviews where he's said something 10 times crazier. His brain works in quite an odd way in terms of whether he's going for metaphors or similes, and that's a gift for a writer."

"Noel talks like a stand-up comedian - his speech is very structured and precise, his timing's impeccable, and he knows how to land a gag. He's great with understatement and exaggeration, and that's fun to write in a different way, whereas Liam's much more unscripted and untutored - you almost can't guess where he's gonna go."

John says putting members of the bands at the heart of the play was never his original intention - the first draft was more about record-company executives and the machinations of the industry - but once he started to do so, he really began to enjoy the process.

"As I went through the drafts, it became less and less about the record-company people. Alan McGee's in it, the Creation Records boss who signed Oasis, and Andy Ross, the A&R guy who signed Blur, because the bands have to receive news of what's happening, so we needed a conduit to do that.

"But as soon as I started writing it by jumping between the two band's camps, it became much more fun."

The play's release misses out on the 30th anniversary of the chart race by a year, but the overwhelming response to the Oasis reunion shows, and the potential for more gigs this year (at the time of writing, a glorious return to Knebworth is rumoured), will undoubtedly fuel interest in the show - another gift, given that Liam and Noel's reconciliation was never even on the cards when The Battle was written.

"By the time we open in February, hopefully Knebworth shows will very much be on the horizon. But I don't think interest in Oasis is going anywhere, is it? I went to the show in Edinburgh with Irvine Welsh, and to see 80,000 people singing every word to every song was just unreal. I like both bands, but I couldn't explain to you why Oasis' music has tattooed itself into the DNA of British people in a way that no other band bar The Beatles has done."

"In the play, there's a line from Justine Frischmann [Elastica singer and one-time girlfriend of Albarn], who makes the point that Damon writes about British people very brilliantly and perceptively, but Noel writes for them. He articulates yearnings and feelings that they don't quite know they have in a non-specific way - and there's something hugely appealing to a lot of people about that."

Judging by the audience demographic at the Oasis reunion shows, that includes younger admirers potentially oblivious to a 30-year-old feud which took place before they were even born.

"Yeah, absolutely. It's funny with the new-generation fans - they kinda know there was some historical gangland beef between the two tribes, but not how it started, what it was about or how it ended. That's all great for us!"

The Battle shows at The Rep, Birmingham, from Wednesday 11 February to Saturday 7 March

Blood Brothers

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Tues 27 - Sat 31 January; Lichfield Garrick, Tues 19 - Sat 23 May; Birmingham Hippodrome, Tues 20 - Sat 24 October; Malvern Theatres, Tues 17 - Sat 21 November

Genuinely moving, surprisingly funny, and filled with all of Willy Russell's usual astute observations about the British class system, Blood Brothers tells the story of twins, separated at birth, who spend their lives in contrasting social circumstances but are inextricably drawn together. A musical loved even by theatre-goers who don't love musicals, the show boasts a raft of memorable songs, including Bright New Day, Marilyn Monroe and the emotionally charged Tell Me It's Not True.

All Is But Fantasy

The Other Place, Stratford-upon-Avon, Wed 21 January - Sat 21 February

Hailed as a groundbreaking theatrical event, All Is But Fantasy focuses on four Shakespeare characters - Lady Macbeth, Juliet, Emilia and Richard III - and poses the question: can you have ambition and love and still be alive in Act Five?

Whitney White is the award-winning artist in search of an answer to that particular conundrum, presenting two high-energy gig-theatre performances that bring together rock, soul, pop and gospel music. Whitney is ably assisted in her endeavours by Macbeth's three witches as backing singers!

Six The Musical

Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, Tues 20 - Sat 31 January; Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Tues 25 - Sat 28 March; Birmingham Hippodrome, Tues 31 March - Sat 11 April

From Tudor queens to battling boss-women, the 2022 Tony Award-winning Six The Musical sees the wives of Henry VIII take to the stage 'to remix 500 years of historical heartbreak' and tell their own versions of their lives...

A colourful show that sits somewhere between a Girls Aloud gig and a traditional musical, the one-act production - premiered at the Edinburgh Fringe in 2017, where it was performed by a group of Cambridge University students - is a loud and proud 80-minute celebration of 21st-century girl power.

The show sees the cast being ably supported by all-female band The Ladies In Waiting.

Sherlock Holmes And The Twelve Days Of Christmas

The Rep, Birmingham, until Sun 18 January

Think Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber and three critically acclaimed musicals come to mind: Joseph And The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat, Jesus Christ Superstar and Evita.

Now, a new show has been added to the list of productions on which the legendary pair have collaborated: Sherlock Holmes And The Twelve Days Of Christmas.

A Birmingham Rep production created in association with Rice's company, Heartaches Ltd, the brand-new comedy whodunnit - penned by and starring The Penny Dreadfuls' Humphrey Ker and David Reed - finds Sherlock Holmes and Dr Watson investigating a series of murders most foul in Victorian London's theatreland...

And what's more, each of the grisly crimes comes complete with an intriguing link to The Twelve Days Of Christmas...

The game, as Sherlock is famous for saying, is most definitely afoot...

Fiddler On The Roof

The Alexandra, Birmingham, until Sat 3 January

After winning last year's Olivier Award for Best Musical Revival, director Jordan Fein's acclaimed version of Fiddler On The Roof headed out on a national tour in the autumn and has spent Christmas in Birmingham. The show's story follows Tevye - an impoverished milkman and the father of five daughters - as he desperately attempts to maintain his family and religious traditions in the face of troublesome outside influences...

The show's hit songs include Matchmaker, Matchmaker and the hugely famous If I Were A Rich Man.

The Forsyte Saga

Swan Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, until Sat 10 January

An epic family drama, written by Nobel Prize winner John Galsworthy and here adapted for the stage by Lin Coghlan and Shaun McKenna, The Forsyte Saga shows in Stratford-upon-Avon this month having received rave reviews during its sell-out run at London's Park Theatre last year. Presented in two parts and telling a story of love, ownership, and the end of Empire, the production is set across a time period of more than 40 years, from 1886 to 1927.

Done To Death, By Jove

Central Library, West Bromwich, Mon 19 January; The Edge Arts Centre, Much Wenlock, South Shropshire, Sat 31 January

Fun-loving duo Gavin Robertson and Nicholas Collett blend humour, variety, theatre and dance in a show that pays spoof homage to 'the great British detective'. The production is based around the idea that its cast of six has become a cast of two due to an M6 breakdown of the van carrying the props, the set and four of the performers. The intrepid remaining cast members, Messrs Robertson and Collett, are therefore left to present the show on their own - an endeavour which, not surprisingly, leads to all manner of mix-ups and mayhem.

The Little Mermaid

New Vic Theatre, Newcastle-under-Lyme, until Sat 24 January

Hans Christian Andersen's famous fairytale tells the much-loved story of a beautiful mermaid princess who believes a better life awaits her out of the water...

Adapted for the stage by Theresa Heskins, who co-directs with Vicki Dela Amedume, this brand-new production features the New Vic's signature blend of impressive circus skills and imaginative storytelling.

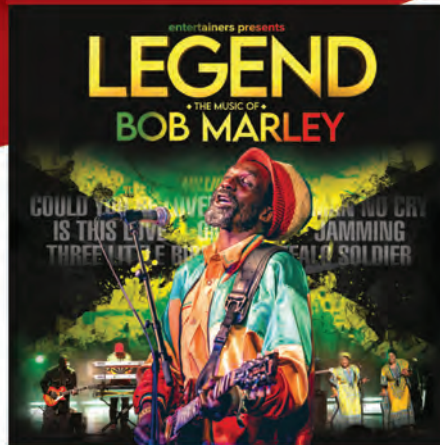

"There's such rich visual language in the story of The Little Mermaid," says Theresa. "Our audience members have been captivated by the way we combine contemporary circus and storytelling, and this is a perfect opportunity to bring these elements together into our biggest family show of the year."

Theatre previews from around the region

The BFG

Royal Shakespeare Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, until Sat 7 February

Roald Dahl's delightful tale, written way back in 1982, is here given the Royal Shakespeare Company Christmas-show treatment.

The story follows the adventures of a little girl named Sophie, who's taken to a magical land by the Big Friendly Giant (or BFG, for short). There, he teaches her whizzpopping, shows her his secret collection of dreams, and lets her taste his extraordinary food, the snozzcumber. When it becomes apparent a tribe of man-eating giants are planning to rampage through England, Sophie and the BFG realise they must save the country from unprecedented disaster...

Sweet Henry V

The Rep, Birmingham, Fri 23 & Sat 24 January

As evenings at the theatre go, this one promises to be somewhat unusual...

A script-in-hand concert performance, Sweet Henry V (here pronounced Vee) is described by its publicity in the following way:

'Imagine if Shakespeare's history plays donned their lippy and heels and were taken out for a night on the tiles... We're talking Hamilton meets Braveheart meets Priscilla Queen Of The Desert in this radical reinvention of history that's pounding with camp Celtic vibes'.

Written by Seiriol Davies - a playwright from 'rurales Wales' who specialises in 'fierce, camp musicals that attack knotty political questions in a cloud of glitter' - the production is helmed by The Rep's artistic director, Joe Murphy.

Please Do Not Touch

Patrick Studio, Birmingham Hippodrome, Thurs 29 - Sat 31 January

The Coventry Belgrade here teams up with local theatre company China Plate to present an ambitious play which not only shines a light on the criminal justice system but also aims to ask important questions about colonial legacy, contested heritage, and how stories are told.

Written by former Birmingham Poet Laureate Casey Bailey - who previously made a splash as a playwright with the critically acclaimed Grimeboy - Please Do Not Touch follows the fortunes of committed activist Mason.

A young man who finds himself incarcerated, he determines to keep fighting injustice, even as the system against which he rails seeks to shut him down...

The Guy Who Didn't Like Musicals

Stafford Gatehouse Theatre, Fri 23 & Sat 24 January

When a meteor hits and causes an alien outbreak, an awful Grinch named Paul teams up with a group of pals to try and save the world from his biggest nightmare... musical theatre!

Having enjoyed a hit with previous theatrical endeavour The Trail To Oregon, Puzzles Productions here make a welcome return with what they're billing as a 'horror comedy'. The show is suitable for audience members aged 13 and older.

Sherlock Holmes: The Hunt For Moriarty

Malvern Theatres, Tues 13 - Sat 17 January

The ever-audacious Blackeyed Theatre have excellent form when it comes to Sherlock Holmes, having previously scored successes with stage adaptations of two novels featuring the famous fictional detective: The Sign Of Four and The Valley Of Fear.

This latest foray into the world of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's Victorian supersleuth sees them creating a show that's a little bit different from either of those predecessors. "We've pulled together a handful of wonderful short stories," explains writer & director Nick Lane, "and interwoven them into one singular, thrilling tale featuring Holmes' most feared but little-seen adversary, Professor Moriarty. It's been fun capturing the pace, the spirit, and the character of Doyle's original adventures. Our hope is that, like the stories themselves, The Hunt For Moriarty will keep audiences gripped - and guessing - along with the great detective himself, right to the last."

The Woman In Black

The Alexandra, Birmingham, Tues 27 - Sat 31 January

Solicitor Arthur Kipp believes that his family have somehow been cursed by a mysterious woman in black. In an attempt to tell his story, and to exorcise the evil curse which he's convinced hangs over him, he hires a young actor to assist him in recounting his experiences...

Adapted by Stephen Mallatratt from the same-named Susan Hill novel, The Woman In Black is a classic ghost story first performed in 1989. It has since become one of the West End's most successful plays and was memorably made into a film starring Daniel Radcliffe in 2012.

Theatre for younger audiences

No Such Thing As Wolves

Birmingham Hippodrome, until Sun 4 January

Following on from the success of Christmas 2024 show The Jingleclaw, this fun-filled family musical - created by Horrible Histories' Gerard Foster and Richie Webb - is the second of the Hippodrome's My First Musical commissions.

Directed by Emily Ling Williams, No Such Thing As Wolves follows Hettie the Hedgehog as she opts to throw a party instead of settling down into hibernation.

"I think it's such a feelgood show," says Emily. "There's such a sense of how important friendship is, family, and also appreciating the natural world. I think it's really uplifting - there are definitely lots of jokes. I think people of all ages will find it very funny."

Search For The Second Star, Reimagined

The Rep, Birmingham, Sat 24 January

Described as an immersive adventure through Neverland that's full of music, play and discovery, this variation on the much-loved story of Peter Pan is presented by the highly regarded Open Theatre. The Coventry-based company, which specialises in non-verbal physical theatre with young people with learning disabilities, uses movement, music and visual storytelling to connect with audiences 'in ways that go beyond words'.

Well Done, Mummy Penguin

The Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, until Sat 3 January

Heartwarming humour and daring acrobatics are promised by the producers of this 'wintery treat for everyone aged three and up'. The show's story follows the adventures of Mummy Penguin as she swims through icy waters, climbs perilous cliffs and tiptoes past some grumpy seals in search of a fishy dinner for her family.

The production is based on the same-named picture book by award-winning writer & illustrator Chris Haughton.

Anansi The Spider

The Rep, Birmingham, until Sun 11 January

A trickster spider from West African and Caribbean folklore, Anansi is weaving his web in Birmingham with a show that enjoyed huge success in London a couple of years back.

The production, created by the critically acclaimed Unicorn Theatre, features a selection of stories and is suitable for children aged between four and eight.

CATCH THE THIEF

The Lightning Thief: The Percy Jackson Musical visits Birmingham Hippodrome

Rick Riordan's hit book series, Percy Jackson And The Olympians, tells the story of a seemingly ordinary boy (Percy) who struggles in school with ADHD and dyslexia - before it's revealed that he's actually the son of a Greek god. The epic adventures that ensue for Percy and his friends have previously been captured on the big screen and recently found a new audience via a Disney+ TV series. Now, fans around the country have the chance to catch up with Percy live on stage in a touring musical. What's On spoke to the cast of The Lightning Thief: The Percy Jackson Musical to find out more...

It's been 20 years since the publication of The Lightning Thief - the first novel in Rick Riordan's hit fantasy-adventure series, Percy Jackson And The Olympians. The story follows the character of teenager Percy, who keeps finding himself in trouble at school and struggling to fit in. He eventually discovers that he is a demigod - his mother is human, but his absent father is a god from Greek mythology.

Vasco Emauz plays the title character in The Lightning Thief: The Percy Jackson Musical, which, after its UK premiere in 2024, is now travelling to theatres across the nation, visiting Birmingham Hippodrome next month.

"Percy is just a kid who doesn't seem to fit in anywhere," Vasco explains. "He's got ADHD, and he's just coming to terms with being the son of a Greek god."

"I remember being a teenager trying to figure out what to do with my life and who I was at the same time. I feel like that's why a lot of writers gravitate towards having teenagers as heroes. The classic 'hero journey' is finding out who you are, what you're good at, and going through all these trials - finding your ground. I think it translates really well into a 'coming of age' story."

According to Vasco, who loved Riordan's books as a child, the character offers important representation for teenagers who have faced similar struggles - even if they don't have divine blood in their veins.

"It's always amazing to see how teenagers relate to this story. I've gotten so many people at Stage Door talking about how they struggle with ADHD or dyslexia, and they find it so special to see heroes who have qualities that are usually seen in the world as negative traits - which is not true; they're just different."

Joining Vasco in the cast are Cahir O'Neill as Grover, a satyr, and Kayna Montecillo as Annabeth, who, like Percy, is a demigod. Together, they portray the three heroes of the story.

"Grover Underwood is Percy's best friend through this whole experience," says Cahir. "He just drags him along and tries to protect him from all the monsters!"

"I play Annabeth Chase, daughter of Athena, the goddess of wisdom," adds Kayna. "She's got a lot of strength in her knowledge and the way she fights."

As the story is inspired by the adventures and quests told in Greek myths, there is some considerable pressure to ensure that the stage production is also suitably bombastic.

"It's absolutely epic," says Cahir. "I mean, we go on such a huge journey throughout the show. Expect the unexpected - one minute we're on a bus, the next minute, we're blowing up the bus, and then there's monsters flying everywhere! What Lizzi Gee, the director, has done to the show suits it perfectly, I think. She's done an amazing job of bringing the novel to life. The joy of [meeting] children at the Stage Door, when they say 'I've grown up with the movies and I've grown up with the books,' and knowing that we've done a perfect job for them, is honestly so rewarding in itself."

The production is, after all, a real treat for fans of Percy Jackson - whether they devoured the book series, enjoyed the film adaptations made in the 2010s, or have rekindled their love of the story through a new television series, released by Disney in 2023. The books are particularly popular with teenage and pre-teen readers - so, for many, this is the first time they will be able to see their heroes come to life on stage; the musical's tour has offered fans across the country the chance to see the story in a new way.

"I never really thought about how much more accessible it would be for people to come and see it," says Kayna. "Every time we go to Stage Door, there's been moments where someone's like 'This is the first time I've ever seen a musical,' and a lot of them are kids. I think that's been my favourite part [of the tour], and probably the part that surprised me the most."

"It's so exciting, bringing this show on the road for people who didn't have the option to go to London," says Cahir. "It's so lovely, because the Percy Jackson community spans so many different places. No matter where we go, there's fans in orange 'Camp Half Blood' T-shirts."

And for the cast themselves, the tour has opened up some new opportunities as well.

"It's just been so great to see so much of the UK," says Vasco, who hails from Portugal. "Speaking for myself, I've never actually left London, apart from going to see my sister in Southampton. So being able to see the country and getting paid to do it, and being able to do a show at the same time, has just been a huge privilege. We've seen some amazing places!"

The trio have now been on the road with this production since August, but they show no signs of losing passion for their characters.

"I feel like I'm still learning so much about Annabeth every time I tell the story," says Kayna. "Especially her relationship with everyone on stage. That's always the fun of it - once rehearsals have finished, you never really stop learning new things, and you never stop discovering things about the character. Every time I play her, I love her so much more. I didn't think I ever could."

"Grover is such a goofy character," adds Cahir. "He has so much comic energy throughout the whole show, but since starting the show, I've found so much depth in him, and so much emotional connection to him as well. It's just so beautiful to open that and release it to the audience. I'll cherish Grover forever. I think he's just going to stick with me for life now."

Part of the magic of live performance is the opportunity to see beloved characters as you've never seen them before - and for the young stars of The Lightning Thief, stepping out onto the stage to portray them is just as exciting.

"In any show, every time you do the show, you find something new," says Vasco. "It's great to not settle into what you've done; to keep it fresh, while at the same time keeping it consistent. I've loved Percy since I was a young kid. He was my childhood hero. I love him a lot, and I will continue to love him for the rest of this tour, and afterwards."

London Symphonic Rock Orchestra

Wolverhampton Grand Theatre,
Wed 14 January

The classically trained London Symphonic Rock Orchestra have been tearing up world stages with 'strings that shred and drums that detonate' since 2018, delivering epic, reorchestrated hits from the likes of Queen, Led Zeppelin, Black Sabbath, Guns N' Roses, AC/DC, Metallica and Fleetwood Mac. "We're more than just a group of musicians," explain the orchestra. "We are passionate, skilled and dedicated professionals who share a love for music that transcends genres. Our passion is to create top-notch musical performances that are certain to captivate and engage."

Dead Ringers

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Wed 28 January

Topical satire show Dead Ringers has been delighting BBC Radio Four audiences for the last quarter century with its veritable smorgasbord of uncannily accurate and routinely amusing comedy impressions.

To celebrate the 25th anniversary, long-standing cast members Jon Culshaw, Jan Ravens, Lewis MacLeod and Duncan Wisbey have hit the road with the show's first-ever UK tour.

Send In The Clowns: Unpopular

The Rep, Birmingham,
Thurs 29 - Sat 31 January

Raucous drag revue night Send In The Clowns usually takes place at the Old Joint Stock Theatre but is here making its debut at the Birmingham Rep. Presenting a parody celebration of the magic and madness of musical theatre, the production is hosted by drag-cabaret favourite Fatt Butcher.

Drag Me To The 80s

Sutton Coldfield Town Hall, Fri 16 January;
Walsall Arena, Sat 31 January

The title says it all, as a cast of camp-as-Christmas drag queens pump out an evening of chartbusters from the decade of big hair and even bigger shoulder-pads. The show features hits from Kylie, Madonna, Whitney, Bananarama, Queen, Abba, Rick Astley, Pet Shop Boys, Erasure, Duran Duran, Wham, Tina Turner and many more.

Richard Jones: The Sound Of Magic

Stourbridge Town Hall, Sat 31 January;
The Core Theatre, Solihull, Sat 28 March;
Kidderminster Town Hall, Sat 9 May; The
Brewhouse Arts Centre, Burton upon Trent,
Sat 13 June

Lance Corporal Richard Jones has followed up years of service in His Majesty's Royal Household Cavalry with a hugely successful career as a magician. The only prestidigitator ever to win Britain's Got Talent, Richard will no doubt be packing out theatres across the country on this latest tour.

Crooners

Wolverhampton Grand Theatre,
Sun 18 January

A lighthearted evening of song - featuring the nice'n'easy numbers of crooning legends Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr, Matt Monro, Nat King Cole and Bobby Darin - awaits new-year theatre-goers when Crooners hits town. The show's creatives are promising a production in which 'hilarious one-liners and laugh-out-loud silliness' will receive 'a splendiferous injection of Big Band swing and Britishness'.

A Celebration Of Father Ted

Brewhouse Arts Centre, Burton upon Trent,
Sat 24 January

This is an evening that no self-respecting fan of long-lamented Channel Four sitcom Father Ted will want to miss. Stand-up comedian Joe Rooney presents a screening of The Old Grey Whistle Theft, the episode in which he starred as the rebellious Father Damo, who led Dougal astray with his cigarette smoking and bad-boy attitude. Joe will also take you behind the scenes of the hit show, set a Craggy Island quiz, host an all-inclusive Lovely Girls Competition and lead a singalong to My Lovely Horse. Throw in a dancing priests contest plus appearances by Ziggy Stardust, Nirvana and Johnny Cash, and it's clear an evening of manic Father Ted-celebrating entertainment is very much on the cards.

Shen Yun

ICC, Birmingham, Fri 2 - Sun 4 January;
Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Tues 17 &
Wed 18 February

The New York Times described Shen Yun as '5,000 years of Chinese music and dance in one night' - which, as evenings of theatrical entertainment go, sounds like a pretty good deal.

Shen Yun is an organisation dedicated to reviving authentic Chinese culture, presenting shows which have been enjoyed by millions of people across the globe. Expect ethnic and folk dancers, impressive costuming, picturesque backdrops and plenty more besides when the company stops off in Birmingham early this month...

WIND OF CHANGE

The RSC is set to stage the world premiere of a bold new musical

A new musical, telling the remarkable true story of how a young boy built a windmill to save an African village from starvation, premieres at the RSC next month. Actor Alistair Nwachukwu describes The Boy Who Harnessed The Wind as an inspiring testament to resilience and hope - one which he feels certain will make a big impact on its audience...

As extraordinary true-life stories go, the tale of William Kamkwamba takes some beating. Born to a family of farmers in the village of Wimbe in Malawi, he single-handedly saved his community from starvation by building a windmill to power the village's broken water pump. The budding inventor used scrap materials from the local junkyard and parts from the family bicycle - the only one in the village, and their only real asset - which he convinced his relatives he needed to dismantle. And all at the age of 13.

"It's crazy; unbelievable," says actor Alistair Nwachukwu, who will portray William in a new stage adaptation of the story at the Royal Shakespeare Company's Swan Theatre in Stratford-upon-Avon. "When I was 13 I was playing PlayStation and messing around - he's creating a windmill!"

Based on Kamkwamba's bestselling memoir and a movie adaptation written and directed by well-known actor Chiwetel Ejiofor, The Boy Who Harnessed The Wind will be the RSC's first musical since Daniel Evans and Tamara Harvey took over as co-artistic directors. The brand-new production - described by the duo as 'a landmark moment' - will be directed by Lynette Linton, former artistic director of the Bush Theatre, with book & lyrics by Richy Hughes and music & lyrics by Tim Sutton. Ejiofor serves as creative associate, and will be executive producer when the show subsequently transfers to the West End.

The combination of talent involved was a huge draw for Alistair, a British actor born to Nigerian parents - coincidentally, he's from the same tribe as Ejiofor - although he admits he wasn't sure he was right for the part when it was first offered to him: "I'd been doing workshops with Lynette for two years, so I knew the story and knew what it was going to be like, but I never expected to play the main role. I told Lynette - who's an amazing director - that I'd never sung before, but she and [producer] Kenny Wax said they wanted me for the part."

Playing William will be a big change from his most recent role as Leo in the sold-out production of The Line Of Beauty at London's Almeida Theatre, but the former LAMDA student (he graduated in 2021) has been preparing for months. As well as immersing himself in Malawian culture, he's been having singing lessons to enable his tenor voice to hit the high notes of the numbers he'll have to perform.

"All my songs are Michael Jackson-high - like, really high," he laughs, admitting that playing a 13-year-old (his typical age range is 25 to 35) presents another big challenge: "I've got a movement coach who's helping me to find the physicality of a younger man, and a dialect coach to help me get the voice of a younger person. It's slowly all coming together."

Alistair has had plenty of inspiration along the way. Members of the show's creative team went to Malawi to see William and his family at their home, and Alistair got to meet the man he would play when he visited the cast in the UK.

"William came to the workshops and spoke to us about what it was like for him and his sisters and what inspired him. It was really nice to speak to him and have him here in the flesh and understand his psyche and what he was going through at the time."

It turns out the actor is no stranger to overcoming adversity himself. As a youngster he was all set to become a professional footballer with Millwall FC until a broken femur and dislocated knee put paid to his career before it had even begun.

"That was game over," he says matter-of-factly. "My mum was like 'Now you've got to do something serious with your life.' I went to university to study marketing but dropped out after two years and stumbled into acting - and now I'm the lead at the RSC! What a journey..."

But if he sounds relatively laidback about the way things have transpired, he admits getting the lead role at such a prestigious venue - and at a relatively young age - is very much a dream come true.

"I can't describe how much it means to me. When I was at drama school, I never thought this would happen - ever. I was at LAMDA from nine till nine every day, and some days it was so hard and I thought 'What am I doing?' I was the oldest in my year, and my family don't really come from much, so five years on, to be the lead at the RSC is unbelievable. When Lynette told me, I was crying."

A bit like getting to Wembley as a footballer? "Yeah, exactly!"

And despite being hugely different professions - he doubts many of his former teammates are theatre lovers - there are similarities in that both require discipline, training and total dedication.

"To become a great footballer, you have to be working on your craft every single day - and it's the same for acting. Before I went to drama school, I didn't know you had to work with your voice, on your movement, on your mind."

"There's a huge parallel between them both. It's working on your craft to become the best version of yourself so that you're then able to transform into these different characters, to play William, or Hamlet or Othello."

It's interesting that he cites a couple of iconic Shakespearean roles - an eye on the future perhaps? - but there's a sense that he thinks The Boy Who Harnessed The Wind has the potential to impact audiences every bit as much as the Bard's work. And, he suggests, as much as the book and the movie were powerful, the musical version has the potential to resonate even more: "Music can sometimes express things that words can't, and the stage version brings a different kind of immediacy - it puts the audience right there in the room with the characters."

"I think the musical element will capture the drought, the tension with the family, the soaring hope when the windmill is finally built. There are going to be some really powerful moments that will really touch the audience. I guarantee you will be moved."

The Boy Who Harnessed The Wind shows at the Swan Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, from Tuesday 10 February to Saturday 28 March

ACE Dance & Music Double Bill: Twasi

The Rep, Birmingham, Sat 24 January

Committed to the presentation of contemporary dance inspired by the African Diaspora, ACE Dance & Music here collaborate with two internationally acclaimed Black male choreographers - Serge Aime Coulibaly (Burkina Faso) and Vincent Mantsoe (South Africa) - to present a double bill of work which they describe as 'powerful contrasting visions of our world today'.

Echoes In Dust - taking place against the backdrop of war, disaster and the invisible collapse of human connection - asks the question: when all seems lost, what hope can we still hold on to?

Letlalo, meanwhile, draws from African, Indigenous and contemporary dance languages to explore the deep connection between humanity and the earth.

VIVA ESPAÑA!

Next month sees Birmingham Royal Ballet revisit another of its highly acclaimed works: Carlos Acosta's Don Quixote. A tale of love and loyalty, the story is one of Carlos' favourites - as he recently explained to What's On...

Dancer Carlos Acosta was just 16 when he won the gold medal at the prestigious Prix de Lausanne, performing a solo from Marius Petipa's ballet Don Quixote. The prize win launched an international career which saw him dancing with leading ballet companies worldwide - and Don Quixote has remained one of his favourite works ever since.

So, when he took over as director of Birmingham Royal Ballet (BRB) in 2020, Carlos was keen to create a Don Quixote for Birmingham. Premiered in 2022, the work was hugely acclaimed - and this spring Midlands audiences have another chance to see the production.

For Carlos, adding Don Quixote - a comic opera based on Miguel Cervantes' novel about the knight Don Quixote and his sidekick Sancho Panza - to the BRB repertoire was essential.

"Dance is a living art form, and we always have to rejuvenate the repertoire," he explains. "We are lucky in Birmingham that we have fantastic productions, but for me as a director, I wanted to add to what has already been established.

"BRB had never had a production of Don Quixote. It is the ballet that I danced the most when I was a dancer, so I have a grasp of what it is and what it takes, and I could transfer all this expertise to this company."

With a host of different characters, from knights to lovers and innkeepers to gypsies, the ballet offers dancers plenty of opportunities to shine.

"It's a very important production because it has a lot of parts for dancers in the company, not just the principal rank. And it is also very difficult dancing, so the company really like it because it is a great challenge for them.

"I want BRB to be a company of virtuosos, and that means bringing difficult and diverse repertoire that improves the standards of the dancers."

Carlos' determination to create new work for the repertoire has seen the company dance a host of premieres, including the sell-out Black Sabbath - The Ballet. But, he says, there is a need for balance in the programming.

"Even when we go increasingly into contemporary repertoire which is forward-thinking and pushing the boundaries, we mustn't forget what ballet is, and who we are as a ballet company. And who we are in many ways is these classical productions. We train every single day with ballet vocabulary, and Don Quixote has every step in the vocabulary that you could think of."

Carlos was also keen for his Don Quixote to stand out from the crowd.

"I made the production so that people speak and shout, and there are special effects of sound and projection, and there is acoustic guitar playing. I'm very proud of what we accomplished.

"It's one of those productions which is a feel-good production, and at the end, the audience is joyful. It has so many elements to it. You name it and it's in there: comedy, romance, sunshine."

For the new tour, the company has updated some of the show's sets and costumes - a campaign supported by this year's Big Give Appeal.

"Touring is a very expensive activity, but we are a touring company and this is what we do, this is why we exist - to tour big-scale ballets. But undoubtedly when you take a ballet production on tour, there is something that needs repairing or replacing, and that costs.

"We also wanted to work on some of the costumes, to make them look better, and we are very grateful to everyone who has supported us in this. People are so generous; they know the circumstances we are facing, and there are a lot of people who are willing to help because ballet and this company gives them a lot of pleasure."

Touring is not only the lifeblood of the company - it also ensures BRB is an ambassador for Birmingham both across the UK and internationally.

"It's very good for the morale of the city and the community that supports BRB - and that is Birmingham. We have the title of the city as a headline of the institution; it is the Birmingham Royal Ballet, so I think when we tour, it's a way of bringing awareness of how important this city has been in the world.

"If you don't make an effort to bang the drum and keep this history alive, people will forget. People forget they made classic cars in Coventry; that Birmingham was the shop place of the world, the city of a thousand trades; that Birmingham has more canals than Venice and all that.

"One of the things I wanted to do to herald the importance of the city and its community was to bring ballets that no other companies have. Hence, Black Sabbath, which represents directly the culture of Birmingham to the world, and Don Quixote, which I made directly for Birmingham.

"No one else in the world has these productions, and that gives the audience an opportunity to come and see something they can't see anywhere else."

Carlos' support for the city was marked last June when he was awarded an honorary degree by University of Birmingham. And his role in the world of the arts was celebrated in October when he won the UK Theatre Award for Outstanding Contribution to British Theatre.

"The Theatre Award was amazing and unexpected. It was for the productions I've put on, all the things I am programming. It was fantastic, not just for me but also for the ballet sector to be recognised in the world of theatre."

Last year also saw BRB principal Beatrice Palma win the Outstanding Female Classic Performance at the National Dance Awards, for her role as Lise in La Fille mal gardée. She also won the prestigious Dance Europe's Dancer of the Year award.

Carlos says this recognition is heartily deserved: "Beatrice is a very versatile ballerina. In Fille she is pure Ashton, with great technical ability. And then, in Luna - that is very hard contemporary language. So to have a ballerina who mastered those two spectrums of dance is incredible, and people took notice of that. It's great to see how some people just rise to the challenge, and she is a ballerina who doesn't rest. She wants more; she is 100 per cent committed - and if you have that attitude, you see the results."

Birmingham Royal Ballet present Carlos Acosta's Don Quixote at Birmingham Hippodrome from Thursday 12 to Saturday 21 February

Film highlights in January...

Song Sung Blue

CERT tbc (133 mins)

Starring Hugh Jackman, Kate Hudson, Ella Anderson, Hudson Hensley, King Princess, Michael Imperioli Directed by Craig Brewer

Based on the 2008 documentary of the same name by Greg Kohs, Song Sung Blue stars Hugh Jackman and Kate Hudson as Mike and Claire Sardina, a real-life Milwaukee husband & wife duo who performed as Neil Diamond tribute band Lightning & Thunder.

The film follows the couple's story from its late 80s beginnings, when Mike - a divorced and one-time alcoholic Vietnam veteran - meets hairdresser Claire at a Wisconsin State Fair concert...

Theirs is an absorbing enough story, but the film's real strength is its musical numbers, not only because of Diamond's dazzling back catalogue but also on account of impressive performances by both of the leads.

Released Thursday 1 January

Hamnet

CERT 12a (125 mins)

Starring Jessie Buckley, Paul Mescal, Joe Alwyn, Justine Mitchell, Emily Watson, David Wilmot Directed by Chloé Zhao

When it comes to 'delivering the goods' on screen, Jessie Buckley and Paul Mescal are probably among the most trusted of modern-day Irish film actors. And their performances in this impressively impactful love story provide plenty of evidence as to why they're held in such high regard.

Mescal plays William Shakespeare, Buckley his wife Agnes, in an adaptation of Maggie O'Farrell's bestselling novel from 2020. Set in England across the final two decades of the 16th century, Chloé Zhao's critically acclaimed film charts the couple's relationship - from heady days of romance and wedded bliss, to the death (from the plague) of their 11-year-old son, Hamnet - a tragic event which inspired Shakespeare to pen his most famous play of all: Hamlet.

Released Friday 9 January

Rental Family

CERT 12a (110 mins)

Starring Brendan Fraser, Takehiro Hira, Mari Yamamoto, Shannon Mahina Gorman, Akira Emoto, Takao Kin Directed by Hikari

A not-so-long-ago Oscar winner - for his portrayal of a reclusive and morbidly obese English teacher in The Whale - Brendan Fraser here stars as Phillip Vandarploeug, a struggling middle-aged American actor living in Tokyo who's previously enjoyed significant success in a toothpaste commercial.

After taking a series of minor acting roles, he's offered the opportunity to work for Rental Family, a company which hires actors to play stand-in roles in clients' lives. But before too long, Phillip finds himself making genuine connections that threaten to blur the line between performance and reality...

Released Friday 16 January

28 Years Later: The Bone Temple

CERT 15 (115 mins)

Starring Ralph Fiennes, Jack O'Connell, Emma Laird, Erin Kellyman, Chi Lewis-Parry, Alfie Williams Directed by Nia DaCosta

The huge success of 28 Days Later and 28 Weeks Later ensured that a third film in the post-apocalyptic horror series was always a possibility...

And 18 years after its predecessor, movie number three finally arrived last summer, with Academy Award-winning director Danny Boyle reuniting with Oscar-nominated writer Alex Garland to present a terrifying 'auteur horror' story titled 28 Years Later. Now, the fourth installment - once again written by Garland - hits cinema screens. Shot back-to-back with last year's release, and with Nia DaCosta taking over the directorial reins, The Bone Temple picks up the story after the events of 28 Years Later... As teenager Spike is inducted into Sir Jimmy Crystal's gang of acrobatic killers in a post-apocalyptic Britain ravaged by the Rage Virus, Dr Ian Kelson forms a new relationship - one which has potentially world-changing consequences...

Released Friday 16 January

The History Of Sound

CERT 15 (128 mins)

Starring Paul Mescal, Josh O'Connor, Chris Cooper, Molly Price, Raphael Sbarge, Hadley Robinson Directed by Oliver Hermanus

When it comes to film releases, Paul Mescal is certainly having a busy month, not only starring in Hamnet (see opposite page) but also this period romance drama.

In 1917, Lionel - a young, talented music student - meets David at the Boston Conservatory, where they bond over a deep love of folk music. Years later, Lionel receives a letter from David, leading to an impromptu journey through the backwoods of Maine to collect traditional songs. The unexpected reunion, ensuing love affair, and the music they collect and preserve, shape the course of Lionel's life far beyond his own awareness...

Released Fri 23 January

Is This Thing On?

CERT tbc (124 mins)

Starring Will Arnett, Laura Dern, Andra Day, Bradley Cooper, Blake Kane, Calvin Knechten Directed by Bradley Cooper

As his marriage quietly unravels, Alex seeks new purpose on the New York comedy scene. Wife Tess, meanwhile, confronts the sacrifices she made for their family... With an amicable divorce pending, the couple is forced to navigate issues around co-parenting, identity, and the challenge of love taking on a new form...

Loosely based on the story of how Liverpool funnyman John Bishop stumbled into a career in comedy, Is This Thing On? is the third film to be directed by American Hustle actor Bradley Cooper, following on from Lady Gaga vehicle A Star Is Born in 2018 and Leonard Bernstein biopic Maestro (2023). Much smaller in scale than its two predecessors, it's nevertheless an absorbing, heartfelt and memorable entry, showcasing exceptionally strong performances from lead actors Will Arnett and Laura Dern while also providing further evidence of Cooper's considerable talent as a director...

Released Friday 30 January

Saipan

CERT 15 (91 mins)

Starring Éanna Hardwicke, Steve Coogan, Peter McDonald, Alice Lowe, Jamie Beamish, Harriet Cains Directed by Lisa Barros D'Sa and Glenn Leyburn

Football fans will probably be raising an eyebrow at the prospect of Steve Coogan as Mick McCarthy, wondering whether the Alan Partridge actor will have what it takes to play the blunt and Barnsley-born one-time Republic of Ireland player and manager. Coogan will certainly have his work cut out, no question - but then he did make a decent fist of playing Jimmy Savile a while back, so perhaps football-loving cinema-goers should brace themselves for a pleasant surprise.

The film tells the story of the infamous confrontation between iconic Republic of Ireland captain Roy Keane and his national team manager McCarthy during the Irish squad's preparations for the 2002 FIFA World Cup. The feud remains, to this day, one of the most fractious fallings-out in the history of sport.

Released Friday 23 January

Send Help

CERT tbc

Starring Rachel McAdams, Dylan O'Brien, Xavier Samuel, Bruce Campbell, Dennis Haysbert, Chris Pang Directed by Sam Raimi

Survival horror thriller Send Help focuses on the fortunes of two colleagues, Linda Liddle and Bradley Preston, who become stranded on a deserted island, the only survivors of a plane crash. As they battle to overcome past grievances and work together to survive, tensions between them mount, leading to a battle of wills and wits to make it out alive... "I found the two lead characters, Linda and Bradley, to be complex, human, and constantly at odds with each other in often conflicting situations," director Sam Raimi told Entertainment Weekly, in talking about what attracted him to the project. "The pitch was outrageous and original, all the while tracking these two in their conflict as their power dynamic changed dramatically. "I knew right away that I wanted to direct this picture."

ANDI

New Art Gallery, Walsall,
Tues 13 January - Sun 5 April

Coventry-based artist ANDI is spending 12 weeks in the New Art Gallery's purpose-built artists' studio, developing new paintings and working at a larger scale for the first time. The residency, which comes as a direct result of winning the venue's coveted Clive Beardsmore Artist Award, will see the up-and-coming creative make oil paintings that document and reflect on queer and trans experiences.

What Are The Odds?

Library of Birmingham,
Wed 21 January - Sat 27 June

An Ikon gallery exhibition which is being presented at the Library of Birmingham, What Are The Odds? explores the role of art in supporting health and care systems. The exhibition's graphic identity has been designed by Birmingham-based artist Foka Wolf. Playing on a 1970s 'game of life' TV show aesthetic, the presentation simulates a journey through the different institutions that define a life course, along the way reflecting a range of lived experience, from diversity in infant feeding to ageing and dying well.

Grayson Perry: The Annunciation Of The Virgin Deal

Wolverhampton Art Gallery, until Sun 12 April

Part of the Turner Prize-winning artist's The Vanity Of Small Differences series, this artwork is a four-metre-long tapestry telling the story of Tim Rakewell, a fictional 21st-century software developer who climbs the social and economic ladder from his working-class roots.

Saba Khan: Riverless Water

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Sat 10 January - Mon 6 April

London-based Pakistani artist Saba Khan here continues her critical inquiry into how environmental disruption shapes identity and migration. At the exhibition's heart is the subject of South Asian water histories, with paintings, interviews and an installation being used to examine the impact of the Mangla Dam's construction in the 1960s - an event which led to the mass migration of people from Mirpur in Pakistan to Birmingham.

Obelisk Herbert Art Gallery & Museum, Coventry, Wed 7 - Sat 31 January

Garry Jones' photo documentary focuses on three athletes from Olympic Team GB: the legend, Andy MacDonald; the medal winner, Sky Brown (pictured above); and the breakout star, Lola Tambling. The series follows their journey to the famous Obelisk in the heart of the Concorde in Paris in the summer of 2024, when skateboarders from around the world competed for the second time at an Olympic Games and for the first time in front of Olympic crowds.

Wildlife Photographer Of The Year

Wolverhampton Art Gallery, until Sun 25 January

"We are facing urgent biodiversity and climate crises," says Dr Doug Gurr, director of the Natural History Museum, which has developed and produced this prestigious competition, "and photography is a powerful catalyst for change..."

"As we celebrate 60 years of Wildlife Photographer Of The Year, we also celebrate the generations of visitors who have been inspired by the beauty and majesty of its images, and the millions of connections made with nature."

Visiting Wolverhampton as part of an extensive international tour, the show features a host of awe-inspiring images capturing fascinating animal behaviour and breathtaking landscapes.

Coventry Biennial 2025: Obsessions, Possessions

Herbert Art Gallery & Museum, Coventry, until Sun 25 January

An exploration of the roles and functions of collecting - within the art sector, the community and the studio - lies at the heart of the fifth Coventry Biennial.

Artists whose work is being displayed at the city's Herbert Art Gallery & Museum include Helsinki-based Sophia Ehrnrooth, who is presenting a major four-screen moving-image installation. Also featured is a Simeon Barclay-curated group exhibition exploring 'the rich and complex history of Coventry'.

Greener Glass

Stourbridge Glass Museum, until Sat 17 January

The transformative power of recycled materials, turning waste into captivating art, is explored in this thought-provoking exhibition, co-curated by local and regional UK artists in collaboration with University of Birmingham students. Delving into the future of glassmaking, emphasising eco-friendly practices and focusing on the artistic exploration of environmental themes, Greener Glass showcases a variety of techniques, among which are kiln work, glass blowing and flame working. The exhibition features work produced by 11 talented creatives, including artists-in-residence at Stourbridge Glass Museum, whose pieces have been created using 100% renewable energy.

Designing Terry Pratchett's Discworld

Worcester City Art Gallery & Museum, until Sun 4 January

This popular exhibition displays the artwork of Paul Kidby - Terry Pratchett's 'artist of choice' for his Discworld books.

Explaining why he selected Paul, the late author once said: "He sees things my way about 75 per cent of the time, which suggests either mind reading is happening or that my vision of my characters is really rather vague until I see his drawings."

The exhibition includes colourful paintings, 'exquisite' pencil drawings, and 'a rogue's gallery of favourite Discworld characters'.

Ozzy Osbourne (1948-2025): Working Class Hero

Birmingham Museum & Art Gallery, until Sun 18 January

"Ozzy is proof that no matter where you start in life, with passion, grit, and a little bit of madness, you can achieve the extraordinary."

So speaks Sharon Osbourne, celebrity wife of heavy metal legend Ozzy, who passed away last summer.

The Birmingham Museum & Art Gallery exhibition, which is free to enter, showcases Ozzy's most prestigious international honours, presenting them alongside photographs and videos that chart his journey from working-class kid to global rock legend.

"This exhibition is a thank-you to the fans and the city of Birmingham, the place where it all began," continues Sharon. "We're so proud to bring it home."

FAMILY TIES

New exhibition illuminates the life of a South Asian family

Stories That Made Us - Roots, Resilience, Representation is a new immersive exhibition which travels through the life of a single South Asian family in Coventry across a period of 40-plus years. Created by Hardish Virk and his sister Manjinder, from Hardish's personal archives, the exhibition reveals much about their activist father and Punjabi poet mother, not to mention Hardish himself, whose formative years were shaped by Coventry in the 1980s. What's On spoke to Hardish - and the exhibition's archive assistant, Shaniece Martin - to find out more about this multi-generational project...

A dynamic new exhibition at Coventry's Herbert Art Gallery & Museum traces four decades of a single South Asian family in the city - and in doing so illuminates the wider South Asian experience in Coventry and beyond.

Created and co-curated by Hardish Virk, Stories That Made Us - Roots, Resilience, Representation traces the Virk family's time in Coventry from 1968 to 2010. Using sound, film, photographs, music and literature, the exhibition creates an immersive environment and explores the lives of Hardish, his parents and siblings.

It's an idea that has been a long time in the making - the product of a life spent collecting personal items, memories and stories.

"In 1996 I had this idea of opening a living museum of South Asian stories," explains Hardish. "It was a tangible response to this archive I've been building since the early 1980s - a response to the lack of nuanced South Asian stories that I was seeing."

Organising the archive and ensuring that the artefacts were securely preserved - after years of being stored in cold, damp conditions - was a huge job.

"I started to transport my archive from my house, from my loft and garage, into this space. I spent months working through it, pulling it out of boxes and bin bags - spending time to place it in a space where the environment was accessible."

Shaniece Martin was brought on board as the project's archive assistant, to help unpick stories from the available items - and the existing Virk Collection of photographs.

"My relationship has been very much with the Virk Collection in the Coventry Archives, which was donated by Hardish's father in 2004," says Shaniece. "My relationship was getting to grips with that collection - understanding who his father was and all the activism he was a part of, and also what that represents about Coventry."

The exhibition is surrounded by three timelines which span the walls, offering context for the time and place of each era. The Virk Family Timeline anchors the story, flanked by timelines of British and Western history, and South Asian history, to provide historical and cultural touchstones.

"I did a lot of research for the South Asian timeline," says Shaniece. "For me, being of South Asian culture, it gave me a nuanced look on it, making me realise how long we've actually had a presence in the UK. My understanding comes from my grandparents, who migrated here from Kenya in the late 60s, so it was great to [realise] that, actually, we've been here a long time."

Indeed, the fact that South Asian history and British history have been entwined for centuries is something which Hardish was keen to convey in the exhibition: "Often the conversation, particularly around young people, is 'We don't know where we belong.' But also we've got people of my parents' generation who feel like their story started in the 1950s and 60s. What I was very keen to say - and this is what the living museum is designed to do as well - is that our story goes back at least 425 years, and we've contributed to every facet of British life."

"I come from a theatre-making background, and from the outset I always said that this needs to be a theatrical experience and exhibition, not a static one. At the heart of it, there's a human story, a family story. Visitors find their own story in the family story - the frame around this is this timeline of facts."

Having first travelled through a clinical passport office, visitors to the exhibition are then met with a very different setting: the Virk family living room, complete with sofa and TV. None of the rooms are invented - they're all replicated from photographs in the Virk Collection.

"The spaces of comfort," explains Shaniece, "like the living room, the sofa, the bed in the bedroom - that was all to make it feel real and immersed, like a living space. Without those objects, you can't get that sense of the space at all - it [would feel] like a standard exhibition. But it doesn't, because there are so many layers that make and recreate those spaces."

Shaniece, who never met Hardish's father, Harbhajan Singh Virk, has grown to know him through her exploration of the archives: "It made me recognise the importance of these objects and the archives. Other people would call it hoarding, which we really don't think is the case. It's about collecting. I feel like I've got to know the people in the process, through those objects and the stories that come alive through those objects."

Hardish has one eye on the future and the possibility of creating a whole living museum representing South Asian experiences. After initially toying with the idea of repurposing a terraced house for the museum, he now hopes to find a warehouse space in which he could create a similar effect, but in a more accessible environment.

And this is just the beginning...

"Digital methods of making archives and living museums accessible to the world are really important. We're going to have a drone that's going to go through this exhibition, and that's going to make it available, digitally, to the world. I've already been thinking about AI technology, as well as VR technology... I really want to talk about how personal archives lend themselves to living museums in lived spaces, and how we use new technologies to make them global experiences and highly accessible."

With so many fascinating objects represented in the exhibition - collected and preserved by Hardish - it's hard to pick just one which best represents the whole. Shaniece's selection is an item which illuminates an experience shared by many. Hardish's choice, by contrast, is deeply personal.

"I think for me it would be the passports," says Shaniece. "When Hardish showed me those passports, I remember thinking about the film in the passport-control room... I remember watching that video, seeing those passports and thinking to myself: 'That's exactly the passport my grandparents had; that's exactly the journey that they went through.' Without the physical passport, there wouldn't be a trace of that journey."

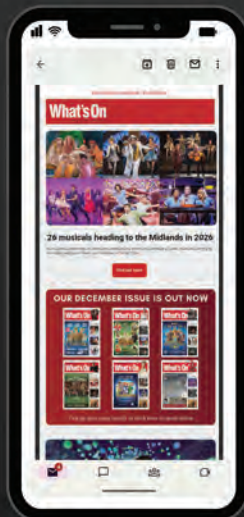

"There's a clock in the living room," says Hardish, in talking about the single item which he would select as being most representative of the whole exhibition. "And that is the clock from that era in the 1970s - you can see it in the photographs. That clock has sat through nearly 50 years of our family life. If it had a brain and eyes, and had all the senses, it would have listened to and watched these men congregating in that living room, reciting poetry, talking about the anti-racist protests, drinking whiskey and listening to music."
