WORLD CLASS ACTS IN LICHFIELD

Featuring internationally renowned performers, family favourites, fascinating spoken-word events and plenty more besides, Lichfield Festival returns this month with an explosion of culture to suit all tastes. The festival hosts events throughout the year, but July marks the undoubted highlight of the cultural calendar - the city's 13-day multi-arts summer festival, this year running from Tuesday 7 to Sunday 19 July. Read on to check out some of this year's highlights...

XUEFEI YANG & MARIA VEGA

Lichfield Cathedral, Thurs 16 July

Renowned guitarist Xuefei Yang and flamenco sensation María Vega make a triumphant return to the festival, five years after their debut performance. The duo once again present a fusion of dance and music. Their programme, titled Silk And Fire, combines traditional Spanish and South American works - by De Falla, Albeniz and Paco Peña - with Xuefei's Chinese folk-inspired compositions.

The music is, of course, accompanied by Maria's flamenco movement, in what promises to be a spellbinding evening of entertainment.

Lichfield Festival takes place at various locations across the city from Tuesday 7 to Sunday 19 July. To check out the full programme and book tickets, visit lichfieldfestival.org

RACHEL DAVIS & DARREN MCMULLEN

The Hub at St Mary's, Thursday 9 July

The popular folk duo make their first appearance at Lichfield Festival, as part of a summer tour around the UK.

Rachel, who provides fiddle and vocals, and multi-instrumentalist Darren - mandolin, bouzouki, tenor banjo, whistles, guitar and bass - both hail from Canada and have toured together since 2012 as founding members of award-winning group Còig. The gig will no doubt feature songs from their debut album, Home.

KNDS FAIREY BRASS BAND:
WALLACE AND GROMIT & MORE

Lichfield Cathedral, Saturday 11 July

This fun-filled family adventure sees the Fairey Band teaming up with claymation masters Aardman for a screening of the latter's Oscar-winning 1993 movie, Wallace & Gromit: The Wrong Trousers (featuring dastardly penguin Feathers McGraw). The band will provide live accompaniment to the film - a special arrangement of Julian Nott's iconic score - after which they will perform a selection of brass-band favourites.

AURORA PERCUSSION DUO

The Hub at St Mary's, Sunday 12 July

Delia Stevens and Le Yu have made it their mission to redefine the art of percussion, delivering adrenaline-fuelled performances which are both aurally and visually spectacular.

The duo's century-spanning repertoire ranges from the work of JS Bach through to Rimsky-Korsakov's Flight Of The Bumblebee, and from Gershwin to the present day - all while showcasing a host of instruments, from the marimba to the ever-so-humble egg shaker.

LA SOLITUDE:
JESSICA WALKER & JOSEPH ATKINS

The Hub at St Mary's, Monday 13 July

Blending music and theatre - and presented as part of the festival's French Icons series - La Solitude explores the life and legacy of 20th-century singer-songwriter Barbara (1930 - 1997).

Vocalist Jessica (pictured), accompanied by Joseph on the piano, brings Barbara to life, weaving together original French and new English versions of her songs - also available in the form of a newly released album.

SAMRAT MAJUMDER

Church of St Chad, Wednesday 15 July

Rising star Samrat Majumder is a Scottish-Indian classical guitarist.

Last year tipped as 'one to watch' when he was announced as an artist for the Young Classical Artists Trust, Samrat was celebrated by Classic FM when the radio station named their 2026 list of 30 exceptional musicians under the age of 30. His performance at the festival features JS Bach's Lute Suite No2, presented alongside works by Dowland, Schubert and others...

GX2: THE DON SHIRLEY TRIO PROJECT

The Hub at St Mary's, Thursday 16 July

Reimagining the genre-defying work of visionary pianist & composer Don Shirley, the trio is led by the festival's 2026 artist-in-residence, cellist Gabriella Swallow (pictured), and Mercury award-nominee Joe Webb (piano)... The gig will be Gabriella's second festival appearance at The Hub at St Mary's - two days earlier, on Tuesday 14 July, she takes part in an intimate trio performance with trumpeter/singer Pete Horsfall and guitarist Honey Boulton.

RUMER

Lichfield Cathedral, Friday 17 July

MOJO Award winner and two-time Brit-nominee Rumer here marks the 15th anniversary of her hit debut album, Seasons Of My Soul. Rumer's Cathedral performance comes in the middle of an ensemble tour celebrating the work of Burt Bacharach, who has long been a major influence on the Pakistan-born singer-songwriter's repertoire. Expect an evening of heart-felt music that falls between realism and romance.

GUINNESS WORLD RECORDS

The Hub at St Mary's, Saturday 18 July

Marvel at the miraculous feats recorded by Guinness World Records - and look out for a special guest record-breaker or two! This spoken-word event is led by Guinness World Records' editor-in-chief and longtime friend of the festival Craig Glenday, who will be sharing plenty of fascinating secrets from the legendary book. And there's even a chance for audience members to make a record of their very own!

BBC NATIONAL ORCHESTRA OF WALES

Lichfield Cathedral, Saturday 18 July

Celebrating the 250th anniversary of American Independence, the BBC National Orchestra of Wales presents a programme of works by American composers. The concert opens with Charles Ives' Three Places In New England. This is followed by a violin concerto by Samuel Barber - featuring award-winning US-Russian soloist Maria Ioudenitch (pictured) - and Aaron Copland's much-loved Appalachian Spring.

Live music from across the city...

The Streets

O2 Academy, Birmingham, Fri 17 July

Greatly admired for his stand-out lyrics and clever blending of musical styles, Birmingham-raised singer-songwriter Mike Skinner - the man behind The Streets - has experienced his fair share of mental turmoil down the years. Not that being in the comfort zone of contentment suits Mike all that much either - at least artistically speaking... "There have been times when I've struggled to have something to say in my songs," he admits. "That's what can happen when you gradually make your life easier and easier."

Caylee Hammack

Hare & Hounds, Birmingham, Tues 28 July

"As a little girl who always just wanted a man to bring her flowers, I decided I'd be better off if I just learned how to grow my own."

So says Caylee Hammack in explaining her decision to determinedly take control of her destiny and chart her own course.

Landing in Nashville aged 19, the now-32-year-old turned heads with a sound that spoke to a unique mix of influences, ranging from David Bowie and Kate Bush to Dolly Parton and Tom Waits.

Caylee visits Birmingham with two albums so far under her belt, the most recent of which, Bed Of Roses, was released last year.

Amrita Kaur

Birmingham Town Hall, Sat 11 July

Equally adept whether singing lullabies or anthems, Amrita Kaur's voice has been described as a therapeutic journey and a sonic landscape of healing and harmony. The daughter of renowned kirtaniya Bhai Yadvinder Singh, her soul-stirring musical repertoire spans an impressively wide spectrum, including devotional, ghazal, Sufi, Punjabi folk & pop, classical, semi-classical and Hindi film music. This month's concert marks Amrita's first time performing in Birmingham.

Alkaline Trio

O2 Institute, Birmingham, Fri 3 July

Chicago band Alkaline Trio are visiting Birmingham this month as part of a tour to celebrate their 30th anniversary. Although never quite breaking through to the extent of fellow alternative pop-punk bands such as blink-182 and Green Day, the trio have established a significant cult following thanks to a winning blend of punk-rock energy, dark, introspective lyrics and infectious melodies.

Def Leppard

bp pulse LIVE, Birmingham, Sat 4 July

Forming in Sheffield in 1976, Def Leppard have sold well in excess of 100 million albums worldwide and become one of rock's most influential bands... Their Birmingham show comes as part of a UK and Europe-wide tour. Expect all the hits, including classics such as Rock Of Ages, Pour Some Sugar On Me, Animal, and Foolin'.

Heart Attack Man

The Flapper, Birmingham, Thurs 9 July

Although as a band they've been playing together for more than a decade, Heart Attack Man actually started out as a solo recording project for Eric Egan.

"I wanted to try something more chill than what I'd been used to," singer/guitarist Eric told getalternative.com. "I wanted hard but catchy songs that didn't make people want to beat the sh*t out of each other. I always have and still do like aggressive music, but in the beginning I wanted to perform something different."

Classical music from across the city...

Edward Gardner: John Adams' Harmonielehre

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Fri 17 July

"I'm thrilled to be reconnecting with the City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra," says Edward Gardner in talking about this concert, which sees him conducting the orchestra in a team-up with an exceptional cohort of young musicmakers. "We have a wonderful, rich, shared history. "The young musicians [performing with the orchestra as part of the first-ever CBSO Orchestral Residency scheme] will have played many mainstream works in their colleges and youth orchestras, but to tackle this extraordinary programme together will fill us all with a sense of ambition and pride." The 'extraordinary programme' to which Edward is referring features three landmark pieces which have redefined orchestral mass and momentum: Edgard Varèse's boundary-pushing Ionisation and Amériques, and John Adams' Harmonielehre. The latter, written in 1985, was described by the composer himself as "a statement of belief in the power of tonality at a time when I was uncertain about its future".

South Birmingham Sinfonia

Shirley Methodist Church, Sat 11 July

South Birmingham Sinfonia bring a taste of the Mediterranean to Shirley mid-month when they present a concert titled Spain And Beyond.

The programme features, among other works, Marquez's Danzón No2, Rossini's Overture from The Barber Of Seville, Saint-Saëns' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, and Sarasate's Carmen Fantasy.

Birmingham Gay Symphony Orchestra

CBSO Centre, Birmingham, Sat 18 July

Bringing together musicians from across the Midlands, the well-established Birmingham

Gay Symphony Orchestra here perform a concert featuring Dvořák's Symphonic Variations and two works by Brahms - his First Symphony and his Tragic Overture. Neavan Lobban conducts.

Phoenix Singers Summer Concert

St George's Church, Edgbaston, Sat 4 July

Rising from the ashes of Chorus 2000 - a large choir created in 1996 in the lead-up to the millennium - the Birmingham-based Phoenix Singers is a mixed-voice choir whose repertoire includes gospel, pop, sacred and folk.

This month's concert sees them turning their talents to a programme of songs which they're performing under the umbrella title of And All That Jazz..

Kazuki conducts Harmonium

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Sat 4 July

Music Director Kazuki Yamada is the man with the baton as his City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra present a celebration of 'uncommon American heroes and heroines'.

The programme includes John Adams' Harmonium - a search for transcendence in the face of uncertainty - Copland's Fanfare For The Common Man - written in 1942 and urging Americans to fight for the freedom of the world - and Joan Tower's Fanfare For The Uncommon Woman - with each fanfare dedicated to a remarkable female musician.

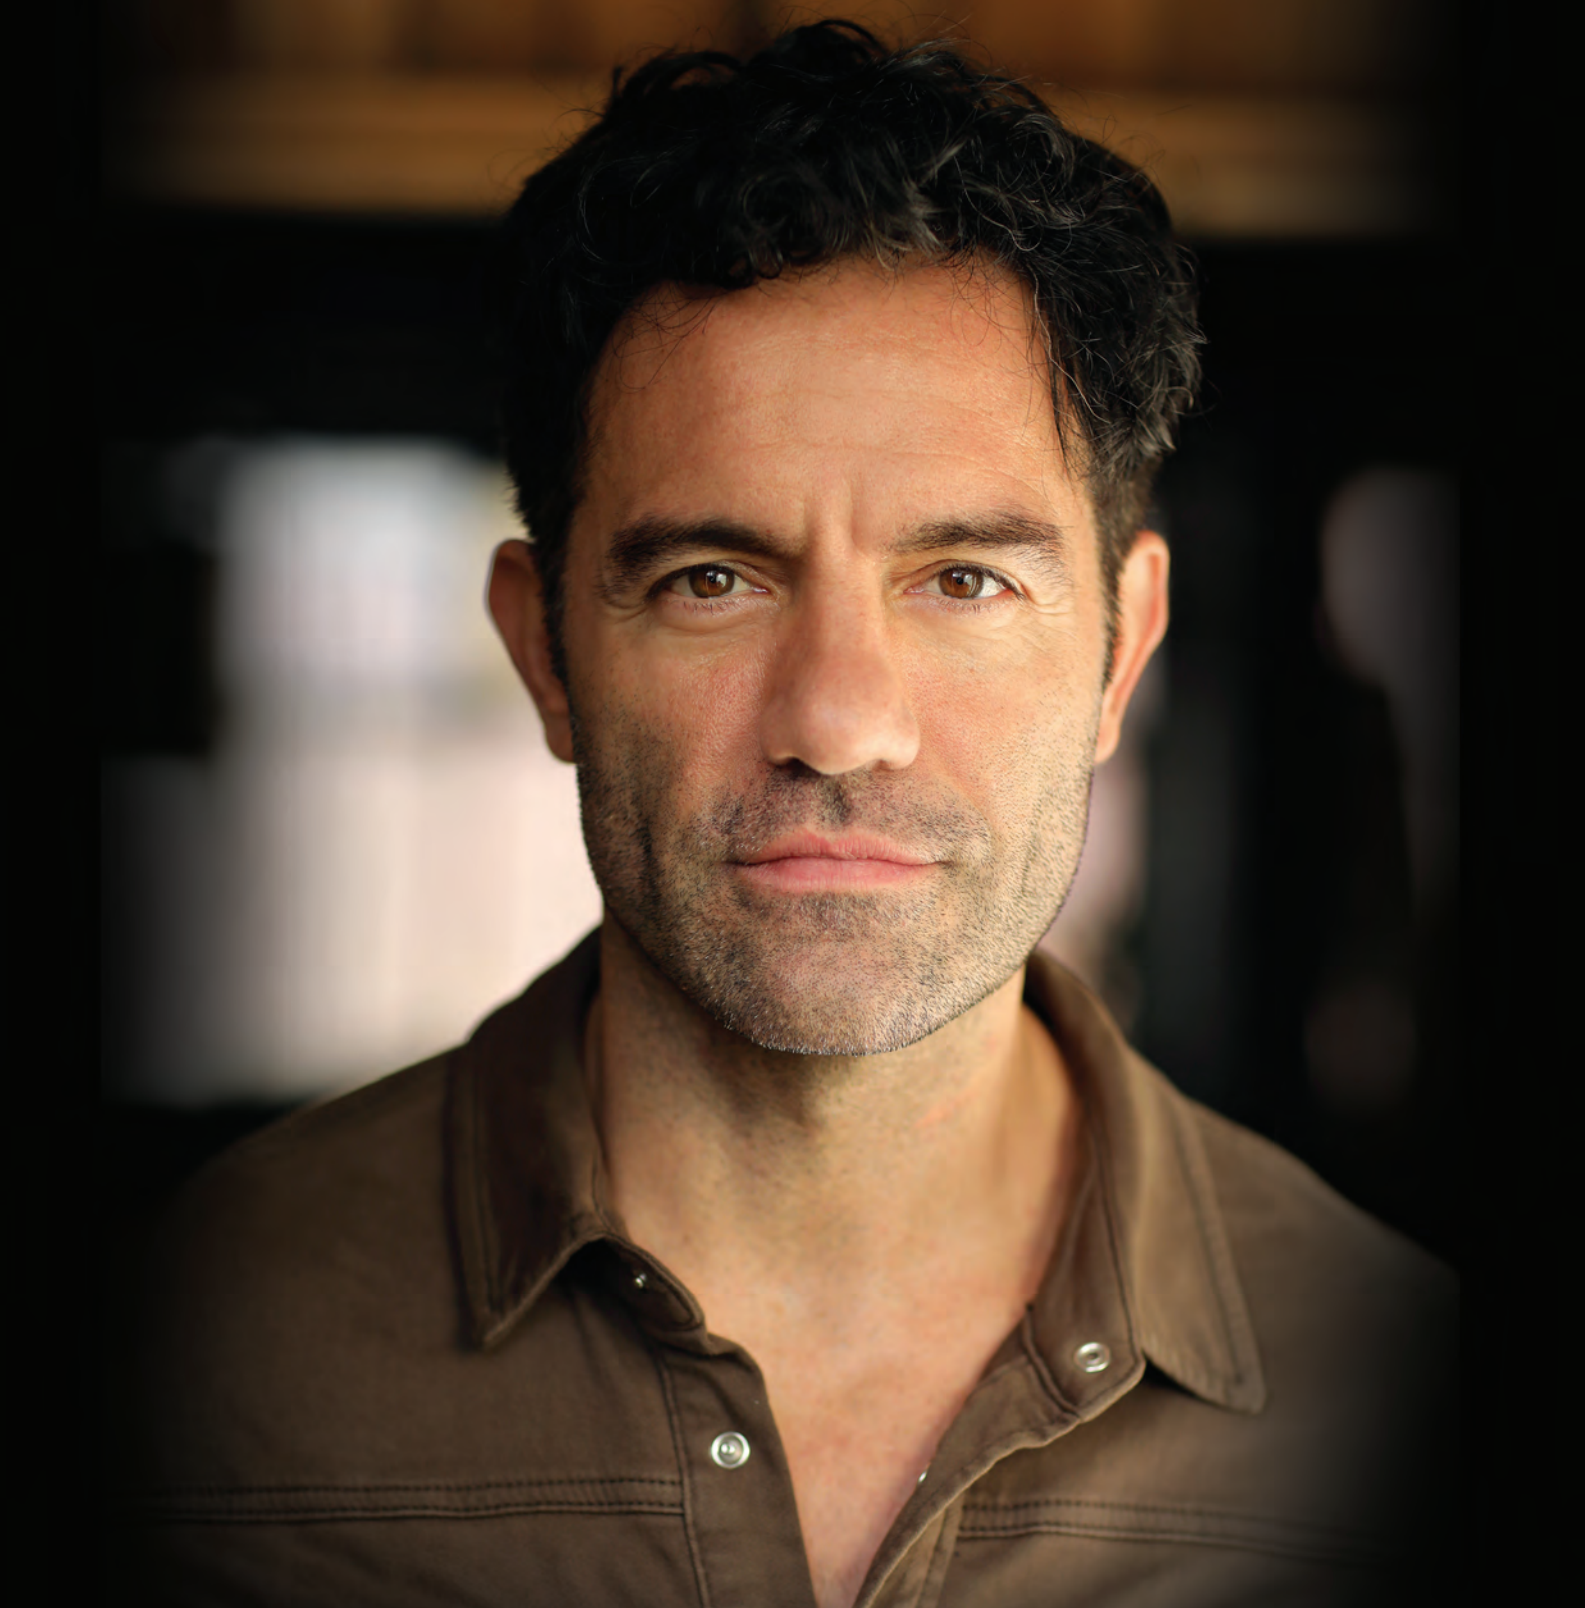

Birmingham Festival Choral Society

St George's Church, Edgbaston, Birmingham, Sat 11 July

Specialising in a wide variety of choral music from the 16th to the 21st century, Birmingham Festival Choral Society stage three main concerts each year. The society's early-month offering sees them presenting an evening of uplifting spirituals, performing works by Rutter (Feel The Spirit), Hogan, Bartholomew, Chilcott and Washburn. David Wynne conducts.

CUTTING IT

Ramin Karimloo talks about taking the title role in a new production of Sweeney Todd...

A new production of Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber Of Fleet Street opens at Birmingham Rep this month. Under the direction of Joe Murphy, this latest incarnation of the Stephen Sondheim classic sees musical theatre legend Ramin Karimloo take on the title role of Sweeney - a barber whose plans for his customers extend way beyond giving them a short back & sides...

Actor Ramin Karimloo has sung many of the most iconic roles in musical theatre, including the Phantom in The Phantom Of The Opera and Love Never Dies and Jean Valjean in Les Misérables, but despite a career which has seen him performing on Broadway and in the West End, this summer is the first time he will play Sweeney Todd. Ramin takes up the cut-throat razor of the Demon Barber of Fleet Street in a new production of the hit Stephen Sondheim & Hugh Wheeler musical, produced by Birmingham Rep and directed by the theatre's artistic director, Joe Murphy. And the Iranian-Canadian actor, singer & songwriter is looking forward to bringing the role to life.

"Sweeney is one of those rare characters who feels almost inexhaustible," Ramin explains. "On the surface, he's become this mythic figure, almost a cautionary tale, but underneath that is a man shaped by loss, injustice and a kind of emotional fracture that feels very human.

"What draws me to him isn't a desire to define him too quickly but to explore that space between the man he was and the figure he becomes.

"There's something unsettlingly relatable in that. The idea of how far someone can be pushed and what happens when grief and anger go unresolved."

Based on a Victorian Penny Dreadful, Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber Of Fleet Street tells the story of Benjamin Barker, who is wrongfully sent to a penal colony and returns to London bent on revenge. Taking the new name of Sweeney Todd and opening a barber's shop, he joins forces with the baker Mrs Lovett to launch a murderous regime in which he cuts the throats of his customers and Mrs Lovett turns them into tasty pies.

Ramin, who will be sharing the stage with Meow Meow as Mrs Lovett and David Bedella as Judge Turpin, is keen to delve into the multi-layered character of Sweeney.

"The role feels like a real gift. With Sondheim, so much of the work is already there on the page, in the language, in the rhythm, in the way the music carries thought and emotion. You're not having to impose something onto it - you're listening, responding, and allowing it to lead you.

"Of course, there's a responsibility that comes with a role people know so well, but for me the focus is always on staying present with it rather than trying to measure up to anything outside the room.

"The richness of the writing gives you permission to explore, to sit in the contradictions, and to trust that if you honour what's there, something truthful will come through."

Premiered on Broadway in 1979, Sweeney Todd is often described as one of the most demanding musical theatre roles to sing, but Ramin says it's all about working with the music: "I think 'challenge' can sometimes be the wrong word - it's more about precision and trust. With Sondheim, the music and the text are so intricately connected that you can't separate the two. Every rhythm, every shift in melody is carrying thought - so the work is really about honouring that, rather than trying to push against it.

"If you stay present and let the writing lead, it actually supports you. The discipline is in listening closely enough to follow it, rather than imposing something on top of it."

Sondheim, whose other works include Into The Woods and Sunday In The Park With George, is a stalwart of 20th century musical theatre, with Sweeney Todd being one of his most popular shows.

"I think Sweeney Todd works on a few levels at once. It has the scale and thrill of something almost operatic, but at its core it's a very human story about loss, love, and what happens when those things become distorted. That combination makes it both entertaining and unsettling in equal measure.

"And then, of course, you have the writing. Stephen Sondheim created something incredibly rich. It's dark, it's funny, it's precise and it doesn't ask the audience to sit comfortably. It invites them to lean in, to question, and to recognise elements of themselves in places they might not expect. That's what gives it a kind of lasting power."

For Ramin, the attraction of the show is not just having the chance to play Sweeney but being able to do so in a new production here in Birmingham.

"What really drew me in was the opportunity to work with Joe Murphy. From our first conversations, there was an energy and openness that felt both inspiring and supportive. It didn't feel like coming in with fixed ideas, but rather the chance to explore something together.

"That sense of collaboration is hugely important to me. The Rep has a real history of nurturing bold, actor-led work, and this felt like the right place and the right people to take on something as rich and demanding as this piece."

He is looking forward to spending time in the city.

"I wouldn't say I know Birmingham particularly well, even though I have worked here a few times over the years. But that is actually something I'm looking forward to changing. There's something nice about arriving somewhere without too many preconceptions and allowing yourself to discover it as you go.

"For me, it's often less about ticking off specific places and more about getting a feel for the city; its rhythm, its people, its character. That usually ends up feeding the work in ways you don't expect, so I'm looking forward to spending time there and letting that side of it reveal itself."

And Ramin hopes his portrayal of Sweeney will also bring new revelations to the audience: "I came to the piece without a long personal history with it, so I didn't feel tied to any one interpretation from the outset. That's been quite freeing in a way, because it allows you to approach it with fresh eyes and let the work speak to you as you go.

"I hope audiences feel engaged by it, that they lean in, that it stays with them in some way, whether that's through the music, the story or something more personal. It's a piece that doesn't sit comfortably, and I think there's something valuable in that. If it sparks a reaction or a conversation, then it's doing its job."

Comedy previews from across the region...

Ayoade Bamgboye

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Thurs 23 July

Born in London, raised in Lagos, sacked in Budapest (she was working as an assistant to film director Yorgos Lanthimos on his movie Poor Things) is how Ayoade Bamgboye describes herself.

Another description would be 'Edinburgh Fringe debutant who walked away with the Best Newcomer award in 2025'. Ayoade is heading for Birmingham this month with the stand-up offering that earned her that coveted festival gong last summer.

Taking the title Swings & Roundabouts, the show is about 'going nowhere fast, being too British to stop apologising and too Nigerian to stop shouting'.

Comedy All Stars

Dudley Town Hall, Sat 25 July

The Comedy All Stars show returns to Dudley Town Hall late this month with another line-up of top comedians... The show will feature sets by Milton Jones, Nick Helm (pictured), Aurie Styla and Babatunde Aléshé.

Paul Smith

The Halls Wolverhampton, Sat 4 July; Victoria Hall, Stoke-on-Trent, Wed 29 July & Wed 11 November; Dudley Town Hall, Wed 19 August; Utilita Arena Birmingham, Fri 25 September

Affable Liverpool comedian Paul Smith has waxed lyrical on all manner of topics in his time, including such peculiar subjects as who he'd most like to be haunted by (Ghandi - Paul reckons he'd do it quite quietly) and which is the largest animal he thinks he could beat in a fight (a goose). He's also 'died' on stage in front of a Babylon 5 actress, who made matters worse for him by shaking her head in pity... Widely regarded as one of the comedy circuit's most accomplished MCs, Paul has made a real name for himself courtesy of online video clips which almost routinely go viral.

James Acaster

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Mon 20 - Wed 22 July

Long established as one of the UK's leading comics, James Acaster was nominated for the Edinburgh Fringe's Best Comedy Show award for five consecutive years back in the 2010s - a fact which provides irrefutable evidence of the consistently high quality of his material.

James peddles a style that initially makes his humour seem awkward and shambolic. He gets away with doing so by virtue of the fact that his writing is so solidly brilliant, blending observational comedy with a selection of more eccentric pieces. He's visiting the region this month as part of a UK tour.

Gary Delaney

Lichfield Garrick, Wed 22 July; Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Thurs 10 September; The Alexandra, Birmingham, Tues 22 September; Royal Spa Centre, Leamington Spa, Fri 2 October; Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Fri 23 October; Dudley Town Hall, Sun 1 November

"The hardest part of running competitively in Wales must be keeping up with the Joneses," quips the ever-popular Gary Delaney. And Gary's certainly no one-joke pony: "My girlfriend's dog died, so to cheer her up, I went out and got her an identical one. She was livid and yelled 'What am I going to do with two dead dogs?'" Suffice it to say there will be plenty more gags where those came from when the Solihull-born funnyman visits Lichfield with his latest touring show, Gary On Laughing.

Michelle Wolf

Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Thurs 2 July

American funnywoman Michelle Wolf probably remains best known for her infamous headline set at the White House Correspondents' Dinner, during which she told a series of gags that rattled Republicans and Democrats alike. Indeed, President Trump, who'd boycotted the evening, was so appalled by her performance that he called her "a filthy 'comedian'". She's certainly an acquired taste - her sets have included gags about otter rape, for example - but acclaimed specials on HBO and Netflix have seen her steadily build a global fanbase.

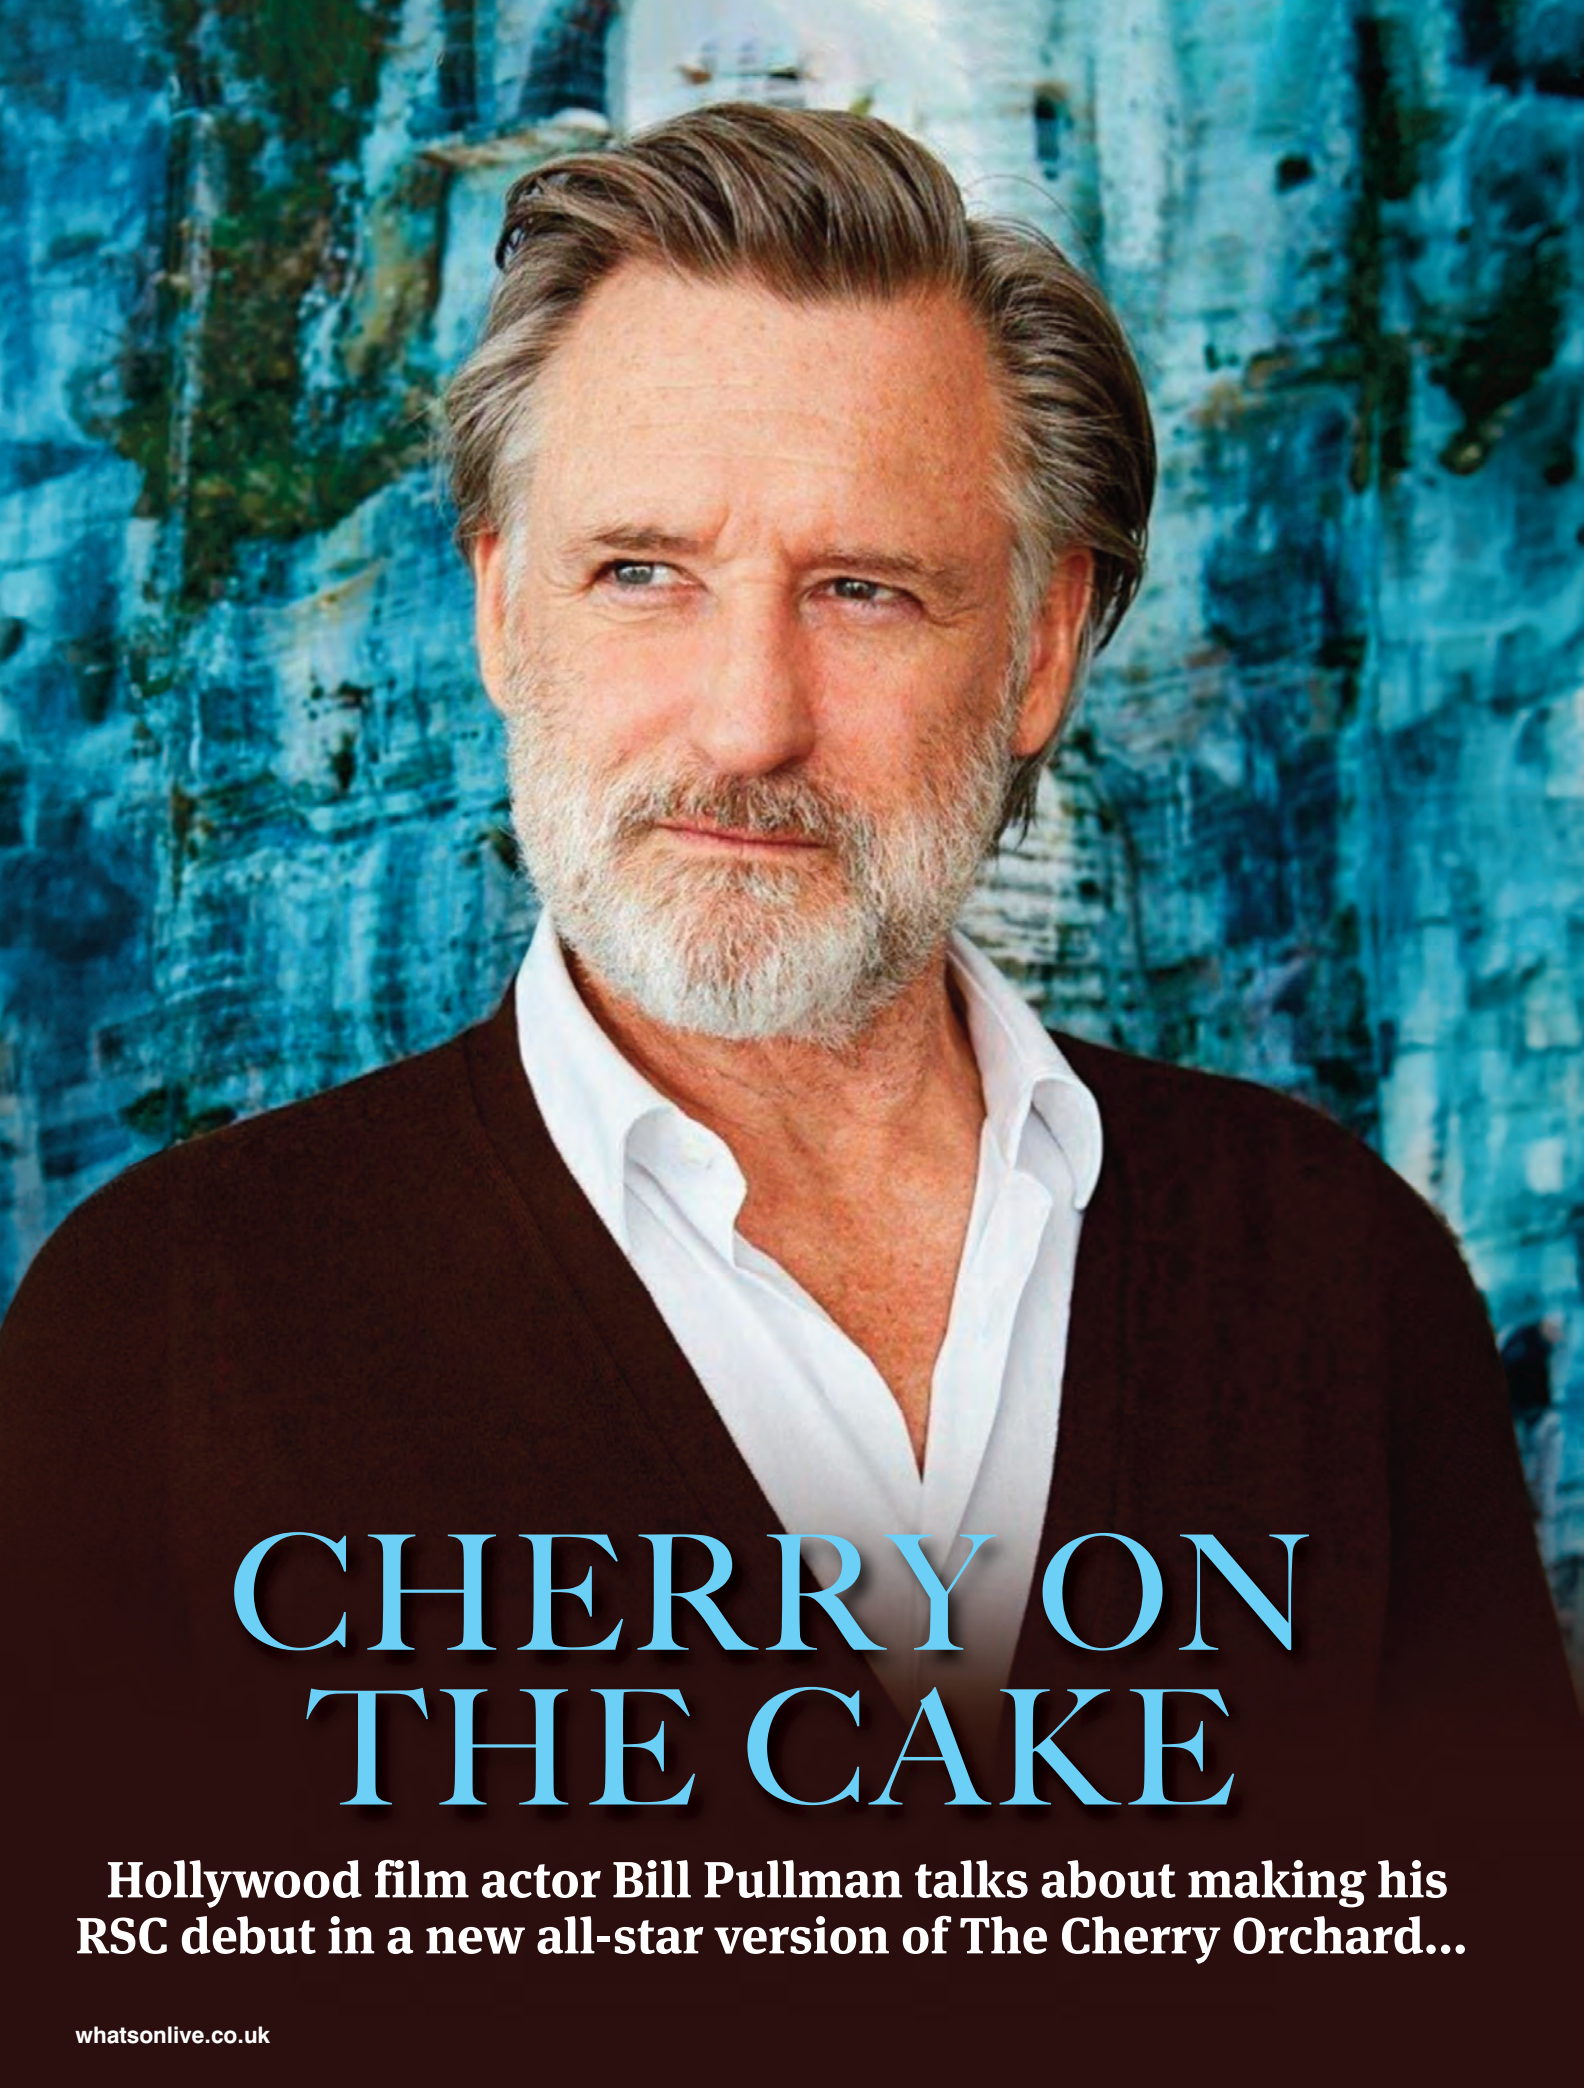

Shrewsbury International Comedy Festival

Various locations, Shrewsbury, Wed 8 - Sun 12 July

As well as being a hotbed of food, flowers and folk music, Shrewsbury in recent times has become a centre of comedy excellence, thanks to this hugely popular event. As on previous occasions, the 2026 edition of the multi-venue laugh-in is brought to a close with a special gala event at Theatre Severn.

The finale show will feature sets by Esther Manito, Lou Sanders, Morgan Rees, Frankie Monroe, Ignacio Lopez and Scott Bennett. Other comedians contributing to the festival across its five days include Lindsey Santoro, Stuart Goldsmith, Clinton Baptiste and Tez Ilyas (all pictured below).

CHERRY ON THE CAKE

Hollywood film actor Bill Pullman talks about making his RSC debut in a new all-star version of The Cherry Orchard...

Bill Pullman is one of three movie stars - alongside Sir Kenneth Branagh and Helen Hunt - appearing in a new version of The Cherry Orchard at the Royal Shakespeare Company's Swan Theatre this summer. The Hollywood veteran tells What's On about his first visit to the RSC - back in the 1970s - his love of trees, and how his apparent 'guest star' role in the production came about...

The region's hottest theatre ticket this year is undoubtedly the Royal Shakespeare Company's (RSC) new production of Anton Chekhov's The Cherry Orchard, which boasts three bona fide Hollywood A-listers among its cast. Tickets for the show sold out almost instantly, such was the pulling power of its initially announced stars Sir Kenneth Branagh and Helen Hunt - only for fellow movie legend Bill Pullman to be added to the 28-strong ensemble a few weeks later. Probably best known for playing the US president in 1996 blockbuster Independence Day, the actor's extensive CV also includes the likes of Spaceballs (and its upcoming sequel), The Accidental Tourist, Sleepless In Seattle and Lost Highway. More recently he's taken the lead role in four seasons of Netflix's The Sinner and also appeared in The Boroughs.

Wrapping work on another project contributed to initial confusion over whether he'd officially signed up for the RSC role, but the unintentional delay also had a few upsides. Not only did it suggest he was the show's guest star - as well as a bonus for those who had already booked tickets - but he says being unveiled after the fact suits him just fine.

"I got no pressure!" laughs the amiable 72-year-old, who hails from upstate New York but now lives in Los Angeles. Given how age-defying he looks and sounds, the California lifestyle evidently agrees with him.

"Tickets were sold out. It wasn't like I was brought in to add five more people on the bus or something."

It turns out the delay was purely down to communication issues ("I thought it was a slam dunk"), since he was never going to pass up the chance to perform at a venue he'd made a pilgrimage to while a college student in the early 1970s. Was visiting the theatre a big deal for a fledgling American thespian?

"That's a good question, because there are a number of actors that probably don't have it on their radar like I did," he says, attributing his interest to "a little bit of propaganda the RSC put out in the 60s".

"I was in high school, and there was a substitute teacher who didn't know what to teach," he explains. "She'd come across a 16mm film that the UK government funded about Christopher Plummer as a young actor in Stratford-upon-Avon, riding his bike to work. It was totally out of context, but it dripped into my DNA what a beautiful thing to be an actor and riding around on a bicycle. And then to come here, it was like Mecca - it didn't disappoint."

That initial visit afforded Bill the chance to take in a matinee performance of Macbeth - as well as sample one of the local delicacies...

"I got some fish & chips to eat on the coach on the way back," he recalls, whimsically. "They were about the best I ever had. I think that was the last time I had chips wrapped in newspaper."

We've moved on from doing that now, I tell him.

"That's too bad - there might have been a little flavour in the ink."

Taste is a sense the actor relies on more than most, having lost the ability to smell over 50 years ago following an accident when he fell from the shoulders of another actor during rehearsals for a play.

"I was in a coma for two and a half days, and when I came out, I didn't have a sense of smell," he says matter-of-factly. He's attempted to get it back without success, but says the condition ("it's called anosmia") has almost certainly heightened his sense of taste.

"When I first went to California, I was walking down the street with an actor friend and there was this orange tree. I'd never seen one before, so we had tree-ripened fruit there and then. I couldn't smell it, but the taste was so perfect.

"The first taste of tree-ripened fruit is a whole different experience to the ones that get shipped, so I had to have trees that I could watch and see if I could beat the squirrels to the fruit."

The fascination didn't stop there. For the last 15 years, he and wife Tamara have run Hollywood Orchard, a non-profit organisation that harvests, uses and donates locally grown fruit to needy families, working with food charities and hosting workshops and pop-up kitchen events.

He also co-owns a ranch in Montana with his brother where he gets to spend time outdoors and escape the day job - although he admits it can make it hard to return.

"Sometimes it's a little scary because you get your head into that world and then you come [back] into this one... you've really got to be able to compartmentalise."

His role on the farm primarily seems to involve making repairs ("we have fires that wipe out fences") and chopping down and clearing dead trees - which brings us nicely back on point, and the play we're here to talk about. It turns out he's had "a very serious engagement with orchards" virtually his entire life.

"They've had mystical levels of attraction for me. I remember taking an acting class and they asked us to bring in a book that was important to us and do prop work with it. I brought Fruits For The Home Garden."

The actor's affection for the genuine article seems clear, but what about Chekhov's Cherry Orchard?

"[It's] a play I read in college and did a scene from, but I didn't really relate to the younger characters at the time. Now I've aged a bit, it's like 'Oh my God, I get it.'"

The battle for a prized estate - and its titular fruit trees - depicted in Chekhov's final play is effectively a commentary on the class struggles that beset the Russian Empire around the time of the Russian Revolution, but the allegory has a contemporary resonance too. Bill remains fairly tight-lipped about the new version (by Olivier Award-winning playwright Laura Wade) save for a cryptic reference to a letter he received from director Tamara Harvey when she first offered him the role.

"The content of it was so interesting to me, and the way she thought about the character of Gaev. When I looked at the script, I could feel exactly what she had kind of baited me with."

There are clearly parallels to be drawn with modern society and divisive contemporary politics, as well as an environmental message ("they weren't good stewards of the land"), but Bill is just as keen to focus on the manic family dynamic and the characters' total lack of morals as they debate what to do in the face of spiralling debts.

"They don't really know how to behave, and the corruption is eating away at them.

There's something really brilliant about the human mind that can live quite blissfully with denial."

He also believes the play - which he's quick to point out is as much fun as it is intellectually stimulating - provides a fascinating prism through which to view the trials and tribulations of the human condition.

"Denial is more than a river in Egypt," he jokes. "They can go from deep despair to high mayhem in an instant, just because of the need to escape the truth. It's passionate and emotional... and insane."

Matilda The Musical Birmingham Hippodrome, Wed 1 July - Sun 2 August

Matilda is an extraordinary child, but her parents think she's a nuisance. When they're not glued to the television set, her mum practises ballroom dancing and her dad gloats about his latest dodgy business deal.

Life at school isn't much better for Matilda either. Then, one day, she discovers that she's got very special powers and decides it's high time the grown-ups were taught a much-needed lesson...

Adapted from one of Roald Dahl's best-loved books... the Royal Shakespeare Company's stage-musical version of Matilda - complete with music & lyrics by comedian Tim Minchin - has been delighting West End audiences for 15 years, during which time it's bagged in excess of 100 international awards.

The Karate Kid The Musical

The Alexandra, Birmingham, Tues 21 July - Sat 25 July

Martial arts movie The Karate Kid - one of the highest-grossing films of 1984 - saw bullied teenager Daniel LaRusso turn his fate around with the help of a mentor named Mr Miyagi...

Now, the film's story is being retold in this critically acclaimed stage-musical version, which is currently on its first-ever tour of the UK. "The story isn't about karate per se - it's about human connection," says Singapore-raised veteran Adrian Pang, who stars as Mr Miyagi. "These two fish-out-of-water misfits, living in their own bubbles, find a way to connect despite generational and cultural differences. Two different worlds collide, and they form this bond and friendship."

Waitress

Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Mon 6 - Sat 11 July

This smash-hit Broadway and West End musical is based on the 2007 movie of the same name and visits the Midlands with West End favourite Carrie Hope Fletcher heading the cast.

Expert pie maker Jenna is trapped in a loveless marriage to a controlling and abusive man and dreams of a better future. When a baking contest - and the town's new doctor - provide her with the hope of something better, she has to decide whether she can find the courage to rebuild her life...

Billed as a musical celebration of friendship, motherhood, and the magic of a well-made pie, Waitress co-stars Les Dennis as Old Joe, with Evelyn Hoskins and Sandra Marvin also featuring.

The Choir Of Man

The Alexandra, Birmingham, Tues 14 - Sat 18 July; Malvern Theatres, Tues 21 - Sat 25 July; Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, Tues 20 - Sat 24 October

A huge success in the West End, with an Olivier Award nomination further proving its credentials, The Choir Of Man is no conventional theatre production. Set in a pub, featuring 'a wildly talented group of incredible instrumentalists, world-class wordsmiths, and sensational singers', it's brimming with hits from artists including Queen, Luther Vandross, Paul Simon, Adele and Katy Perry. There's no story to follow as such - the show maybe feels more like a gig than a play - but there's certainly plenty to enjoy across its near two-hour running time.

The Spy Who Came In From The Cold

The Alexandra, Birmingham, until Sat 4 July

The Spy Who Came In From The Cold was John le Carré's third book and established the former MI5 and MI6 employee as a significant name in the spy-novel genre.

Not only written but also set during the Cold War era, its story focuses on the character of Alec Leamas, a British intelligence officer who's persuaded to undertake one final, dangerous, deceptive and deeply personal mission...

This acclaimed stage production is out on tour following a sold-out run at Chichester Festival Theatre. Ralf Little takes the title role.

Richard III

Stafford Gatehouse Theatre, until Sat 4 July

The murderous and machiavellian Duke of Gloucester, better known - but only once he's ascended the throne, of course - as Richard III, is perhaps the most powerful and evil of all theatre villains.

Shakespeare's brutal play follows Gloucester's blood-soaked trail as he uses all his skills as a lover, a liar, a trickster and a tyrant to seize power and become the King of England... Matthew Duckett, whose acting CV includes Netflix's film version of Lady Chatterley's Lover, takes the title role.

Surinderella

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Thurs 16 - Sun 19 July

Rifco Theatre Company have been producing live entertainment celebrating contemporary British South Asian experiences for a quarter of a century. Their latest show sees them turning their attention to the beloved theatre tradition of 'the great British pantomime' - but complete with a Bollywood-blockbuster-style twist!

Expect magic, makeovers, selfie-obsessed stepsisters, and a mould-breaking title character...

MANBand

Crescent Theatre, Birmingham, Mon 27 - Wed 29 July

A feelgood tale about four music-loving pub regulars wanting one last shot at fame and fortune, Bloomin' Good Productions' MANBand is showing at the Crescent Theatre as part of Birmingham Fest 2026.

Blue Mist

The Rep, Birmingham, Wed 22 - Sat 25 July

Truth, trust and ambition come under the spotlight in Mohamed-Zain Dada's 'darkly funny' Olivier Award-nominated play.

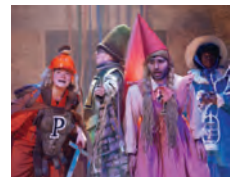

When aspiring journalist Jihad wins the chance to make his own documentary, he sets out to give voice to his community and challenge the usual stereotypes that fill the airwaves. But in a media landscape that profits off fear, how far can one voice really go?... Blue Mist is being presented by Boundless Theatre in association with Tamasha, a long-established British Asian company whose plays aim to reflect the realities of life in a multicultural society.

A Midsummer Night's Dream

The Other Place, Stratford-upon-Avon, until Sunday 30 August

This fresh retelling of A Midsummer Night's Dream - made with youngsters very much in mind - sees the Royal Shakespeare Company teaming up with leading children's theatre ensemble Unicorn for the very first time.

The show has proved a big hit with adults as well as kids, courtesy of its fast-track storytelling (it runs for just 80 interval-free minutes), eye-catching design and innovative creative captioning.

Game Of Thrones: The Mad King

Royal Shakespeare Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, Mon 20 July - Sat 5 September

Premiering at the Royal Shakespeare Company this month, Game Of Thrones: The Mad King is a prequel to the original books and HBO's long-running television series. Described as 'a sweeping new stage epic', the production spans the final years before the events of the original novels, which were written by George RR Martin, who is serving as executive producer on the show.

"When I first wrote Game Of Thrones, I never imagined that it would be anything other than a book," says George. "For me, the RSC was the obvious choice when thinking about putting a Game Of Thrones story on the stage. Shakespeare is the greatest name in English literature, and his plays have been a constant source of inspiration to me and my writing."

The Rocky Horror Show

The Alexandra, Birmingham, Mon 6 - Sat 11 July

Hook up your fishnets, tighten your corsets and prepare to 'do The Time Warp again' - The Rocky Horror Show is returning to the Midlands! Richard O'Brien's cult production tells the tale of the straight-laced Brad and the deliciously corruptible Janet, who arrive at the castle of the alien transvestite Frank N Furter and witness the birth of the monster, Rocky. Along the way, they take the audience through a selection of love-'em-or-loathe-'em musical numbers, including Damn It Janet, Sweet Transvestite, and The Time Warp. Great fun's a guarantee - particularly if you get into the spirit of things and attend the show dressed in your very best stockings & suspenders (as many patrons do)!

The Band

Lichfield Garrick, Tues 14 - Sat 18 July

Written by Tim Firth and featuring the music of Take That, The Band is a story about the power which music can have over people.

For five teenage girls, their favourite boyband and the music they play are everything. Twenty-five years later, the quintet attempt to rekindle their friendship with a trip to a concert by the band they loved so dearly as teenagers. But none of the ladies' lives have turned out quite the way they were expecting... Presented by Sutton Coldfield Musical Theatre Company.

I'm Sorry Prime Minister

Malvern Theatres, Tues 28 July - Sat 1 August

Jonathan Lynn, who co-wrote the satirical television sitcoms Yes, Minister and Yes, Prime Minister, is the creative force behind this related stage play, which sees the return of the aforementioned series' main characters: Jim Hacker and Sir Humphrey Appleby.

Former PM Hacker's desire for a quiet life as master of an Oxford college is spectacularly upended when he finds himself facing the ultimate modern crisis - being cancelled by the college committee. Enter the delightfully devious Sir Humphrey, who's lost none of his love for bureaucracy, Latin phrases, and well-timed obstruction...

The Changeling

Oldbury Rep, Sat 11 - Sat 18 July

Oldbury Rep Players once again tread the boards in the middle of this month, presenting the world premiere of Paul Steventon-Marks' reimagining of the Dracula myth. The Players have previously performed another of the award-winning playwright's works: Frankenstein - A Monster In Paris.

After Party

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Thurs 30 July - Sat 1 August & Wed 9 - Sat 12 September

The Belgrade here joins forces with Traverse Theatre and Paines Plough to present preview performances of award-winning playwright Morna Young's latest offering. Actress and matriarch Vivienne Blackwood summons her fractured family to an 80th-birthday celebration. As old tensions surface and beliefs collide, Vivienne's real reason for gathering her relatives together soon becomes apparent...

The production returns to the Belgrade in September.

Boiler Room Six: A Titanic Story

Albany Theatre, Coventry, Sat 18 July

In the final hours of 14 April 1912, the RMS Titanic, on her maiden voyage from Southampton to New York, collided with an iceberg. The 'unsinkable ship' slowly sank. It was one of the most tragic disasters of the 20th century, with 1,517 men, women and children losing their lives.

One man who survived was the ship's stoker, Frederick Barrett - and it's his story of that fateful night that Boiler Room Six explores. The production stops off in Coventry this month as part of a UK tour.

Othello

Lichfield Cathedral, Tues 7 July; Coughton Court, Warwickshire, Fri 10 July; Shrewsbury Castle, Tues 28 & Wed 29 July; Alderford Lake, Whitchurch, North Shropshire, Tues 11 August; Bantock House & Gardens, Wolverhampton, Sat 15 August

Shakespeare’s tragic tale of lost handkerchiefs, ruined reputations and mistreated wives has always been one of theatre’s most powerful stories. When Iago is overlooked for promotion by Othello, his Machiavellian mind turns to thoughts of vengeance. Othello’s willingness to be led by the nose is all grist to Iago’s mill, and fatal consequences ensue... The production is presented by the well-established and all-male Lord Chamberlain’s Men, who are taking on the challenge of performing Othello for the very first time in their history.

The Three Musketeers

Winterbourne Gardens, Birmingham, Fri 3 July

There’s plenty of swashbuckling fun to be had in Illyria’s lighthearted stage version of Alexandre Dumas’ classic adventure novel. Set against a sweeping backdrop of 17th-century war-torn France, the play is being advertised by Illyria as a coming together of peril, politics and passion. The long-established theatricals wish to make it clear that younger children are most welcome at the show - assuming, they say, that they’re brave enough to attend...

The Great Gatsby

The Old Place, Deansway, Worcester, Wed 29 July

The critically acclaimed This Is My Theatre is the company behind this stage adaptation of F Scott Fitzgerald’s literary masterpiece. Set in the American Jazz Age of the Roaring 20s, the story focuses on the quixotic passion of mysterious millionaire Jay Gatsby for the beautiful former debutante Daisy Buchanan. In the process of recounting the tale - told through the eyes of Gatsby’s Long Island neighbour, Nick Carraway - Fitzgerald presents not only the story of a delightfully decadent decade but also a cautionary tale about the American Dream...

King Arthur And The Holy Fail

Shrewsbury Castle, Thurs 23 July

The ever-impressive Three Inch Fools return with an epic tale of Arthurian adventure and medieval mayhem. Here’s the show’s set-up, as described by the Fools themselves: “When Camelot is rocked to its core by a tragic - and frankly improbable - incident involving a large table of an undisclosed shape, Arthur is thrust into the quest of a lifetime. Will he bravely battle through blistering cold and scorching fire to save his beloved realm, or will he crumble as fate refuses to cooperate?”

Romeo And Juliet

Compton Verney, Warwickshire, Sat 11 July; Avoncroft Museum, Bromsgrove, Sun 12 July

Zany funsters Oddsocks make a welcome return to the region, this time with their sure-to-be-entertaining adaptation of Shakespeare’s famous story of star-crossed lovers. “Our inclusive approach means that varied communities across the UK are able to engage with theatre,” say the company’s founders and husband & wife team, Andy Barrow and Elli Mackenzie. “We aim to tell good stories in a fun, informative way, gently challenging people’s perceptions and the way in which they react to theatre.”

Northanger Abbey

The Commandery, Worcester, Thurs 16 - Sun 19 & Thurs 23 - Sun 26 July

Jane Austen’s classic satire tells the story of the bookish Catherine Morland, a 17-year-old girl whose obsession with Gothic horror novels helps fuel her imagination when she visits Northanger Abbey. The the one-time church and home of her suitor, Henry Tilney, is a place in which Catherine soon finds fact and fiction colliding... Presented by Worcester Repertory Company.

Jeeves And Wooster In Stiff Upper Lip, Jeeves

The Amphitheatre, Telford Town Park, Wed 22 July

The wonderful world of PG Wodehouse lands in Telford as the ever-affable Bertie Wooster yet again gets himself into the type of terrible tangle from which only his razor-sharp valet Jeeves can extricate him. Comical escapades abound in an outdoor show featuring live jazz music performed by an ensemble of actor-musicians.

Theatre for younger audiences

Bluey's Big Play

Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, Thurs 23 - Sun 26 July

Blue Heeler puppy Bluey has certainly had plenty to bark about since making her television debut eight years ago. The Australian animated pre-school series in which she stars has not only developed a huge international fanbase but also picked up a prestigious Emmy award. On the back of such global success, it was only a matter of time before the popular pup's adventures made it onto the stage... This 50-minute show finds Bluey and younger sister Bingo determined to thwart their dad's plan to enjoy a quiet Sunday afternoon...

Mr Sleepybum's Dream Machine

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Sat 4 July; Little Theatre, Donnington, Shropshire, Sat 21 November

With accolades and glittering gongs aplenty to recommend it, Mr Sleepybum was a show well worth checking out. Now, the title character - a fella who has 'stupid, silly dreams' at night - is making a welcome return with this brand-new production.

Running for one hour and suitable for children aged between three and eight, the show sees Mr Sleepybum invent a machine that magically brings to life all manner of dreams, including ones featuring dinosaurs, robots, car chases and, er, the world's largest blanket!

The Dinosaur That Pooped

Stafford Gatehouse Theatre, Wed 22 July; Lichfield Garrick, Sat 12 September; Birmingham Town Hall, Sun 8 November

Tom Fletcher and Dougie Poynter's touring production features new songs, a lot of laughs and (not surprisingly given the show's title) a whole load of poo!

Based on Tom and Dougie's bestselling children's books, The Dinosaur That Pooped follows Danny and Dino as they try to get hold of the last two tickets to their favourite rock band's final concert. But with a villainous band manager lurking, nothing goes according to plan... Will the band perform? Will Danny rock out? Or will Dino's rumbling tummy save the day?...

The Tiger Who Came To Tea

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Mon 20 - Tues 21 July; Stafford Gatehouse Theatre, Fri 24 July

Everybody's favourite tea-guzzling tiger is back in town, dropping in on Sophie and her mum just as they're settling down for an afternoon cuppa... Adapted by David Wood from the late Judith Kerr's 1968 book of the same name, this 55-minute show features singalong songs and plenty of magic - not to mention a big, stripy tiger, of course!

Dinosaur Adventure Live

The Core Theatre, Solihull, Tues 28 July

Dinosaurs are once again roaming the Midlands this summer, thanks to this interactive show for all the family to enjoy. Youngsters get to meet a host of impressive prehistoric creatures - including, of course, every child's favourite flesh-eating giant: the Tyrannosaurus Rex.

In The Night Garden Live

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Fri 31 July & Sat 1 August

If your little ones are big fans of CBeebies television series In The Night Garden, they're certain to love the live version as well. And it's not only the kids who're in love with the stage show. Audience surveys and parents' reviews reveal that, for nine out of 10 adults, the production is a five-out-of-five theatrical experience... This currently touring show is titled Igglepiggle's Busy Day.

Out Of The Box

The Ampitheatre, Telford Town Park, Sat 25 July

A toothbrush stars in a balancing act, a string sparks a heist, and a tea party lands on someone's head. Welcome to the wonderful world of Darryl J Carrington, a performer with more than 20 years of circus and clowning experience who transforms 'everyday objects into extraordinary adventures'. The show is non-verbal and visits Telford with a host of five-star reviews to recommend it.

The Sword In The Stone

Brueton Park, Solihull, Sat 25 July

Cambridge Touring Productions is the company behind this family-friendly outdoor offering. The story focuses on two characters - young Wart and his friend Morgan - as they head for London. Along the way, they meet a selection of colourful characters and learn some seriously useful lessons about courage, friendship, and finding your way in the big, wide world.

GROWN UP

Matilda The Musical returns to Birmingham

Matilda has had quite a journey. The strong-willed schoolgirl first appeared in Roald Dahl's 1988 novel, then made her big-screen debut eight years later, and eventually took to the stage in Stratford-upon-Avon in 2010, in the Royal Shakespeare Company's smash-hit show Matilda The Musical. The production has since delighted audiences around the world and is now on a tour of the UK and Ireland. What's On spoke to Rob Howell, the show's award-winning designer, to find out more...

Matilda The Musical has become a global phenomenon. First staged at the Royal Shakespeare Company's (RSC) Courtyard Theatre 16 years ago, the production is now touring the UK and Ireland, stopping off at Birmingham Hippodrome this month.

Based on the book by Roald Dahl, Matilda tells the story of an extraordinary girl with a vivid imagination, who takes control of her own destiny...

Set & costume designer Rob Howell has been involved from the start, and has since received Olivier and Tony awards for the show's design. He told What's On that there was a long, gradual process of development before the inaugural performance.

During that time, as writer Dennis Kelly's script crystallised, and composer & lyricist Tim Minchin's songs were added into the mix, the creative team had to make a crucial decision - how would Matilda and her classmates be brought to life on stage?

"As Tim started writing the music and the script developed, it became clear that Matilda needs to be able to hold the stage," explains Rob. "Can you ask a young actor to walk out into the middle of a big stage, hold that stage on their own, and deliver the songs that Tim was writing? Or do you have to have a young adult?"

After a series of workshops to explore different possibilities - including using puppets - the production team finally settled on casting child actors in the central roles.

"It was an instant no-brainer - it was gold, straightaway," says Rob. "I enjoy puppets on stage, but it just wasn't going to be the same. It would have been a different style of production, which didn't seem right to what Tim was writing and Dennis had written."

Working on the production's costume and set, Rob dreamed up his own designs, rather than replicating the book's well-known Quentin Blake illustrations.

"Quentin Blake's amazing, but I had to be clear at the outset: were they asking me to stand up his drawings, or was I going my own way? And it was, 'No, you're going your own way...' That was liberating because it meant I could do my own thing. However, Quentin's Quentin, and it's inevitable that when you put a scruffy kid in a scruffy school uniform, it looks like a Quentin Blake scruffy drawing - but I wasn't looking at his drawings for clues."

However, an opportunity arose to have the illustrator's work represented on stage - Quentin was invited to design a blazer badge for Matilda's school, Crunchem Hall.

"The request went to Quentin and his studio. He sent a sketch back of a kid being banged over the head with a mallet. I put my lettering over the top of it for Crunchem Hall, and that's embroidered and made by the thousands now - hand stitched on the blazers that all the kids wear, all over the world."

With so many of the cast clothed in school uniforms, the show's costume design presents some unexpected challenges.

"You'd have thought that school uniform would be quite easy to get your hands on, but it's not, because different schools have different shapes, and they sell out at the obvious times of the year when everyone's buying school uniforms. [Dahl] was writing in the 80s, but he seems to be writing [about] schools and teachers and buildings and desks in the period of time between the wars - an important place and time for Dahl that he kept going back to."

Matilda was published in 1988, a time when school uniforms were more likely to feature tracksuit trousers and polo shirts. But Dahl conjured up a very different style in the book, which Rob has explored in his design.

"We've pushed it back to be a bit more austere - wool blazers, grey shorts and pleated skirts - because that seems to be the world that he was writing about. It's hinting at a 'yesteryear' rather than 'nowadays'. It's fascinating - even today, when it's playing in different places in the world, nobody's ever said to me, 'The uniform's too old-fashioned.' We all understand that language of slightly course, wool blazers."

Towering over the schoolkids is the formidable Miss Trunchbull, Crunchem Hall's cruel headmistress. Dahl paints a clear picture of the tank-like character in the book, and Rob found out more about her creation at the author's estate.

"I try not to get too close to the original source material - I certainly don't watch films, because I'm too easily distracted by somebody else's ideas. [Miss Trunchbull] is the clearest description of any of the characters in the story... When I went to see Lucy Dahl and the estate, they told me that Roald based it on a friend of his, and they showed me a picture of this friend - it was quite an extraordinary look!

"When we got onto the idea that Miss Trunchbull might be played by male actors, that opens up the door for a level of exaggeration, which we needed anyway to get her to be frightening and powerful... It's quite an early call for the actor playing Trunchbull to get into all of the underpinning and the makeup and the wig. It's hot, and they have to do some agile stuff with it, so it needs to be very flexible. It's a very cleverly made under-costume to give her the shape."

Designing the set, Rob used a motif of children's blocks covered in different letters of the alphabet, with the intention of creating a word-search game that is instinctively played by members of the audience, whether they're aged nine or 90...

"It doesn't matter how old you are, where you are, who you are - you're instantly playing the same game as everybody else. That's what I'm trying to do with the lettering on the set - when you look at the scenery, you might find a word the person next to you hasn't found, or maybe the eight-year-old found it before you did. That's more than just fun, that's life - kids can be quicker than us... It just levels everybody out."

The words hidden around the set also hint at events in the play - particularly a scene by writer Dennis Kelly in which Matilda invents a story for the school librarian.

"Matilda is telling the librarian her story on stage. She says, 'An acrobat and an escapologist want to get married...' The story goes on and it's delightful, but almost all of the words that are in Matilda's story are hidden in a wordsearch all over the set. You can find them if you look - you can find 'hug', you can find 'marriage'. You can also find 'burp', by the way!

"The one thing that I never get bored of is when I go to see the show and I'm there at the beginning. The audiences are going in, and you see families - kids, parents, grandparents - they've got there 10 minutes early or whatever, and the number of arms pointing up at the set... They're basically saying 'What have you found? I found acrobat - wait, does it say burp? It can't say burp!' I never get tired of seeing that - that's a proper family experience."

Swampesque

Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, Fri 17 July

If you've never heard of Swampesque, you won't be alone - but there are plenty of theatre-goers around the world who would be only too happy to testify to its quality. Taking Australia by storm and selling out at each of the last two Edinburgh Festivals, the show is a burlesque and drag-parody homage to the wonderful world of DreamWorks Animation's swamp-dwelling ogre, Shrek. Presenting its audiences with a veritable smorgasbord of performance styles, the show boasts eye-catching costumes and plenty of sassy, body-positive choreography.

Suzy Homemaker

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Fri 17 July

Suzy Homemaker was originally the name of a popular mid-1960s line of miniature and functional toy household appliances (including ovens, blenders, washers and irons) which allowed girls to practise becoming 'the perfect housewife'. It then started to be used as a derogatory term for any woman whose habits reflected the stereotypical domestic activities traditionally performed by women. Taking all of the above into consideration, it's hardly surprising that Erica Mulhern's acclaimed show revolves around the history and development of contemporary feminism. Blending modern dance, theatre, comedy and visual storytelling, the show focuses on the experiences of three female characters, along the way covering everything from suffragette rebellion to picture-perfect 1950s suburbia.

Sons Of Pitches

Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Sat 25 July

Soaring solos. Impeccable harmonies. Sensational beatboxing. The publicity for Sons Of Pitches is both effusive and completely justified. The first winners of BBC Two and Gareth Malone's The Naked Choir, the dapper a capella quintet recently celebrated 10 glorious years of performing together. They visit Shrewsbury to present a nicely balanced programme of pop covers, original numbers and improvised songs.

Alistair McGowan

The Edge Arts Centre, Much Wenlock, South Shropshire, Sat 25 July; St George's Hall, Bewdley, Sat 10 October

Worcestershire-born Alistair McGowan followed in the footsteps of Mike Yarwood to become one of the country's most revered impressionists. He's also worked extensively in the theatre, appearing in productions including Little Shop Of Horrors, for which he received an Olivier nomination. Alistair makes a return to the Midlands this month with a show in which he combines 'classic comedy, poetry and beautiful piano music'. The latter comes courtesy of his new-found talent as a classical pianist.

The People's Orchestra

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Sat 18 July

The community-based non-profit People's Orchestra visits the city centre from nearby West Bromwich, accompanied by community choirs. Concert-goers will decide the final setlist for the evening, selecting from pop favourites, epic film scores, 1980s anthems and Disney showstoppers.

100% Badgers With Matt Hobs

Huntingdon Hall, Worcester, Fri 10 July; Old Joint Stock Theatre, Birmingham, Thurs 24 September

Comedian Matt Hobs has turned his passion for badgers into an hour-long comedy performance, one that found an appreciative audience at last year's Edinburgh Fringe. Expect to leave the venue at the end of the show knowing far more about Matt's favourite animal than you'd ever imagined possible...

Under The Hammer: An Immersive Art History

Old Joint Stock Theatre, Birmingham, Thurs 16 & Fri 17 July

A 'fine blend' of theatre, improvisation, escape room and whodunnit, Under The Hammer finds its inspiration in real-world cases of art-crime and sees its audience members become recruits of the Company of International Artists. The role will require them to put their little grey cells to good use in order to tackle puzzles, decipher codes and attempt to solve a case of art forgery before the culprit has the chance to slip away into the night... Coming dressed as a famous artist or favourite detective is encouraged but not obligatory...

Dance previews from across the region

Lord Of The Dance: 30th Anniversary

Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Mon 13 - Wed 15 July; The Alexandra, Birmingham, Mon 28 September - Sun 4 October

Since catapulting traditional Irish music and folk dance into the limelight back in the mid-1990s (ably assisted in so doing by the similarly sensational Riverdance, of course), Michael Flatley’s choreographed adventure, Lord Of The Dance, has become an international phenomenon. These Midlands stop-offs form part of a nationwide tour to celebrate 30 years of the hit show, during which time Lord Of The Dance has visited 1,000-plus venues in a total of 60 countries and entertained in excess of 60 million people. If you’ve not yet been among them, then this is the perfect opportunity to catch up with one of the world’s most successful dance extravaganzas. The latest production comes complete with new choreography and features over 150,000 taps per performance.

Autin Dance

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Sat 25 July

Birmingham-based Autin Dance have been performing since 2013. “We draw on contemporary social issues and events to make work which is beautifully crafted, accessible and relevant,” says founder Johnny Autin. “The company has a reputation for creating powerful performances, catapulting audiences into intense dance worlds which we hope will resonate with them long after they leave the auditorium.”

Latest production Zig Zag! is non-verbal, takes place outdoors, and finds two performers building a playful world from simple objects. The show has been designed for youngsters aged five and older.

Kai Widdrington

Theatre Severn, Shrewsbury, Mon 6 July

“I had the most incredible time on my first-ever solo tour,” says Kai Widdrington in talking about Evolution, the show he’s bringing to Shrewsbury early this month. “It was such a fun and creatively brilliant production that we just had to bring it back again for 2026.”

The critically acclaimed show sees Strictly star Kai showcasing his versatility and passion for dance by taking the audience on a journey through an array of genres.

Nikita Kuzmin: Supernova

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Thurs 2 & Fri 3 July

International champion and Strictly Come Dancing fan favourite Nikita Kuzmin’s sophomore solo tour sees him presenting ‘an explosive new dance spectacular’, created in collaboration with Bafta Award-winning choreographer Jason Gilkison.

Kyiv-born Nikita will be joined by special guest star Karen Hauer for the first of his three Belgrade shows (on Thursday the 2nd).

Rhythm Of The Dance

Wulfrun Hall, Wolverhampton, Sat 18 July

Inspiring dances augmented by flutes and flailing fiddles is the name of the game when popular touring show Rhythm Of The Dance stops off in the region this month.

Taking its fans on a two-hour trip through hundreds of years of Irish dance and music, the hugely popular show boasts award-winning world and Irish dance champions, talented vocalists, multiple costume changes, a state-of-the-art light & sound presentation, and a traditional Irish band of multi-instrumentalist musicians.

INDIAN SUMMER

Birmingham Indian Film Festival returns to MAC...

Celebrating independent South Asian cinema, Birmingham Indian Film Festival returns to the city this month. The 2026 programme boasts premieres, documentaries, shorts and restored classics from the Indian sub-continent and diaspora. LGBTQIA+ stories, political dramas, and films based around disability and motherhood, among many other themes, all feature.

What's On spoke to the festival's head of cinema, Dharmesh Rajput, to find out more...

This year's Birmingham Indian Film Festival (BIFF) is one of the most diverse in its history, with a selection of films from different countries and genres covering a whole range of subjects.

Audiences will have the chance to see independent films from across the Indian subcontinent and shorts made by British Asians reflecting on their history, lives and experiences.

Largely taking place at Midlands Arts Centre (MAC) - with a foray into the Black Country with one screening at Lockworks Cinema in Wolverhampton - the festival features some films and Q&As with closed captions, audio description and British Sign Language.

The programme includes award-winning director Ali El Arabi's new film, 52 Blue, a condensed version of Peter Brook's classic The Mahabharata. There are also movies looking at social and cultural issues, such as White Snow and In Search Of The Sky, plus family dramas All About Weddings and Anmol - Lovingly Ours.

BIFF head of cinema Dharmesh Rajput says the variety of the programming is paramount.

"We try to reflect the diversity of Birmingham, so whilst we are Birmingham Indian Film Festival, we have always represented the Indian subcontinent.

"This year we have a film from Bangladesh, one from Kashmir in Urdu, and some shorts made by British Asians, so it reflects the South Asian population in Birmingham - and anyone interested in the universal themes of the films.

"BIFF is a festival for everybody. All the films are subtitled, so you don't have to speak the language to enjoy the film. In previous years, we've had lots of non-Asian people coming to see the films we show, which is just great.

"I think it's about widening our horizons, understanding stories from other parts of the world, understanding cultures, understanding people. At the heart of it, storytelling is one of the oldest [ways to help] increase knowledge and help people understand each other."

The festival's Opening Night Gala at MAC features the aforementioned 52 Blue, in which Kerala football fanatic Ashish - travelling to Qatar in the hope of seeing his hero Lionel Messi in the World Cup - embarks on a journey of self-discovery. The screening is followed by a Q&A with director Ali El Arabi.

"52 Blue is an important film," Dharmesh says. "It's beautiful in terms of coming of age and aspiration, but there's also a slightly dark side about people-trafficking that feels relevant in the world today.

"Another highlight for me is Peter Brook's The Mahabharata. Years ago, Channel Four showed a TV adaptation of the theatre production in its full six-hour length - this is a restored three-and-a-half-hour cinema version. I'm excited to see it on a fantastic 4K screen at MAC.

"The Mahabharata is one of Hinduism's epic texts - similar, I suppose, to the Bible. It's a philosophical story exploring righteousness and duty and the conflict between good and evil."

The screening will be followed by a Q&A with Simon Brook, documentary-maker and son of legendary director Peter Brook.

Other productions featured in this year's festival include Master, a Bangladeshi film following a socialist teacher who wins an election but then faces the reality of power. White Snow, meanwhile, follows a mother as she travels through Kashmir attempting to screen her son's banned film.

Anmol - Lovingly Ours raises questions of identity, belief and prejudice around a newborn baby's gender. In Search Of The Sky features a young man with disabilities whose family take him to the Kumbh Mela in the hope of finding a cure.

The documentary If I Could Tell You examines the lives of two friends with different experiences of Indian Sign Language.

Britain Through South Asian Eyes is a collection of four documentaries looking at South Asian British history of the 1970s and 1980s - including one titled After Eight, which is based in Lozells.

"After Eight is very pertinent to Birmingham," says Dharmesh. "It's the story of Satpal Ram, who was involved in a miscarriage of justice after a death in a restaurant in Birmingham late one night.

"The other documentaries are enlightening. The ubiquitous corner shop appears in Shop Dada, where director Darshan Gajjar talks to his grandfather about the corner shop that they used to run. And then More Punk Than Punk looks at the role of arts in politics through the eyes of Aki Nawaz of Fun-Da-Mental.

"It's really nice for a new generation - third or fourth generation South Asians - to look back at a time in history and see what things were like, and it's very pertinent to what is going on around us right now."

BIFF is a sister event to the London and Manchester Indian film festivals, and all have Q&As as an integral part of their programme. "Conversation is always useful," Dharmesh explains. "Trying to understand the director's perspective, and being able to discuss the film with someone who is involved in it, always enriches the experience of watching the film."

Short-film programme Too Desi Too Queer has two outings - at MAC on Friday 17 July, and at Wolverhampton's Lockworks Cinema two days later, on the 19th.

"We are working with MAC, as we always have done. It's a great cinema, great screen, great venue. Then, every year, we try and work with somewhere new, to try and dip our toes in different waters. Wolverhampton has the new Lockworks Cinema, so we are very excited to extend to there; it's an amazing space.

"Too Desi Too Queer is giving you an insight into people's lives that you wouldn't ordinarily find out about. Relationships and sexuality are so complex, it's never a black-and-white issue, so you get nuances of how people feel, how people change, how people arrive in love with somebody."

For Dharmesh, much of the richness of BIFF is audiences seeing films they may not otherwise experience - and watching them in community with others.

"They are independent films made across the Indian subcontinent which are on the festival circuit at the moment. They may or may not get picked up for wider release, and this may be the only chance you'll get to see them on a big screen with an audience and sometimes with a Q&A.

"If you've never been to the festival before, come to one film and you are bound to be surprised. You will be engaged and be brought into a story or another world that may not be your experience but ultimately will leave you richer for that experience. It's a window on the world while you are sitting here in Birmingham."

Film highlights in July..

Moana CERT PG (115 mins)

Starring Catherine Laga'aia, Dwayne Johnson, John Tui, Frankie Adams, Rena Owen Directed by Thomas Kail

In celebration of the 10th anniversary of the first Moana movie, Disney are releasing a brand-new live-action reimagining of the much-loved and Academy Award-nominated animated adventure.

The film follows in the footsteps of, among others, The Jungle Book, The Little Mermaid, The Lion King and Aladdin, other animations which Disney have rebooted as live-action offerings. But its director, Thomas Kail, is eager to ensure the source material remains protected in the transition to real life. "How do you honour this?" Kail mused in an interview with Entertainment Weekly. "How do you say 'we love it too' and make it something that can be a companion and not try to be the same thing, but also trust what works? The opportunity to have flesh and blood, and have human beings tell the story and sing these songs and be in this world, there's something so fundamentally different about the experience of watching and feeling that." The new film finds Moana (Catherine Laga'aia) answering the call of the ocean and voyaging, for the very first time, beyond the reef of her island in an effort to restore prosperity to her people. Released Fri 10 July

Minions & Monsters CERT PG (90 mins)

Starring Zoey Deutch, Allison Janney, Christoph Waltz, Jeff Bridges, Jesse Eisenberg, Bobby Moynihan Directed by Pierre Coffin

Starting out in life as supporting characters in 2010's Despicable Me, the Minions stole the show to such an extent that five years later they got their very own movie. Then, seven years after that, they got another. Now they're returning in a prequel story, one which is set several decades before the first film begins in the 1960s...

Located in 1920s Hollywood, Minions And Monsters follows the linguistically creative creatures as they quickly become Tinseltown sensations, throwing lavish parties in mansions and inspiring fans to wear overalls and goggles. Their '15 minutes of fame' is abruptly cut short, however, when sound is introduced to film, and they find themselves completely unable to follow traditional scripts, speaking only their native and unscripted Minionese language.

Destitute and hopeless, they decide to make their very own creature feature, and using an old spell book, summon a whole horde of mayhem-making monsters....

Released Wed 1 July

The Invite CERT 15 (107 mins)

Starring Seth Rogen, Olivia Wilde, Penélope Cruz, Edward Norton, Skip Howland, Mel Powell Directed by Olivia Wilde

Joe (Seth Rogen) and Angela (Olivia Wilde) are struggling. Their marriage is on the brink of collapse. Hoping to reignite a spark and break out of a rut, they invite over their charismatic and sexually liberated neighbours - Hawk (Edward Norton) and Pina (Penélope Cruz) - for what proves to be a disastrously awkward dinner party...

A remake of Spanish movie The People Upstairs, The Invite premiered back in January at the Sundance Film Festival, where it made a significant splash with the critics. Indeed, Variety was so impressed that it likened the film to the classic Who's Afraid Of Virginia Woolf?, while our very own Guardian hailed it "a genuinely funny and uncommonly intelligent comedy for adults".

Released Fri 3 July

Spider-Man: Brand New Day CERT 12a (150 mins)

Starring Tom Holland, Zendaya, Sadie Sink, Jacob Batalon, Jon Bernthal, Trameil Tillman Directed by Destin Daniel Cretton

Four years have passed since the events of Spider-Man: No Way Home, and Peter Parker is now an adult living entirely alone, having voluntarily erased himself from the lives and memories of those he loves. Crime-fighting in a New York that no longer knows his name, he's devoted himself entirely to protecting his city - as a full-time Spider-Man. But, as the demands on him intensify, the pressure sparks a surprising physical evolution that threatens his existence, even as a strange new pattern of crimes gives rise to one of the most powerful threats Spider-Man has ever had to face...

As well as this month playing the part of Matt Damon and Anne Hathaway's son in Christopher Nolan's epic cinematic adaptation of Homer's similarly epic poem The Odyssey (see bottom of the page), Tom Holland is here once again donning the red & blue spandex to star as New York's favourite web-slinging wallcrawler. This will be London-born Tom's fourth standalone film as Spidey - and there's a real buzz around Brand New Day's release, a fact which augurs well for the future of superhero movies. The genre has seemed to be in a near-fatal freefall these last few years. Released Fri 31 July

Rosebush Pruning

CERT 18 (97 mins)

Starring Elle Fanning, Jamie Bell, Riley Keough, Callum Turner, Lukas Gage, Pamela Anderson Directed by Karim Ainouz

Underneath the Catalonian sun, a rich white American family lives in hedonistic isolation, seeking love and validation through pop music, their designer wardrobes, and each other. But when an outsider arrives on the scene, buried tensions surface and blood ties are severed...

Debuting at the Berlin International Film Festival in February, where it was nominated for the event's prestigious Golden Bear award for best movie, Rosebush Pruning has been likened to Saltburn - a salacious and off-kilter black comedy which satirises the world of the wealthy. The film is in part a remake of the cult 1965 Italian movie Fists In The Pocket.

Released Fri 10 July

The Odyssey CERT tbc (172 mins)

Starring Matt Damon, Tom Holland, Anne Hathaway, Robert Pattinson, Lupita Nyong'o, Zendaya Directed by Christopher Nolan

Christopher Nolan loves directing epic films. Length-wise, his 13th movie, The Odyssey, gives his longest film, Oppenheimer, a run for its money, but it falls just nine minutes short of becoming his most epic of epics. Where it definitely does come out on top, though, is in terms of money spent - The Odyssey is Nolan's most expensive ever movie, boasting a money pot of $250million. Based on the famous - and yes, epic - poem written by Homer nearly 3,000 years ago, the film stars Matt Damon as the big-bearded Odysseus, the king of Ithaca, who's on his way home to his family after fighting in the Trojan War. But returning to his loved ones is no walk in the park, with a cyclops, sirens and nymphs among the mythical creatures standing in his way.

Anne Hathaway stars as Odysseus' wife, Penelope, with Tom Holland playing their son, Telemachus.

Released Fri 17 July

Michael Pinsky: The Final Bid

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Sat 25 July - Sun 4 October

Making its UK debut at MAC, The Final Bid is an interactive exhibition which offers a new outlook on familiar objects. The show comprises a selection of chairs donated by members of the general public, who have also shared the stories behind their donations.

Visitors can place bids to buy whichever chair takes their fancy. Michael Pinsky, the artist behind the exhibition, is using the show to reframe 'the way we value the everyday items around us', and to interrupt the expected consumer process

Helios by Luke Jerram

The Exchange, Centenary Square, Birmingham, until Sat 7 November

Following on from his installations Museum Of The Moon and Gaia, Bristol-based artist Luke Jerram has brought Helios to the region. The stunning artwork measures seven metres in diameter and features detailed imagery of the Sun's surface. The installation is a fusion of solar imagery, animated lighting and a specially created surround-sound composition by Duncan Speakman and Sarah Anderson.

"It's quite a challenge to try and capture the scale and power of the sun through a piece of music," says Duncan. "For Helios, we took many different approaches and collated them into one long composition. The piece moves through a series of different expressions of the sun itself, as well as its relationship with us and our planet, shifting back and forth from a human perspective to a planetary one."

Joan Miró: Painting And Poetry

Brampton Art Gallery, Newcastle-under-Lyme, until Sun 23 August

Boasting a highly individual style that placed him at the forefront of Surrealism and Dadaism, Joan Miró was one of the 20th century's most influential and recognisable artists. Alongside his work as a painter and sculptor, Miró was also an accomplished printmaker - and it's this latter practice which is the focus of Painting And Poetry. The exhibition brings together lithographic prints created to illustrate the writings of the celebrated French surrealist poet Robert Desnos.

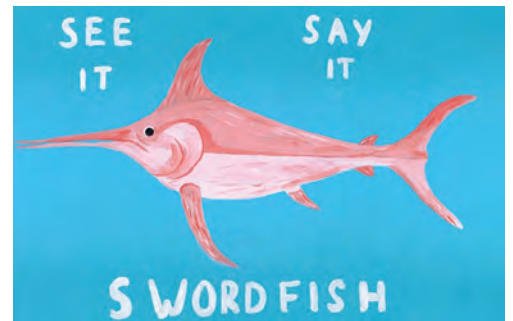

The prints are not only an excellent example of the richness and variety of Miró's print production, but also of his experimentation with vivid colours and abstract shapes.

Everything Must Go By Joe Lycett

Birmingham Museum & Art Gallery, Wed 29 July - Sun 21 February

Birmingham Museum & Art Gallery here plays host to a first major solo exhibition of art by Brummie comedian Joe Lycett. Exploring the theme of 'things that are no longer with us', and inspired by objects from the City of Birmingham's collection, Joe's exhibition covers subjects including deceased celebrities, discontinued chocolate bars, extinct animals and destroyed buildings, all presented in the popular funnyman's usual tongue-in-cheek style. Joe's stated desire with the show is to "overwhelm and delight with a neon graveyard".

Two Lionesses

Herbert Museum & Art Gallery, Coventry, until Sat 18 July

In the midst of conflicts involving their respective homelands, Anisa Mosaiebiniya - an Iranian artist - and Maya Davis-Stokes - a British-Israeli artist - have come together in Coventry - the City of Peace and Reconciliation - to present a collaborative exhibition.

Endangered Crafts

Stourbridge Glass Museum, Sat 11 July - Sat 7 November

What do cut crystal glass making, copper wheel glass engraving and stained glass window making all have in common?

The answer, sadly, is that they are all on a list of 'endangered glass crafts' - examples of which are on show in this new exhibition.

Using the Heritage Crafts Red List of Endangered Crafts as a guiding framework, the show features contemporary glass artists working within traditions that are at serious risk of being lost. The exhibition will be accompanied by a programme of talks and demonstrations during the opening weekend.

Andy Warhol: Art Star Wolverhampton Art Gallery, until Sun 4 October

Wolverhampton Art Gallery's tribute to Andy Warhol is an Artist Rooms exhibition created in partnership with Tate and National Galleries of Scotland. The display includes both iconic and lesser-known drawings, screenprints, paintings and photographs from the 1950s to the 1980s. Warhol's famous Campbell's soup tin features in the show, taking its place alongside images of The Beatles, Marilyn Monroe and Elizabeth Taylor (pictured).

Unruly Desires: Reframing The Past

Royal Pump Rooms, Leamington Spa, until Sun 6 September

Sunil Gupta and Charan Singh use the photographic studio portrait to explore and disrupt ideas relating to the canon of western art, queerness, the gaze, love and intimacy.

The exhibition also includes brand-new work - created by both artists within the Pump Rooms spaces - which find their inspiration in objects and pictures from the Leamington Spa Art Gallery & Museum's collection.

Face Value: Contemporary Portraits from the Collections

New Art Gallery, Walsall, until Sun 23 May 2027

Inspired by the strong focus on portraits in the Garman Ryan Collection, this temporary exhibition brings together a selection of artworks from the Gallery's Permanent Collection. The artworks - which vary in scale and media - demonstrate how different themes and ideas can be conveyed and presented through portraiture.

The Pattern Of Life: Enid Marx And Modern British Design

Compton Verney, Warwickshire, Sat 18 July - Sun 3 January

Visitors to Compton Verney can step into a world of abstract design this month, when the Warwickshire venue launches a major exhibition exploring the influential patterns of painter & designer Enid Marx.

The landmark show - featuring loans from the V&A Museum - charts Marx's life through fabric. In the process, the exhibition traces the geopolitics of British design and the lasting impact of her work.

GO WILD!

Enjoy the summer at Dudley Zoo & Castle...

There's a whole host of activities in store at Dudley Zoo & Castle this school summer holiday. Whether you're a budding zookeeper, an always fascinated history buff, or you just fancy a close-up encounter with your favourite critter, the day-out destination hosts events to suit all tastes. And, for the first time ever - this month and next - a selection of lifesize sculptures of endangered animals will be joining the regular residents. But will you be able to spot them all?...

Be sure you head to Dudley's must-visit holiday destination this summer - where you can dive into history, check out amazing examples of architecture, build a sandcastle and meet a penguin or two - all on the same day!

Dudley Zoo & Castle has plenty in store during the school holiday, from amazing animals from around the world, to a fascinating insight into the creatures that live on our very own doorstep.

This summer, for the first time, the Zoo will be showcasing a trail of lifesize toy-brick sculptures of endangered animals, the biggest of which is an enormous elephant! Taking the title Wild Bricks and open for the duration of the school summer holiday, the trail provides visitors with an opportunity to learn not only about the animals which are represented but also the sculptures themselves, which have been meticulously built and transported to Dudley Zoo. Visitors who manage to find all of the sculptures could potentially have an extra treat in store; anyone who completes the trail can add their name into a weekly draw to win fantastic prizes - so keep your eyes peeled...

For visitors who find themselves inspired by the brick engineering skills on display, 'build packs' will be available for purchase from the Zoo's gift shop, providing budding brick builders with the chance to put their own skills to the test.

Dudley Zoo & Castle is offering an 'early bird' discount for tickets booked before Friday 17 July. Using the code BRICKS30, visitors can enjoy a 30% discount on their summer holiday tickets, allowing them to see these spectacular creations and explore the Zoo. The popular venue, which will celebrate its 90th birthday next year, houses over 140 species, including primates, big cats, birds and reptiles, all ready to fascinate and delight animal-loving visitors, whether you're creepy crawly crazy or an orangutan fan. The resident giraffes and penguins are always a favourite, but the Zoo's sloth and axolotl habitats have proved a big hit with visitors as well - the latter residing in the Zoo's Farm Barn, along with spiders, millipedes and stick insects in neighbouring habitats. Unusual animals such as the cassowary - one of the world's biggest birds - wolverines, and the Carpathian lynx (in a newly refurbished habitat) are also in residence.

For young 'zookeepers in the making' or adults who wish they could spend the day working with animals, the Zoo can make their dreams come true courtesy of its Animal Experience packages, which offer up-close interactions with some of the venue's most popular residents. Whether you dream of feeding a big cat or would love to meet a sloth, the experiences allow visitors to get as close to the animals as the keepers do.

Taking between 20 and 30 minutes, and including the cost of admission for two people, the Animal Experiences can make a visit to Dudley Zoo even more extraordinary. Serious wildlife fans can also become a keeper for the day, an experience that allows them to discover what the job of keeping the animals happy and healthy actually entails. The Little Zoo Keeper experience (for eight to 13-year-olds) and the Adult Zoo Keeper package (14-plus) both include a hands-on experience working with the Zoo staff - and, of course, the chance to meet the animals as you take part in the daily rounds.

This isn't the only way to see the Zoo's animals up-close, however. Say hello to the lemurs in their one-acre free-roaming habitat, which Zoo visitors can enter for free, or marvel at the colourful Lorikeets in their own walk-through home - free to enter, with the option to buy nectar to offer as a sweet treat to the beautiful birds.

At the top of the hill sits Dudley Castle - with even more to see and do, including a castle-themed playground and Castle Creatures, which features an indoor walk-through and more critters to discover.

For a quick route to the Castle, visitors can ride the land train, which has wheelchair and buggy storage, or take in the view from the spectacular vintage chair lift, all for free. In fact, once visitors have been admitted to the Zoo, all activities are free of charge - apart from the seasonal face painting and funfair.

For those with an interest in architecture, the Zoo features a series of listed Tecton buildings - designed in the 1930s, when the Zoo opened - by Berthold Lubetkin. Berthold masterminded similar structures in London Zoo, but Dudley boasts the greatest surviving collection of such buildings.

If you're landlocked in the Midlands this summer, head to the beach at Ow Bin Ya Sands, which, weather permitting, provides buckets, spades, deck chairs and all the fun of the seaside!

Exploring the Zoo does involve an uphill journey, and for those who would prefer not to take the chair lift, scooters, wheelchairs and buggies are available to hire on entry. There are additional details on the website for users of wheelchairs and scooters, outlining the best routes to take and viewpoints to check out in order to see the animals. The Zoo now also features a Changing Places facility.

In addition to the Wild Bricks sculpture trail, the venue's summer programme includes a series of 'out of hours' events and activities. On Friday 7 & Saturday 8 August, the Outdoor Cinema returns to the Courtyard, screening The Goonies and A Nightmare On Elm Street on consecutive evenings, under the stars.

Take part in an after-dark Bat Walk & Talk (scheduled regularly throughout the summer) to find out more about the UK's native bat species. There are also evening (6.30pm - 8.30pm) Walk & Talk events. These provide participants with the chance to learn more about the history of Dudley Castle, find out about the conservation projects supported by the Zoo, or gain a better understanding of the 12 listed Tecton buildings and the Zoo itself.

If you dare to brave the Castle after dark, there are also regular (and very popular) Ghost Tours to sign up for. Check the website for updates and book as soon as you can - the tours tend to sell out quickly.

With a range of activities taking place throughout the holiday - and not forgetting that all-important early-bird discount! - Dudley Zoo & Castle is certainly a destination to add to your summer schedule.

Wild Bricks is open at Dudley Zoo & Castle from Saturday 18 July to Monday 31 August. For further information, visit the venue's website at dudleyzoo.org.uk

54321FAB! Worcester City Art Gallery & Museum, Sat 4 July - Sun 6 September

For readers of a certain vintage, 54321 FAB! offers a not-to-be-missed opportunity to take a nostalgic stroll down memory lane. The subject of the exhibition is the much-loved 1960s television series of Gerry & Sylvia Anderson, numbered among which were Stingray, Captain Scarlet And The Mysterons, Joe 90, Fireball XL5 and - arguably most famously - Thunderbirds. Original puppets - including Lady Penelope and Joe 90 - and a number of models (Fireball XL5, Stingray and the Thunderbirds crafts) are all included in the display, as is original comic and production design art and a huge collection of 1960s memorabilia. Commenting on the exhibition, Museums Worcestershire Senior Curator Deborah Fox said: "We pride ourselves on providing top family fun for the summer holidays, and this year is a true classic. Visitors can re-live their childhood through Thunderbirds and friends, and share their memories with their families. We might even inspire some new fans!" The exhibition has been made possible with the support of Fanderson, the official Gerry & Sylvia Anderson Appreciation Society.

Unearth The Palaeoverse: Dig Into The Dawn Of Time

Herbert Art Gallery & Museum, Coventry, until Mon 31 August

Looking for places to take the kids during the school summer holidays? If so, how about making a beeline for the Herbert Art Gallery & Museum to check out this immersive Jurassic exhibition. Highlights include the chance to hunt for fossils in virtual reality, board a Jurassic submarine, draw a dinosaur and watch it animate across the wall, and strike the perfect prehistoric pose in the dressing-up zone.

Titanic Exhibition

NEC Birmingham, until Sun 19 July

Towering LED walls, immersive recreations, and powerful video storytelling lie at the heart of this well-regarded exhibition. Telling the extraordinary story of the RMS Titanic - which sank in 1912 on her maiden voyage from Southampton to New York after colliding with an iceberg - the show follows the ship's journey from a Belfast shipyard right through to the decades-later discovery of its wreckage more than two and a half miles beneath the surface of the Atlantic. The exhibition's highlights include genuine artefacts from the ship, including an original deckchair, a fragment of the Grand Staircase, a fireman's pocket watch and a letter written on board.

Tutankhamun: The Immersive Exhibition

NEC Birmingham, until Sun 13 September

In November 1922, in the Valley of the Kings at Thebes, archaeologist Howard Carter unearthed the tomb of a little-known Pharaoh of the 18th Dynasty: Tutankhamun. Now, more than a century later, Carter's incredible find is being celebrated with this award-winning touring show. Offering Midlanders the chance to take a 'breathtaking journey' into ancient Egypt, its highlights include a Howard Carter-narrated movie featuring 360-degree projections, a seated virtual-reality journey through the mystical Egyptian afterlife, and an interactive digital Metaverse walk-through of the Valley of the Kings. Two 'exceptionally curated' treasure rooms also feature. Organisers are advising that visitors should set aside 90 minutes to properly experience the exhibition.

1940s Weekend Black Country Living Museum, Dudley, Sat 11 & Sun 12 July

The Black Country Living Museum is once again turning back the clock for its much-loved 1940s Weekend, inviting visitors to experience the sights, sounds and spirit of wartime Britain. The weekend sees reenactors, costumed characters and period settings bringing stories of resilience and community to life. Visitors can enjoy live 1940s music, watch street entertainment, explore historic shops and workplaces, and even try activities inspired by the wartime Home Front, from sandbag making to air-raid fire-fighting demonstrations.

Jurassic Fun at Thinktank

Thinktank Birmingham Science Museum, throughout July

Thinktank Birmingham Science Museum is bringing dinosaurs to life this month with a series of family-friendly events that combine creativity, storytelling, cinema and hands-on animal encounters. Young visitors can unleash their imagination in the Head Workshop with Tat Vision on Wednesday 22 July, creating their own wearable dinosaur-inspired creations made from recycled materials... Budding palaeontologists can enjoy DinoSTORY Time (Thursday 23 & 30 July), an interactive storytelling session packed with prehistoric adventures, audience participation and plenty of dinosaur roars... For movie lovers, Cinema Under The Stars: Early Man (Saturday 25 July) offers a unique planetarium screening experience, combining comedy and prehistoric fun in an immersive setting... Jurassic Encounters with Zoolab (Tuesday 28 July) provides an up-close introduction to numerous creatures through themed animal-handling sessions, helping families explore the links between modern animals and their ancient ancestors.

Classic Nostalgia

Shelsley Walsh Climb, Worcester, Sat 18 & Sun 19 July

Historic motorsport festival Classic Nostalgia is back for a two-day celebration of the golden era of motor racing, bringing together iconic Formula One cars, NASCAR machines, legendary rally cars and historic competition vehicles from across the decades. Visitors can enjoy hill-climb action, demonstration runs, car-club displays, open paddocks and special vehicle parades, providing rare access to both the cars and their drivers. Beyond the track, the festival offers live music, concours competitions, trade stands, food vendors and a programme of family-friendly entertainment.
