Award-winning Sharon to take RSC lead as Othello

Three-time Olivier Award-winning actor Sharon D Clarke will star as Othello for the Royal Shakespeare Company early next year. According to the RSC, the brand-new show - running at the Swan Theatre in Stratford-upon-Avon from Saturday 13 February to Saturday 3 April - is set 'in a climate-threatened future in which a black lesbian holds a seat of power'.

The production 're-imagines Shakespeare's 400-year-old story through the lens of misogynoir, as an unsanctioned marriage perilously crosses boundaries of race, sex and status'...

For more information about the show, the rest of the 2026/27 season at the RSC, and to purchase tickets, visit the Company's official website at rsc.org.uk

Crime-fighting Dog Man promises laughs aplenty at Wolverhampton's Grand Theatre...

Dog Man: The Musical, a family show based on the popular children's book series by Captain Underpants author Dav Pilkey, visits the Midlands this month. Writer Kevin Del Aguila tells What's On about the challenge of making a show for all the family to enjoy...

Readers with kids of a certain age will almost certainly be familiar with the work of Dav Pilkey. The Ohio native has written and illustrated a number of award-winning children's books, most notably the Captain Underpants series, which has sold 90 million copies worldwide. The books have also spawned a number of spinoffs, including Dog Man, a series of graphic novels written under the pen names George Beard and Harold Hutchins, fictional characters from the original franchise. As the title suggests, Dog Man is a somewhat unique creature: a combination of police officer and his canine companion, fused together in life-saving surgery after they were both injured in the line of duty. Use your imagination - or ask a youngster.

The character and his friends (and enemies) came to life on the big screen in an animated movie last year, and a live musical version - geared towards ages five and up - visits Wolverhampton Grand Theatre this month, having premiered in the US in 2019.

The book and lyrics for Dog Man: The Musical have been written by Kevin Del Aguila, an actor, director and writer who has carved out a profitable career creating theatrical adaptations of children's books (including the likes of The Velveteen Rabbit and Diary Of A Wimpy Kid) as well as writing for television.

The friendly Californian admits he partly stumbled into the role through his work as an actor with Cedar Works USA, which creates shows for young and family audiences.

"They've been kind of my playground for learning how to learn different disciplines on the job," he says. "They hired me to write lyrics for an adaptation of Click, Clack, Moo [a children's book by Doreen Cronin], and they were the ones who came to me and said 'What do you know about Dog Man?' I said 'I know nothing,' and then looked over and saw my son, who was in fourth grade, giggling in the corner reading a bunch of Dog Man books! I grabbed him and said 'Tell me everything!'"

So the books were in your house all along?

"Yep, right under my nose! I was aware of Captain Underpants, but I didn't know the Dog Man books. Very quickly I became aware that they were very popular with the elementary school set. The libraries couldn't keep them in stock because kids kept taking them out."

Immersing himself in the worlds of Dav Pilkey proved rewarding in more ways than one, Kevin reveals.

"It was kind of delightful because I got to read them with my son at bedtime and really use him as kind of a focus group to try out all my jokes and ideas."

He might have had help, but Kevin was also aware of the pressure of adapting such treasured source material - a fact he claims was brought home to him on opening night.

"When we first premiered the show, all these kids showed up with Dog Man books clutched in their arms. You start to think 'Oh boy, if I mess this up, it's going to ruin my life!'"

Fortunately, he didn't - the show proved an instant hit, getting the thumbs-up not only from his son and other youngsters, but Pilkey himself.

"He was the one me and Brad Alexander [who wrote the music] were really nervous about. He was laughing and crying and clapping and became a fan of the show, which was really wonderful to see.

"When I first got the commission, I called him up and had a whole pitch ready - here's my idea, here's how we're going to approach it, here's how we're going to take care of your baby and so on. He stopped me seconds in and said, 'Just do what you want to do. I'm sure it's going to be great - just have fun.' I couldn't believe it. You're giving me the keys to your car here!"

The musical is largely based on A Tale Of Two Kitties, the third book in the Dog Man series ("It's the one that a lot of the characters were first introduced in and has a lot of heart, so we thought it was begging to be musicalised!"). Given the title, it's perhaps no surprise to find that A Tale Of Two Kitties contains more than a few nods to a certain legendary British writer.

"There's a whole lot of Charles Dickens references throughout the Dog Man books - the kids might not get them, but the adults will. The great thing is that the books don't exclude anyone from anything - it's all part of the referential, wacky world they inhabit."

That diversity - and being able to entertain the whole family at once - is part of the challenge and reward of the work, says Kevin.

"One of the things that brings me great joy is looking into the audience and seeing parents sitting next to their kid and they're laughing at the exact same joke. I really love that, because a lot of times, grown-ups will come and bring their kid to a 'kids' show' and settle in for a nap. It's great to see when the first couple of jokes start landing, and they just start grinning and laughing. By the end, it truly is a family experience - everyone enjoying it together."

There's also the added challenge - and incentive - to create a positive experience for youngsters who are almost certainly attending live theatre for the first time.

"That's right. The amazing thing is that the Dog Man books have been a gateway for kids to love reading. That's why they're so popular - they're funny, they're engaging, and they get kids starting reading books. So teachers, even though they may not always like the content [the books have been criticised on the basis of language, violence and basic naughtiness], can't say no because they're instilling a love of reading in these kids.

"We really wanted the musical to be that for live performance - the gateway for kids to become lifelong theatre-goers."

Better yet, the show even teaches audiences about theatre, as the plot sees youngsters George and Harold, who created the dog and the comics, making a musical version of their comedy. They put together a stage show using found objects as props and by simply being creative - one of the key themes of Pilkey's work.

"The emphasis is on unbridled creativity, and kids really take that to heart. I've heard reports of them going home and making their own costumes and shows.

"That's Dav's real thing too - the power of creativity is his main goal with all the books. We've really tried to celebrate that in our adaptation, and I hope we've been successful. It also kind of demystifies theatre for the kids and makes them think, yeah, it's all just playing - I can do that!"

Dog Man: The Musical shows at the Wolverhampton Grand Theatre on Friday 28 & Saturday 29 August.

The show returns to the region in 2027 to play Malvern Theatres from Friday 12 to Sunday 14 February and Lichfield Garrick from Tuesday 10 to Sunday 13 June

Festivals taking place in the region this month and next

Moseley Folk & Arts

Moseley Park, Birmingham,
Fri 4 - Sun 6 September

Tucked away behind Birmingham's busy streets, the beautiful Moseley Park is one of the city's hidden gems, transformed each year into an enchanting escape by one of the Midlands' best-loved music festivals. Traditional folk & low-fi acoustic sets blend seamlessly with dreamy electropop, psychedelia and indie favourites against a magical backdrop of bright hippie colours, lush foliage and a beautiful lake. Alongside the music, the festival - which is now in its 18th year - also features a mixture of activities for all ages to enjoy.

2026 line-up includes: Kingfishr, The Dead South, Super Furry Animals (pictured), Frank Turner, Johnny & Lillie Flynn

Shrewsbury Folk Festival

DMOS People West Mid Showground,
Fri 28 - Mon 31 August

A highlight of any folk fan's calendar, this four-day fest brings together centuries of musical tradition in one picturesque setting. Steeped in history, the border town of Shrewsbury provides an ideal backdrop for the festival's mash-up of modern, medieval, and everything in between, where grassroots cultures collide in dynamic fusion styles.

2026 line-up includes: Fantastic Negrito (pictured), Talisk x Gardiner Brothers: Unleashed, Andy Fairweather Low & The Low Riders, Cable Street Collective, Ferocious Dog ft The Celtic Folk Orchestra, Katherine Priddy

Bromyard Folk Festival

Broadbridge, Bromyard,
Thurs 10 - Sun 13 September

Established in 1968 and situated in the beautiful rolling green fields of Herefordshire, Bromyard has become a much-loved celebration of folk music. The event sees some of the finest national and international folk musicians headlining a programme that also includes workshops, ceilidhs, dance displays, kids' entertainment and a traditional craft market.

2026 line-up includes: Richard Thompson with Zara Phillips, Sharon Shannon Trio, Fara (pictured), Kris Drever & Cahalen Morrison

Royal Town of Sutton Coldfield, Sun 30 August

Created by the teams behind renowned brands LAB11, DNB Collective, and Rock n Rolla, Off Grid arrives at a time when festivals across the UK are competing for attention in an increasingly hyperconnected and digital-first world. Instead, Off Grid has built its identity around a simple message: No Signal Required.

Set amongst 10km2 of enchanting forest and green fields just outside the Royal Town of Sutton Coldfield, the electronic-music festival offers an alternative to endless notifications, social-media fatigue, and relentless pressure to experience events through a screen.

Penkridge Open Air

Penkridge Sports & Recreation Centre, Pinfold Lane, Fri 28 - Sun 30 August

Back for a fifth year, this time running over the August bank holiday, Penkridge Open Air festival presents live performances by a host of artists, bands and local talent across multiple stages. Other festival attractions include a BMX stunt show, circus acts, craft stalls, a funfair, food vendors and a bar.

2026 line-up includes: ABC (pictured), The Drifters, 2 Unlimited, Basshunter, Heaven 17, The Trammys, DJ Sammy, The Fizz, Bay City Rollers, Let Loose, Ultrabeat PA

A CELTIC CONNECTION

One of the highlights of this month's Shrewsbury Folk Festival is the UK premiere of a new show that sees Scottish folk trio Talisk team up with Irish dancers the Gardiner Brothers. An energetic dance and music mashup, Unleashed is a collaboration which has been more than 10 years in the making - as Talisk leader Mohsen Amini and Michael and Matthew Gardiner explained to What's On...

At first glance, Irish dancing phenomenon the Gardiner Brothers (one billion social-media views and counting) and Scottish folk band Talisk seem unlikely bedfellows...

The former are international sensations, having won more than 40 Irish dancing titles - including five world titles - and performed as principal dancers with Riverdance; the latter are a relatively modest instrumental folk trio, albeit with a growing following (15 million streams and counting) and reputation that means they regularly sell out shows across the globe.

The acts have now joined forces for Unleashed, a unique standalone extravaganza that showcases the best of both their worlds. The collaboration, according to Michael Gardiner, came about in the wake of a mutual admiration and then a friendship that has developed over the past 12 years.

"We were definitely fans of Talisk long before we ever worked together," he explains. "We first came across them on Spotify. We're huge fans of traditional Irish and Celtic music, and what immediately stood out to us was how they were pushing the boundaries of what that could be. Very quickly they became our favourite 'trad' band, to listen to and dance to.

"Initially we connected through social media and then through various events and performances - over time that turned into a friendship."

Mohsen ('Mos') Amini, Talisk's co-founder and concertina player, who was named Musician of the Year at the BBC Radio Two Folk Awards in 2018, says the idea of a joint project was "in the works for a long time" but the stars refused to align, not least as their friends' career skyrocketed.

"The Gardiner Brothers would ask to use our music for their videos, and then, as they got bigger, we started asking them to use our music," he laughs.

Michael agrees that the burgeoning careers of both acts delayed the inevitable collaboration, but thinks it's ultimately been for the better.

"Looking back, it almost feels like we were on a path towards creating something together, but both groups needed time to build what we were doing individually first. Once we had established our own identities, it felt like the right moment to bring everything together."

Initial seeds were sown in 2024, when Talisk invited the brothers and other dancers to join them on stage at Glasgow's legendary Barrowlands Ballroom as part of Celtic Connections, the city's annual folk, roots and world music festival.

"It was the biggest gig we've ever put on," says Mos, "so we thought we'd just go all out, throw the kitchen sink at it and get dancers involved. We asked if they fancied putting together a couple of dances and coming on stage for it, and it went unbelievably well.

"We were sitting down in the festival club having a couple of drinks afterwards and just looked at each other and were like 'This is going to be something, isn't it?'"

That something is Unleashed, a full-length, high-octane show that fuses the music of Talisk with the Gardiner Brothers' bold take on traditional Irish dance. Completely bespoke, the production "draws on everything we've all been developing individually over the last 10 to 15 years", according to Michael Gardiner.

"One of the biggest creative challenges was staying true to what people love about both acts," he suggests. "Talisk have always written and performed their own original music, and maintaining that authenticity was incredibly important to them. On the other hand, a huge part of what the Gardiner Brothers have become known for is dancing to modern pop music and finding creative ways to bring that music to life through dance.

"The challenge was finding a way to honour both of those things without compromising either, and I think we've found the perfect recipe."

Thinking of the dancers when writing music has been a new challenge for Mos and fellow Talisk members Benedict Morris (violin) and Charlie Galloway (guitar) - but a discipline he says they've embraced.

"It's not like you have to think completely differently," he says. "Just like music, dancing has ebbs and flows as well - it's not full pelt all the time, so you can have fast [numbers] as well as slow ones."

The Gardiner Brothers wax lyrical about the "incredible music" the band have created for the show, which takes the dancers' favoured pop styling and gives it a Talisk makeover.

"There are moments where audiences will definitely recognise influences from modern pop songs and familiar melodies, but everything has been completely reimagined through Talisk's lens. It still sounds unmistakably like Talisk."

The collaborative nature of putting the show together is something Mos says has expanded his own ideas about the creative process: "When you do this, you think, 'Okay, now there's five points of view as opposed to three.' Everybody is very much respected and at the top of their art form, so it's not like you're catering to someone who just wants to have their voice heard. You're catering to minds that know something that you might not."

And if everyone carries equal weight, then the same goes for the performance. The lively movements of the Gardiner Brothers might inescapably be the focal point, but rather than hiding behind the dancers, the musicians are on raised platforms to accentuate their roles in the action - after all, Talisk fans attending the shows want to see Talisk.

"From the very beginning, this wasn't a case of Talisk creating the music and us simply adding dance afterwards," agree the Gardiners, quick to acknowledge the natural on-stage chemistry between the five performers.

"Every aspect of the production has been developed together. The music, the choreography, the lighting, the staging, the pacing of the show, even the way we interact with one another on stage has all been part of a collaborative creative process.

"We're constantly looking for ways to make those interactions stronger. Every rehearsal seems to bring a new idea, a better transition, or a more interesting way for the music and movement to connect. The show is still evolving, which is one of the things that makes it so exciting for us."

One evolution unlikely to take place is the dancers and musicians swapping roles - Mos won't be handing over his concertina to throw some shapes any time soon.

"They leave the music to us and we leave the dancing to them," he smiles, before acknowledging an unlikely coincidence that has led to the protagonists all playing the same instrument on stage: "During rehearsals we found out that we all play the whistle but no one ever talks about it - everyone played it in their closet! So there's one number where four of us will play the whistle, but that's as near to a crossover as we get."

It's just the sort of thing that goes down well at a folk festival, and while Unleashed clearly has professional production values - the show is set to tour US arenas again next year - the headline set should also go down well with a Shrewsbury audience primed for a knees-up.

"As performers, there are certain events that become bucket-list moments," says Michael, "and this definitely feels like one of them. We know the adrenaline is going to be through the roof when we walk and dance out on that stage.

"What excites us most is the audience. Folk festival audiences are incredibly passionate about live music and performance, and that's exactly the kind of environment where a show like Unleashed thrives. The energy between the performers and the crowd becomes part of the experience."

Presteigne Festival

Various locations, Presteigne, Powys,
Thurs 27 - Mon 31 August

Now in its 44th year, the internationally acclaimed Presteigne Festival brings world-class musicians, composers, artists and writers to the Welsh Marches for five inspiring days of music, ideas and imagination over the August Bank Holiday weekend.

The festival sees contemporary music sit alongside timeless masterpieces, whilst away from the concert hall, visitors can enjoy a three-film retrospective from director Jane Campion. Thought-provoking talks and Presteigne Open Studios - celebrating the town's thriving community of artists and makers - also feature.

Talented creatives contributing to this year's festival include violinist Fenella Humphreys (pictured), Clare Hammond, James Gilchrist, Rowan Pierce, Ben Goldscheider and the much-lauded Presteigne Festival Orchestra & Ensemble, conducted by Artistic Director George Vass.

National Youth Orchestra

Symphony Hall, Birmingham, Wed 5 August

The National Youth Orchestra (NYO) visits Birmingham 78 years after being founded as a post-war symbol of hope and confidence.

"We open doors for young people," explains the organisation, "equipping them with new ideas, new experiences, new friends and new music to master. By developing their potential as role models, we employ music to create a movement of changemakers making a positive impact for their generation."

Comprising 160 teenage musicians, the highly acclaimed NYO will perform three compositions when they visit the city early this month...

The evening's programme features Franz Liszt's Mephisto Waltz No1, Symphonie Fantastique by Hector Berlioz, and Dante Part 2: Purgatorio, a work by Thomas Adès, who will also be conducting the concert.

HISTORY, ART & MORE

at Shrewsbury Museum & Art Gallery

Make the most of the school summer holidays by popping along to Shrewsbury Museum & Art Gallery (SM&AG), where you can imagine what life was like in the distant past, find out about locally created art, and take part in a range of creative activities.

Free to enter (although donations are greatly appreciated), this warm and welcoming town-centre destination - home to a number of nationally renowned artefacts - is offering a varied programme of hands-on activities to enjoy throughout August (and beyond), ensuring visitors of all ages can gain an insight into local history, art and much, much more...

COLLECTIONS

The Museum's collections provide a fascinating journey through time and are deeply connected to local history. Visitors can view artefacts discovered just six miles away at Wroxeter - once part of the Roman city of Viroconium - and explore the Shropshire Naturalists Gallery, which celebrates the work of Shrewsbury's own Charles Darwin.

Find out about the mammoths that walked the county millenia ago, and take in the historic architecture of the Tudor Gallery...

The Friends of SM&AG have compiled a list of '10 things to see' at the venue, highlighting important local artefacts to set you on your way...

EXPLORE THE ARTS TRAIL

Now in its sixth year, Shrewsbury Arts Trail is a highlight of Shropshire's cultural calendar. Central to the town-wide event are the Inspirational Exhibition and the Open Exhibition, both of which are on display at SM&AG. The latter comprises an inclusive collection of diverse works by local artists. The trail's theme for 2026, Impressions, has been inspired by the painting An Ancient Stronghold In France, by Wynford Dewhurst, a man described as 'Manchester's Monet'. Dewhurst's painting - on loan from Bradford's Cartwright Hall Gallery - is displayed alongside themed works, including creations by Pablo Picasso and John Piper.

CAFE CULTURE & MORE...

The café and courtyard sit at the heart of Shrewsbury Museum & Art Gallery - perfect for punctuating your visit with a cuppa and a tasty treat.

Easily accessible from the main entrance on the Town Square, the café is open to all, not just those wishing to explore the galleries. Visitors can choose from brunch, lunch and a selection of tasty small plates and cakes. There's also a special menu for younger visitors.

On warm days, head outside for an al fresco dining experience, which can be enjoyed either in the sun or, if preferred, in the shade of the courtyard's permanent shelter.

CHILDREN'S ACTIVITIES

As the school summer holidays continue, so does a lively programme of activities and workshops to keep youngsters entertained.

Art Explorers takes place on Tuesday 4 August. The drop-in session invites families with children aged two to 11 to take inspiration from the art around them, and then to make their own creations in a relaxed workshop where each individual's creative process is prioritised.

Get Creative is suitable for children aged five-plus and takes place from 10.30am to midday on the last three Fridays (14, 21 & 28) in August. Qualified teachers will host the sessions, during which budding young artists will be encouraged to let their imaginations run wild.

Art Camp (suitable for ages 11 to 18) is a longer workshop (10am to 3pm) on Thursday 6 August. Here, participants will have the opportunity to achieve the Arts Award Discover - the launch-pad for further Arts Award qualifications.

For those who prefer to explore at their own pace, head to the welcome desk in the museum's shop, and pick up an Arts Trail activity sheet, designed by local illustrator Saffron Russell. There are also free activity sheets created by Saffron in the café.

On the first Saturday of each month, SM&AG hosts sessions where a growing community of LGBTQ+ families with young children meet in a relaxed setting - providing the perfect opportunity to make new friends over play, chat and a cuppa. SM&AG also strives to maintain connections with visitors of all ages throughout the year. An example of this is Museum Babies - term-time sessions for the very youngest visitors and their grown-ups.

Comedy previews from across the region this month and next...

Milton Jones

Walsall Arena, Sun 2 August

With a style of humour that's mainly based around puns and one-liners, Milton Jones has established himself as one of Britain's most in-demand funnymen.

"If my comedy is working well, I put a cartoon in people's heads that surprises them," explains Milton. "So you start off and they're thinking one thing, then you surprise them by changing the ending as you go along. It's not political or particularly edgy, it's just daft."

Milton's gags include: "Militant feminists - I take my hat off to them. They don't like that," and, "Recently on a flight to America, all the way across, my wife was going, 'Why don't you get an upgrade, why don't you get an upgrade?' It took a bit of time, but in the end I got a better wife."

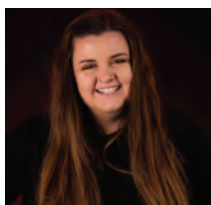

Milton is joined in Walsall by fellow comedians Tom Wrigglesworth and Ian Crawford. Wayne Beese MCs.

Stand Up Comedy at The Amphitheatre

The Amphitheatre, Telford Town Park, Fri 14 August

A newly redeveloped amphitheatre, a hopefully fine summer's evening, and the opportunity to enjoy three talented comedians as they grapple with the challenge of tickling the ribs of the assembled throng. What's not to like?... David Eagle comperes the event, with further chuckle-worthy contributions coming from Jay Neale and Tal Davies (pictured).

Phil Wang

The Alexandra, Birmingham, Sun 20 September; Victoria Hall, Stoke-on-Trent, Thurs 15 October; Warwick Arts Centre, Coventry, Saturday 24 October

Phil Wang's first-ever five minutes behind the mic as a stand-up comedian were spent telling other people's gags.

"I thought stand-up was like karaoke with jokes," he recalls. "Most of the material I used was stolen, but I learned fast and immediately started writing my own material."

Inspired to become a comedian by his desire to avoid having to get up in the mornings, Phil visits Birmingham next month with latest show UH OH.

Pakistanis In The House

Midlands Arts Centre (MAC), Birmingham, Fri 7 August

Brummie funnywoman Shazia Mirza (pictured) headlines a show that also includes sets from rising star Matt Rouse, show host Naph Esa and the Kenyan-born Imran Yusuf, who describes his style of comedy as being for people who like to 'think and laugh'.

"Making people laugh is a great way to earn respect," says Imran, "but only if it's done as a natural consequence of who you are. You can't just run around telling people jokes like some kind of weirdo!"

brand-new offering described by his publicity as 'a fast, forensic show of big ideas and gag-dense overthinking from one of the nation's sharpest stand-ups.'

"It's been three years since I last did a tour, and frankly, I didn't know if I ever would again," says the 35-year-old comic, in talking about the new show. "But then I accidentally left a stool sample on a train and came up with a way to fix the whole country, and those aren't the sorts of things you can just keep to yourself."

Kanan Gill

Symphony Hall, Thurs 10 September

Everyday insight delivered with a global sensibility is how Kanan Gill's official publicity describes his comedy - and it's a style which has seen him score a significant hit with audiences across the world.

One of India's most prominent stand-up comedians, the 36-year-old funnyman is visiting the West Midlands this month as part of his most ambitious international tour to date.

CANNY NANNY

Hit West End musical Mrs Doubtfire is heading out on a national tour - starting this month in Birmingham

Having already taken the West End and Broadway by storm, the stage musical version of Robin Williams' 1993 movie Mrs Doubtfire now begins a UK tour, with Gabriel Vick in the title role. Gabriel has played the character of Daniel Hillard - and his Scottish nanny alter-ego, Mrs Doubtfire - since the show's UK premiere in 2021. The part involves costume changes, celebrity impressions and more than a few slapstick moments... as the actor explained to What's On...

Family favourite Mrs Doubtfire has taken to the stage. Previously seen on Broadway, in Manchester and the West End, the fun-filled musical now heads out on a national tour, which kicks off at Birmingham Hippodrome this month.

Based on the same-named 1993 movie, in which Robin Williams took the title role, Mrs Doubtfire tells the tale of a family navigating divorce, with dad Daniel Hillard facing the grim reality that he will no longer be able to see his three children every day. So he decides to take drastic action to maintain his relationship with them - disguising himself as Scottish supernanny Mrs Doubtfire...

The show's Broadway run was limited due to Covid restrictions, so it was hard to predict how the production would be received at its UK premiere. When it opened in 2022 in Manchester, Gabriel Vick starred as Daniel and his nanny alter-ego. He also took the lead when the show moved to the West End. "It's been a lovely ride," Gabriel told What's On. "We were very lucky, because we didn't know how well it would go down here. I didn't move my things into my dressing room until after the reviews came out, because you never know..."

"I'm really excited about the tour! It's so much easier. If [audiences are] going to London, you've got to get a hotel, you've got to book your travel, and that makes it three times more expensive. So when we come to your local theatre, it's that bit easier. I think people will be really excited and really up for it. She's such a beloved character, and I think they're gonna go wild."

While Gabriel has been inspired by Robin Williams' iconic on-screen performance from more than 30 years ago, he has also relished the chance to find his own style in the role.

"[Williams] was born the same year as my dad, and he's got such a great screen presence, he almost feels like a parent - there's such a lovely energy from that man. I always say I'm standing on his shoulders, rather than 'in his shoes'. I feel free with it. I don't feel shackled by it. And it's not really him; it's this character that he created. She's more like Dame Edna Everage - she has her own energy. She's naughty and can say things that people wouldn't be able to say.

"The Daniel that I do is probably not very like Robin - he's got this round moon face, and I don't. That's what makes the transformation even more fun, because I think the mask really changes the way I look, and that makes the change even more interesting. I've got that same zany energy that he has, and I do love playing. You watch Robin Williams and it's just playfulness all the time."

Already established in the world of musical theatre and, like Williams, having honed a skill for impressions, Gabriel was well equipped to take on the role - and didn't hesitate when given the chance to revisit it. "This is a sort of breakthrough role for me, and with my skill set, it feels right to keep the show going. I derive so much joy from it - and from the audience's reaction - it seemed a bit of a no-brainer to play the role again."

The show's tour also increases the chance for Gabriel to have some fun by reaching out directly to local audiences.

"There are moments where I can improvise - I'll put new voices in. Maybe we'll think of some famous Brummies to put in when we come to Birmingham! The Peaky Blinders is an obvious one... I have to run things by my director before I try different voices or jokes, but generally there are moments in the show where I can play."

After deciding to transform himself into Mrs Doubtfire, Daniel Hillard must become unrecognisable, with the help of his makeup-artist brother, Frank. This means the show has dozens of quick changes for Gabriel, some of which happen live on stage.

"There's at least three people for those quick changes. It's like being in a car crash! It's part of the fun... It's got more relaxed than at the beginning - zippers were breaking, and the more you panic, the slower you go. Now, I'm quite calm.

"The audience gets to see half these changes. That's the fun - they're 'in on' the mechanics; they're in on the joke."

On top of the mask and padding which manifest the character, Mrs Doubtfire also wears snazzy outfits of her own...

"She's well dressed, isn't she, for a jobbing nanny? Some of the outfits look like they come from Ascot or the golf course - they're wonderful! I've got to wear body padding, to change the shape of my body, and that is hot! We got air conditioning in the building about a year into the [London] run - that was very welcome - but I'm sweating bucketloads in there."

Gabriel maintains that the story endures thanks to its emotional heart.

"You can have a very funny story, but if there's no meaning to it, it doesn't resonate so much. It's a very, very silly film, with a really important message. How far would you go to be with your family? What is family? And what does it mean when it's not conventional... when your parents split up, how does that feel?"

"It's done in such a loving and funny way that it's palatable. I've had so many messages and letters about people who are single parents, or kids who have grown up like this. Everybody has a story."

Mrs Doubtfire might have a familiar name, face and mischievous personality, but in the musical she also tries a few new exploits...

"You'll see her modelling sportswear. That's not in the film! It's not just a carbon copy of the film. You get to see those favourite moments, but you also get some surprises - and, of course, a completely new, original score, which is great."

Fans of the film will be pleased to know that many iconic scenes remain intact, even though the musical has been updated for audiences 30 years down the line.

"Boobs on fire - how could we not? Smoking boobs - that's a must-see. People love that. There are classic moments, so it feels comforting, but it also feels new. It's been updated, it's got the internet - she's the Wi-Fi Queen! It's got to be relevant to kids now. It's lovely that she's got some understanding of the technological world and cultural references. She is a pretty streetwise granny - which is part of the fun of that character! I mean, the pie in the face - why else do you go to the theatre? I sometimes stand there with a pie on my face and go, 'It's not Shakespeare, is it?' Last night it was a perfect pie - it went on and had a little drippy bit, and it went straight in the cup! I took a bit of licence there and said 'Ooh, one lump or two?' That isn't in the script, but if it happens, the audience loves it!"

Mrs Doubtfire shows at Birmingham Hippodrome from Thursday 13 August to Saturday 19 September

Burlesque The Musical

Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Tues 25 - Sat 29 August; The Alexandra, Birmingham, Tues 6 - Sat 17 October;
Wolverhampton Grand Theatre, Tues 6 - Sat 10 April 2027

Christina Aguilera not only provides powerhouse songs for this acclaimed and relatively new musical but also executive-produces it. The story focuses on the character of small-town dreamer Ali Rose, whose New York-located search for her biological mother sees her stumbling into the cut-throat world of burlesque. Based on the hit 2010 movie of the same name, which co-starred Aguilera and Cher, the show has made a significant splash in the West End and stops off in the Midlands as part of its first UK tour.

High Society

The Alexandra, Birmingham, Tues 18 - Sat 22 August

Cole Porter's magnificent musical tells the story of Tracy Lord, a beautiful society hostess whose pending second marriage is put in jeopardy by the arrival of her first husband and a sleazy journalist on the lookout for juicy gossip.

Based on the play The Philadelphia Story and including such classic songs as True Love, Well Did You Ever and Who Wants To Be A Millionaire?, this brand-new stage version of the hit 1956 film stars Call The Midwife's Helen George and Slow Horses' Freddie Fox. The show is helmed by former Birmingham Rep artistic director Rachel Kavanaugh.

Sweeney Todd: The Demon Barber Of Fleet Street

The Rep. Birmingham, until Sat 15 August

Described as a musical thriller, this hugely enjoyable Stephen Sondheim show was a big hit on Broadway. It follows the diabolical endeavours of demon barber Sweeney Todd and his pie-making accomplice Mrs Lovett, as they slice and bake their way through Victorian London... Musical theatre favourite Ramin Kamilaroi takes the title role.

Matilda The Musical

Birmingham Hippodrome, until Sun 2 August

Matilda is an extraordinary child, but her parents think she's a nuisance. When they're not glued to the television set, her mum practises ballroom dancing and her dad gloats about his latest dodgy business deal. Life at school isn't much better for Matilda either. Then, one day, she discovers that she's got very special powers and decides it's high time the grown-ups were taught a much-needed lesson...

Adapted from one of Roald Dahl's best-loved books, the Royal Shakespeare Company's stage-musical version of Matilda - complete with music & lyrics by comedian Tim Minchin - has been delighting West End audiences for 15 years, during which time it's bagged in excess of 100 international awards.

Dog Man: The Musical

Wolverhampton Grand Theatre,
Fri 28 & Sat 29 August

The author & illustrator behind Dog Man - a crime-biting hero with the head of a dog and the body of a policeman - is none other than Captain Underpants creator Dav Pilkey. However, in this new stage show's storyline, it's not Dav who's come up with the character of Dog Man but best friends George Beard and Harold Hutchins. After years of producing comics - and now that they're 10 years old - the pals decide it's high time they wrote a musical. And who better to star in their foot-tapping extravaganza than their very favourite furniture-chewing upholder of law & order?

Eric In Downtown Abbey

New Vic Theatre, Newcastle-under-Lyme,
Sat 22 August - Sat 5 September

Eric Smith - actor David Graham's delightfully dysfunctional character - has certainly earned his place in the hearts of New Vic audiences since first appearing at the venue way back in 1999. The Staffordshire favourite here makes a welcome return with his comic take on much-loved television series Downton Abbey. As usual with an 'Eric' production, the action is accompanied by a nostalgic 1960s soundtrack.

Our Man In Havana

Malvern Theatres, Tues 25 - Sat 29 August

Hapless vacuum-cleaner salesman James Wormold is living in 1950s pre-revolutionary Cuba and leading a less than ideal life. His wife has left him, and his manipulative and materialistic daughter is expensive to keep. So when MI6 offer him the chance to increase his meagre income by indulging in a little espionage on the side, James takes their bait. But, with no actual information to send to London, he decides to fake his reports and invent a fictitious network of secret agents. Not surprisingly, it's a decision that sees his life become ever more complicated... Clive Francis' lively stage adaptation of Graham Greene's hilarious, subversive and ever-popular 1958 novel is here brought to life by four actors who between them play more than 30 characters.

Sea Change

Birmingham Hippodrome,
Fri 28 - Sun 30 August

British Youth Music Theatre partners with Birmingham Hippodrome to present this thought-provoking exploration of belonging, community, and the risks and rewards of stepping into the unknown. Advertised as 'bursting with folk melodies, nautical ballads and rip-roaring shanties', the show has been written by New Music Theatre Award winners Will Jackson and Elinor Peregrin.

Game Of Thrones: The Mad King

Royal Shakespeare Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, until Sat 5 September

Premiered by the Royal Shakespeare Company (RSC) this summer, Game Of Thrones: The Mad King is a prequel to the original books and HBO's long-running television series.

Described as 'a sweeping new stage epic', the production spans the final years before the events of the original novels, which were written by George RR Martin, who is serving as executive producer on the show.

"When I first wrote Game Of Thrones, I never imagined that it would be anything other than a book," says George. "For me, the RSC was the obvious choice when thinking about putting a Game Of Thrones story on the stage. Shakespeare is the greatest name in English literature, and his plays have been a constant source of inspiration to me and my writing."

Mrs Doubtfire

Birmingham Hippodrome,
Thurs 13 August - Sun 20 September

When a messy divorce leaves devoted dad Daniel Hillard faced with the prospect of no longer being able to see his children on a daily basis, he decides to take drastic action. An out-of-work thespian, Daniel makes use of his acting skills to create an alter-ego - the splendidly named Euphemia Doubtfire, a Scottish 'supernanny' - to look after his beloved kids...

That's the basic premise of both this hit stage musical and, of course, the original much-loved 1993 film starring Robin Williams.

Theatre previews from around the region

The Cherry Orchard

Swan Theatre, Stratford-upon-Avon, until Sat 29 August

Sir Kenneth Branagh is here joined by two Hollywood movie stars making their Royal Shakespeare Company debuts: Helen Hunt and Bill Pullman.

Anton Chekhov's last and possibly greatest play, The Cherry Orchard is set against the backdrop of a Russia tilting towards irrevocable change.

With people starving and the aristocracy in decline, Madame Ranyevskaya returns home from five years in Paris to find that her once-grand estate, including her beloved cherry orchard, must be auctioned to meet the mortgage payments. There is, however, one path forward which could save the property - but will Ranyevskaya be willing to take it? The RSC's co-artistic director, Tamara Harvey, takes the reins for Laura Wade's brand-new version of Chekhov's 1903 masterpiece.

The Complete History Of Britain

Shrewsbury Castle, Sun 2 August

The Pantaloons make a welcome return to the region early this month, taking a humorous race through the centuries to recount the entire story of Britain.

And what's more, they'll be doing it all in under two hours.

The team are advising attendees to brace themselves for an afternoon of 'live music, audience interaction and wild historical inaccuracy'.

The Pirates Of Penzance

Weston Park, Shropshire, Fri 7 August; Hanbury Hall, Droitwich, Sat 22 August

Illyria theatre company present their version of Gilbert & Sullivan's swashbuckling comic opera, featuring songs such as I Am The Very Model Of A Modern Major-General, A Policeman's Lot Is Not A Happy One, and I Am A Pirate King.

The show is performed by a six-strong cast of actors and singers with a fully orchestrated accompaniment.

Twelfth Night

Priory Park, Malvern, Sun 30 August

As with many Shakespearean comedies, Twelfth Night is based on a case of mistaken identity, with Viola disguising herself as a boy and causing all manner of awkward romantic shenanigans. However, the play's continuing popularity can mainly be attributed to its hilarious (well, by Shakespeare's standards anyway) comic subplot, in which the merciless Sir Toby Belch and his foolish companion, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, seek to humiliate the pompous Malvolio - an ambition they achieve with more than a little style...

Presented by Here To There Productions, with performances at 2pm and 7pm.

Othello

Alderford Lake, Whitchurch, North Shropshire, Tues 11 August; Bantock House & Gardens, Wolverhampton, Sat 15 August

Shakespeare's tragic tale of lost handkerchiefs, ruined reputations and mistreated wives has always been one of theatre's most powerful stories.

When Iago is overlooked for promotion by Othello, his Machiavellian mind turns to thoughts of vengeance. Othello's willingness to be led by the nose is all grist to Iago's mill, and fatal consequences ensue...

The production is presented by all-male theatre company Lord Chamberlain's Men.

Jeeves And Wooster In Stiff Upper Lip, Jeeves

Shrewsbury Castle, Sun 9 August

The wonderful world of PG Wodehouse lands in Shrewsbury as the ever-affable Bertie Wooster yet again gets himself into the type of terrible tangle from which only his razor-sharp valet Jeeves can extricate him.

Comical escapades abound in an outdoor show featuring live jazz music performed by an ensemble of actor-musicians.

Prospero's Dream

The Amphitheatre, Telford Town Park, Sat 8 August

Prospero's Dream is an abridged version of Shakespeare's final play, The Tempest, which sees a wild storm force a royal ship onto the rocks of an enchanted isle. The castaways, separated from one another, soon find themselves slipping under the control of a mysterious and mystical being...

Prospero's Dream is being presented as part of the Telford Theatre On Tour programme.

As You Like It

Dudmaston Hall, Bridgnorth, South Shropshire, Thurs 6 August; Winterbourne Gardens, Birmingham, Sat 8 August; Brueton Park, Solihull, Wed 12 August; Moseley Old Hall, Wolverhampton, Sat 15 August

Shakespeare's highly likable comedy revolves around the character of Rosalind, banished by her usurping uncle to the Forest of Arden, where her exiled father is already living. Revelling in the naturalness of the surroundings, Rosalind and her companions - cousin Celia and Touchstone the fool - find a happiness they hadn't known existed... Presented by Illyria theatre company.

Outdoor theatre previews from around the region

The Railway Children

Church Stretton Festival, Tues 4 August; Cotteridge Park, Birmingham, Sun 16 August; The Amphitheatre, Telford Town Park, Sun 23 August

Edith Nesbitt's famous tale - best known from the 1971 film version - tells the gentle story of an Edwardian family whose life is unexpectedly turned upside-down. Days stretch endlessly for Bobbie, Peter and Phyllis in their new home of Three Chimneys, a house near a railway in a Yorkshire village. Mysteriously separated from their father, the children set about the business of carving out a new way of living for themselves, passing their time watching trains on the nearby railway line, waving to the passengers and enjoying the company of Albert Perks, the station porter. They also get to know an old gentleman who is a regular traveller on one of the morning trains, unaware of the remarkable effect that their new acquaintance is set to have on their future happiness...

Presented by acclaimed West Midlands ensemble Paperback Theatre, who are this year celebrating their 10th anniversary.

Treasure Island

The Amphitheatre, Telford Town Park, Sat 8 August

Robert Louis Stevenson's high-seas caper finds young Jim Hawkins heading off on the adventure of a lifetime - one which will see him not only setting sail in search of buried treasure, but also spending time in the company of a one-legged pirate with murder in mind... This 'fun-filled' adaptation is being presented as part of the Telford Theatre On Tour programme.

The Three Musketeers

Weston Park, Shropshire, Fri 14 August; Hanbury Hall, Droitwich, Sat 15 August

There's plenty of swashbuckling fun to be had in Illyria's lighthearted stage version of Alexandre Dumas' classic adventure novel. Set against a sweeping backdrop of 17th-century France, the play is being described by Illyria as 'a whirlwind of excitement' that brings together 'broad comedy and ingenious storytelling'.

Theatre for younger audiences

The Tale Of Peter Rabbit And Benjamin Bunny

Shrewsbury Castle, Wed 5 August; Bructon Park, Solihull, Sat 22 August

The highly regarded Quantum Theatre make a welcome return with an outdoor production celebrating the magic of Beatrix Potter.

This popular touring show finds Peter Rabbit and his naughty cousin Benjamin Bunny throwing caution to the wind by sneaking into Mr McGregor's garden. But it isn't long before the adventurous pair find themselves in some seriously hot water...

Toto The Ninja Cat And The Great Snake Escape

Birmingham Town Hall, Sat 15 & Sun 16 August

Little Angel Theatre return to Birmingham with a stage show based on Dermot O'Leary's bestselling children's book about an almost completely blind cat who has incredible ninja skills. Accompanied by her cheeky brother, Silver, Toto needs to use every ounce of her courage and cunning to save the day when a deadly King Cobra escapes onto the streets of London...

Suitable for children aged five and older.

The Tiger Who Came To Tea

Swan Theatre, Worcester, Fri 28 - Sun 30 August

Everybody's favourite tea-guzzling tiger is back in town, dropping in on Sophie and her mum just as they're settling down for an afternoon cuppa...

Adapted by David Wood from the late Judith Kerr's 1968 book of the same name, this 55-minute show features singalong songs and plenty of magic - not to mention a big, stripy tiger, of course!

Peppa Pig's Big Family Show

Regent Theatre, Stoke-on-Trent, Fri 7 & Sat 8 August

Peppa Pig, Mummy Pig, Daddy Pig and George all need the audience's help to make sure everything's ready for the arrival of baby Evie...

If you've taken your little ones to any of the previous Peppa Pig stage shows - and enjoyed the experience of watching them having a fantastic time - you'll already know that this currently touring production is well worth catching.

In The Night Garden Live

Belgrade Theatre, Coventry, Fri 31 July & Sat 1 August

If your little ones are big fans of CBeebies' still-popular noughties television series In The Night Garden, they're certain to love this live version as well.

And it's not only kids who adore the hour-long stage presentation. Audience surveys and parents' reviews reveal that, for nine out of 10 adults, the production is a five-star experience...

The currently touring show, Igglepiggle's Busy Day, features 'a very special visit from the amazing flying Pinky Ponk'.

Science Museum: The Space Explorers Academy

Malvern Theatres, Mon 31 August

With the hard grind of the autumn term imminent, what better time to treat your kids to a cosmic surprise or several?...

And this new theatrical adventure is full of them!

The Science Museum, in association with the UK Space Agency, has teamed up with Mark Thompson Productions (the creators of Ministry Of Science Live!) to present a show which is promising to take six- to 12-year-olds on an epic journey around the planets.

So if you think your youngsters would enjoy an August bank holiday spent uncovering 'brilliant planet facts', making 'jaw-dropping discoveries', and learning 'the secrets of what it takes to explore space for real', then this is most definitely the show for you.

Jack And The Beanstalk (Sort of)

Ludlow Assembly Rooms, South Shropshire, Sat 8 August

As the title suggests, this is a far-from-traditional version of much-loved fairytale Jack And The Beanstalk. Indeed, it's so quirky and unique, we think it's best described by the creatives behind it: "Part air-guitar workshop, part magical mess, this lo-fi, hi-tech, big-beat bonkers show is stuffed with songs, silliness and surprise grannies. Bring your kids. Bring your nan. Bring snacks. It's theatre, but it's loud, proud, and completely off its bean(stalk)."

Cape Custard

Brasshouse Community Centre, Smethwick, Sat 1 August; Wolverhampton Arts Centre, Sun 16 August; The Local Hub, Walsall, Mon 17 August; Dorothy Parkes Centre, Smethwick, Tues 18 August; Glasshouse Arts Centre, Stourbridge, Thurs 20 August

Black Country Touring hit the road again this month with a production that sees them inviting families into an inflatable theatre for 30 minutes of 'mystical mayhem and madcap adventure'. Their show is set on 'the faraway shores of Cape Custard', where a lighthouse needs one of its lights fixing. Enter, a lens fitter sent all the way from Smethwick's famous Chance Glassworks...

After the performance, audience members can stay on to participate in a selection of crafting activities inspired by the lighthouses built in the Chance Brothers Glassworks.

HIGH HOPES

A lavish new version of Cole Porter's famous musical High Society - complete with a 28-strong cast and a full-size orchestra - visits the region this month. Its stars, Helen George and Freddie Fox, tell What's On what attracted them to the show, and why it remains such a classic...

First performed 40 years ago, based on a movie three decades older and a stage play (The Philadelphia Story) dating back to 1939, High Society is very much a musical for the ages.

The comedy revolves around the wedding of a pretentious Long Island socialite to an equally pretentious businessman. Proceedings descend into chaos (as well as borderline farce) when old and new flames turn up - all watched over by a journalist desperately hoping for tabloid-worthy scandal.

Written by Arthur Kopit, with music & lyrics by Cole Porter, High Society features a slew of jazz standards by the latter - True Love, Let's Misbehave, I Love Paris, Who Wants To Be A Millionaire? to name but a few.

And, according to Helen George, who plays lead character Tracy Lord, while the show remains resolutely of its era, the tunes are timeless - as is the winning blend of Golden Age escapism and screwball comedy.

"It's a bit like [TV series] The White Lotus because everybody's in this world of wealth and fabulousness, and how can we relate to that?" she says. "But actually, we can't take our eyes off them, and there are really relatable themes about love and pain amidst all the fun and fantastic songs."

Although the Birmingham-born actress and Aston Villa fan (as a youngster she harboured dreams of becoming the team's first female manager) is best known for playing Nurse Trixie Franklin in BBC TV's Call The Midwife, Helen has also built up quite a stage career, including key parts in musicals such as The King And I and Cinderella.

She loves the challenge of playing iconic characters but admits it can be daunting to follow in the footsteps of superstars who have already appeared in those roles; the legendary Grace Kelly took the part of Tracy in the 1956 film version of High Society.

"I'm not thinking about it, because it's just too intimidating," Helen admits. "It was the same with The King And I, which had this legacy of incredible actresses before me playing the part of Anna. My concern is finding my own take on the character, and I love that I get to play these very rounded and fulfilling roles - especially in a show that's as gorgeous and joyous as this one."

Her High Society co-star, Freddie Fox, who makes his professional musical theatre debut in the show, is quick to agree, and admits the role of journalist Mike Connor (played by Frank Sinatra in the film) is something of a dream come true.

"I've been building up to this since the age of four, when I saw my first musical at the National Theatre," he says cheerfully.

The show in question was Guys And Dolls, and the young Freddie was instantly smitten.

"I learned all the words to all the songs and sang them to anyone who would listen for a good few years afterwards. It's what started my obsession with musicals. I later became besotted with Cabaret and The Producers, so finally getting to star in a stage musical is the realisation of a boyhood fantasy."

Freddie accepts that being the son of acting royalty - his parents are Edward Fox and Joanna David - probably helped open a few doors for him early in his career, but he's more than proved his worth since then. As well as winning an Ian Charleson Award, he's also earned plaudits for an array of stage and TV appearances, including in House Of The Dragon and cult detective drama Slow Horses.

Those shows featured big-name stars, and he rates High Society just the same, explaining that the quality of the cast and creative team - which includes former Birmingham Repertory Theatre artistic director Rachel Kavanaugh and choreographer Anthony Van Laast - drew him to the production just as much as the chance to finally appear in a musical.

"When I heard who was involved, I was like 'This is the A-team; it's like playing in the Premier League!' It's a night of sheer joy, lots of fun, with the best songs and fabulous dancing and singing. It's entertainment with a capital E."

Helen is similarly enthusiastic about the production: "It's a wonderful, fabulous, sophisticated escape of an evening, with a huge orchestra and a big brass section.

There's just so much joy in this show. The costumes are incredible, the songs are amazing, and I'm over the moon with the cast and crew that I get to work with."

Both actors are also excited to be taking the show (which opened at the Barbican in London in May) on tour around the UK, including a stop-off at Birmingham venue The Alexandra this very month.

"Taking a show out of London is what it's all about for me," says Freddie. "Theatre should be for absolutely everybody. As we face a kind of technological revolution, the effects of which we can't quite predict, what with AI and the like, theatre is more important to us than perhaps it's ever been in our history. Taking a show on tour and giving people a great night out is just one brick in that enormous wall."

Helen, who trained at Birmingham School of Acting and Royal Academy of Music, is on exactly the same page: "Without getting on my soapbox, I think touring productions are so important. I grew up in Birmingham and saw so many wonderful touring shows, and that's what made me want to do what I do now."

That, and the chance to put smiles on people's faces at a time when so much of what's going on around the world is rather less cheery, she adds.

"I come out of the theatre, then I listen to the news and think 'Oh God, I'm so glad that I'm doing High Society, not something that's sad or political in any way.' This is exactly the sort of show that we need right now, and I think theatre really comes into its prime when the world feels uncertain - especially with a musical that's as much fun and as lively and joyful as this one."

PAW Patrol: The Dino Movie CERT U (88 mins)

With the voices of Mckenna Grace, Terry Crews, Fortune Feimster, Jameela Jamil, Paris Hilton, Snoop Dogg Directed by Cal Brunker

PAW Patrol is a franchise that just keeps on giving, generating billions of dollars in revenue from the original and long-running television series, spin-off toy sales, and two - this month becoming three - cinematic outings.

Featuring a young boy named Ryder, who leads a crew of search & rescue dogs called, yep, you guessed it, the PAW Patrol, the television show is now in its 13th season and shows no signs of losing its charm - as the arrival of another big-screen adventure, The Dino Movie, ably illustrates.

Anyway, here's the official synopsis for this latest offering: "After their ship gets caught in a mysterious storm, the PAW Patrol pups crash-land on an uncharted tropical island filled with dinosaurs. They meet Rex, a pup who has been stranded on the island for years and has become an expert in all things dino-related. When the PAW Patrol's arch rival, Mayor Humdinger, begins recklessly mining in hopes of exploiting the island for its natural resources, he inadvertently causes a huge, dormant volcano to erupt. The PAW Patrol pups are thrown into a series of high-stakes, dino-sized rescues, bigger than anything they've done before, as they must stop Humdinger before everything on the island goes extinct." Released Fri 7 August

Sunny Dancer CERT 15 (106 mins)

Starring James Norton, Bella Ramsey, Neil Patrick Harris, Jessica Gunning, Shalom Brune-Franklin, Ruby Stokes Directed by George Jaques

As if facing and beating cancer hadn't proved a sufficiently challenging experience for 17-year-old Ivy, she then finds herself faced with the prospect - courtesy of her loving but somewhat overbearing parents - of spending her summer at a camp for young people who've been affected by the Big C...

That's the lift-off scenario of Sunny Dancer, a coming-of-age comedy-romance described by its publicity as a celebration of love and friendship in the face of adversity.

Thankfully for Ivy, 'Chemo camp' turns out to be far more inspiring than she'd expected, populated, as it is, by like-minded misfits who just want to 'f*ck shit up' and live life to the max - snorting prescription drugs, skinny dipping, downing vodka... and maybe even falling in love.

Released Fri 14 August

The End Of Oak Street

CERT tbc (100 mins)

Starring Anne Hathaway, Ewan McGregor, PJ Byrne, Christian Convery, Maisy Stella, Chris Coy Directed by David Robert Mitchell

After a mysterious cosmic event rips Oak Street from 1980s suburbia and transports it to an unknown destination, the Platt family find themselves faced with a very real and completely unexpected threat: prehistoric dinosaurs...

Anne Hathaway and Ewan McGregor take top billing in this Twilight Zone-style science fiction survival movie produced by Star Trek, Mission: Impossible and Star Wars director JJ Abrams.

"I think people are hungry for new stories, original stories," Abrams told Empire, "and to me, the undeniable appeal of this [film] is the fact that it takes place in suburbia. [The] whole approach here was the juxtaposition of the absolute mundane suburban family life - swing sets and ice-cream trucks, and above-ground pools and school buses - and dinosaurs. If there's any part of you that is excited by what you saw in the trailers, I can promise that the movie will deliver on everything."

The Dog Stars CERT 15 (100 mins)

Starring Margaret Qualley, Jacob Elordi, Josh Brolin, Allison Janney, Guy Pearce, Benedict Wong Directed by Ridley Scott

Still making films at 88 years of age, Sir Ridley Scott's latest is an apocalyptic drama which plays out in the aftermath of a devastating flu pandemic, one which has laid waste to great swathes of the Earth's population... Fresh from starring as Heathcliff alongside Margot Robbie's Cathy in the recent remake of Wuthering Heights, Jacob Elordi plays Hig, a young and widowed pilot who, together with a military survivalist named Bangle, has carved out an efficient but isolated homestead in which to stay safe from roaming scavengers. But when he intercepts a faint and fragmented radio transmission, Hig decides to venture into the unknown in search of the hope and humanity he still believes exists... The film is based on Peter Heller's critically acclaimed novel of the same name, published in 2012.

Released Fri 28 August

Spa Weekend CERT 15 (97 mins)

Starring Anna Faris, Michelle Buteau, Isla Fisher, Leslie Mann, Adam Demos, Quinn Aune Directed by Jon Lucas and Scott Moore

Life is busy for childhood pals Jane, Coco and Sophie. So much so, in fact, that somewhere between careers, relationships, families and everyday responsibilities, the three friends have forgotten how to take care of themselves and each other. Burned out and long overdue a break, they decide to treat themselves to a break at a luxury spa in Palm Springs. But when their unpredictable trainwreck of a friend - Mel - turns up, the planned weekend of peace, relaxation and pampering quickly descends into a chaotic experience full of fun, laughter, and some very bad decisions... This ensemble comedy has been written by Bad Moms' Jon Lucas and Scott Moore, with the acclaimed duo also helming the movie.

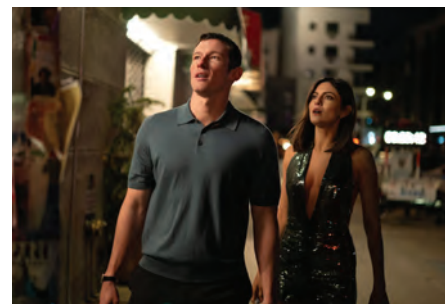

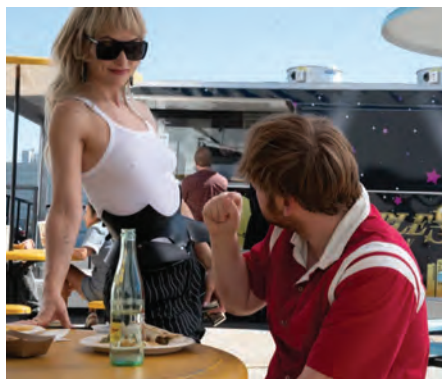

Released Fri 21 August

I Want Your Sex CERT 15 (90 mins)

Starring Olivia Wilde, Daveed Diggs, Cooper Hoffman, Johnny Knoxville, Mason Gooding, Chase Sui Wonders, Charli xcx Directed by Gregg Araki

Wide-eyed newcomer Elliot thinks he's hit the jackpot job-wise when renowned artist, icon and kink-positive provocateur Erika Tracy taps him to become her sexual muse. But it isn't long before the fresh-faced fella finds himself woefully out of his depth, as his employer takes him on a journey into a world of sex, obsession, power, betrayal and murder... Blending the genres of rom-com and erotic thriller - and throwing in a cameo from Charli xcx just for good measure - I Want Your Sex played well with the critics when it showed at the Sundance Festival earlier this year.

Released Fri 28 August

One Night Only CERT 15

Starring Callum Turner, Monica Barbaro, Michelle Hurd, Maya Hawke, Molly Ringwald, Julia Fox, LeVar Burton Directed by Will Gluck

If you enjoy alternate-reality movies with a satirical twist, One Night Only is definitely a film to catch. The story is set in a New York City in which pre-marital sex is only legal for one night of the year, leaving singletons everywhere desperate to find somebody with whom to sleep. Among them are Allie and Owen, two love-starved strangers who share a messy night that turns out to be the best thing that's ever happened to either of them. The film's supporting cast features two well-known names from the 1980s: Hollywood Brat Pack member Molly Ringwald (The Breakfast Club, Pretty In Pink) and LeVar Burton, who played the character of Geordi La Forge in television series Star Trek: The Next Generation.

WHAT'S NEW?

Coventry to showcase exceptional art from the last five years in British Art Show 10...

Julianknxx, Still from Shifting _ Spirit _ Time, BURO Stedelijk, 2025, © StudioKnxx

The 10th iteration of the British Art Show opens in Coventry this October, with partnering venues including Warwick Arts Centre, the Herbert Art Gallery & Museum and the city's universities. Featuring work made within the last five years by renowned British artists, the exhibition is taking the title A Chorus Of Strangers. What's On spoke to Brian Cass, head of Hayward Gallery Touring - the organisation behind the show - to find out more...

The British Art Show heads out on tour once again this autumn, in its 10th iteration. Taking place every five years and touring to select cities around the UK, the show collects together significant works by acclaimed contemporary artists. All of the included art has been made within the last five years - and in some cases, created specifically for the British Art Show itself.

The tour launches across Coventry venues on Friday 2 October and will remain in the city until Sunday 10 January. Brian Cass is Head of Hayward Gallery Touring, the organisation behind British Art Show 10.

"It's almost 50 years since the very first British Art Show, which was in the late 70s,"

Brian told What's On. "It is this significant, leviathan-like project with many different parts... British Art Show 10 will feature 34 artists. It is a curated overview of the last five years of creativity by artists based here in the UK or based outside. Of those 34 artists, about a third of them are making new work, and that's always really exciting."

The 10th iteration of the show is named A Chorus Of Strangers, inspired by a play from the late 1500s titled Sir Thomas Moore.

"Different writers contributed to the play," Brian explains, "and sections of the play have been attributed to Shakespeare. He wrote a scene called The Stranger's Case - it's a time of rioting in the city of London, and Sir

Thomas Moore makes the case for compassion and empathy.

"This word 'stranger' is a word that is bandied about quite a lot. In times of discord and division, the work that artists do is really quite important and incredibly profound, because in the most basic way, it forces us to see from more than one position at once."

British Art Show 10 is divided into three sections, the titles of which - Moments Of Being, Ways Of Living and States Of Nature - also take inspiration from the written words of British authors and thinkers.

"[The first section] was inspired by Virginia Woolf," explains Brian. "She wrote a famous text called Moments Of Being. She talks about these moments where the ‘cotton wool’ of everyday life falls away, and the ordinary world is revealed to be something beautiful. “The second section is moving from ‘the interior’ into the ‘social’, so it’s art that’s really thinking about community, gathering, collective memory... The final section is again moving broader, and is thinking about the environment - the relationship between the human and the ‘more than human’; our connections with the wider physical and natural world.”

Matthew Krishanu, Two Boys on a Horse, 2024, oil and acrylic on canvas, 240 x 180cm (photo Peter Mallet).

The curator for British Art Show 10 is the writer, curator & broadcaster Ekow Eshun. “Ekow is a remarkable creator, but also a very generous collaborator,” says Brian. “He’s looking at work that allows us - through its use of material, through its use of colour, through its mood, through its beauty - to dwell in a place of uncertainty and indeterminacy. That plurality is a key part of the human experience. That is the core of a lot of the works that are presented in the show. It’s something he finds very exciting. “When you bring artists together in a space, you’re trying to create narratives, and you’re trying to create an experience where people will feel very welcome and invited into something. Ekow’s curation, I would say, as well as all the artists in the show, is very keen to invite people in.”

In his role at Hayward Gallery Touring, Brian also oversaw the creation of the previous British Art Show, which was devised in 2020. In the intervening years, he says, both artists and gallery visitors have come to appreciate the physicality of getting close to works of art, and the materials which have been used. “British Art Show 9 was thinking about how we illuminate a very complex time. Then Covid happened, and the murder of George Floyd happened, and questions of social justice were all really heightened. All that complexity and all that discord is still part of our world at the moment. What this show is trying to do - but in no way polemically - is invite people in, to encounter something remarkable but also see the world in different ways.”

The tour travels to five locations around Britain, beginning with that three-month stint in Coventry. Once the tour has concluded - in June 2028 - one of the artworks by 2024 Turner Prize winner Jasleen Kaur will be returned to Coventry.

“One important part of the British Art Show is that we support artists to make new work and to make ambitious work. Through the support of other funders, some of those works are going to be acquired by museums across the British Art Show tour.

“Jasleen Kaur is working in Coventry. [She’s] thinking about the history of the Delia Derbyshire building, the role of music in Coventry, that history - about justice, campaigning for equality, about peace and reconciliation - and how you can create sculptural environments which have ideas of support and sound within them.”

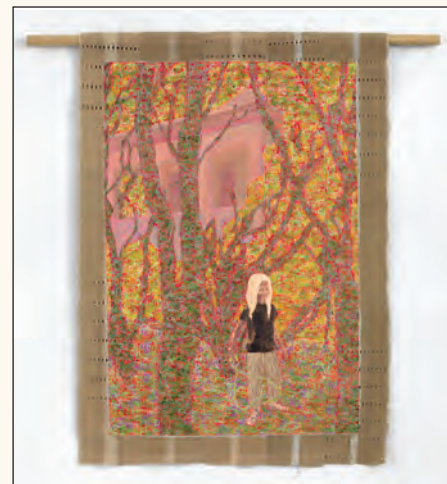

With dozens of artworks in the show, it’s hard to narrow down individual pieces which stand out from the crowd - a testament to the quality of the work on display.

Hannah Quinlan & Rosie Hastings, We Used to Live Here, 2025. Courtesy the Artist and Arcadia Missa, London. Photography: Tom Carter.

“I’m so excited about all of them. Every artist that’s in British Art Show 10 is making really remarkable work. And it’s work that really feels alive and ‘of this moment’, while also illuminating history.

“There’s another piece by Hannah Quinlan and Rosie Hastings. What they’re producing is an enormous four-screen fresco painting that’s exploring the history of public housing, in Newcastle in particular... Their work is looking at official histories of housing, of family and community, as well as what they would call a ‘queering of history’. What are these enclosures or structures or barriers? How do we move beyond them? I think what’s key to both Jasleen and Hannah & Rosie’s work is thinking beyond narrow, exclusionary structures.”

For the British Art Show 10 - with its core theme of connecting strangers - the curated relationships made by Hayward Gallery Touring result in a show which is greater than the sum of its parts.

“We’ve worked with the partners in Coventry in the past. We had a show last year in the Mead Gallery called Material Worlds, which was looking at textiles artists. And we did an exhibition with the Herbert - After The End Of History. It was a photography show looking at working-class photography.

“What’s unique about the British Art Show is we work with multiple partners in each city. That’s always an amazing thing - to see how these collaborative networks, which are the result of generosity and a lot of effort and trust, can make something that would not be possible in any other way... [These venues] do remarkable things on their own, but collectively, we can all do something really amazing.”

British Art Show 10 shows in venues across Coventry - including Warwick Arts Centre, the Herbert Art Gallery & Museum, the University of Warwick and Coventry University - from Friday 2 October to Sunday 10 January

Photograph by Yury Ivanov

Ocean Photographer Of The Year

Lichfield Cathedral, until Mon 31 August

Over 100 award-winning photographs from the Ocean Photographer Of The Year 2025 collection are featured in this Lichfield Cathedral display, including the grand title winner, created by Yury Ivanov from Indonesia...

Featured alongside the exhibition is Tessa

Campbell Fraser's Whales.

The striking installation comprises three sperm-whale sculptures, offering a dramatic reflection on the fragility of marine life and the choices that are made in protecting it.

Clare Hewitt: Everything In The Forest Is The Forest

Midlands Arts Centre, Birmingham, until Mon 31 August

Acclaimed photographer Clare Hewitt's latest exhibition - a celebration of trees and their remarkable ability to nurture and communicate - is a direct response to a government report suggesting that loneliness and isolation are on the rise in rural areas of the country.

Setting up a studio within a circle of 12 oak trees, Clare documented the forest and its seasonal changes, exploring nature through a range of sustainable photographic techniques.

Modern Masterpieces: Paintings From The Barber Institute Of Fine Arts

Compton Verney, Warwickshire, until Sun 6 September

As its subtitle makes clear, the artworks on display in Modern Masterpieces are loaned from the Barber Institute of Fine Arts.

Presented while the venue undergoes major redevelopment, the exhibition is a rare opportunity for Warwickshire's art-loving community to check out and enjoy six treasures usually seen in Birmingham.

The intimate display of exceptional paintings by major modern artists - including van Gogh and Renoir - provide timeless reflections on human experience, domestic intimacy and artistic mastery at the turn of the 20th century.

Andy Warhol: Art Star

Wolverhampton Art Gallery, until Sun 4 October

Wolverhampton Art Gallery's tribute to Andy Warhol is an Artist Rooms exhibition created in partnership with Tate and National Galleries of Scotland.

The display includes both iconic and lesser-known drawings, screenprints, paintings and photographs from the 1950s to the 1980s.

Warhol's famous Campbell's soup tin features in the show, taking its place alongside images of The Beatles, Marilyn Monroe (pictured) and Elizabeth Taylor.

54321 FAB!

Worcester City Art Gallery & Museum, until Sun 6 September

For readers of a certain vintage, 54321 FAB! offers a not-to-be-missed opportunity to take a nostalgic stroll down memory lane.

The subject of the exhibition is the much-loved 1960s television series of Gerry & Sylvia Anderson, numbered among which were Stingray, Captain Scarlet And The Mysterons, Joe 90, Fireball XL5 and - arguably most famously - Thunderbirds. Original puppets - including Lady Penelope and Joe 90 - and a number of models (Fireball XL5, Stingray and the Thunderbirds crafts) are all included in the display, as is original comic and production design art and a huge collection of 1960s memorabilia.

Commenting on the exhibition, Museums Worcestershire Senior Curator Deborah Fox said: "We pride ourselves on providing top family fun for the summer holidays, and this year is a true classic. We might even inspire some new fans!"

Shrewsbury Arts Trail

Shrewsbury Museum & Art Gallery, until Mon 31 August

Shrewsbury Arts Trail is back for a sixth year, with works on show including An Ancient Stronghold In France, a famous 1910 Impressionist oil painting by 'Manchester's Monet', Wynford Dewhurst (1864-1941).

The work has been loaned from the Cartwright Hall Gallery in Bradford.

Also included is a painting by Shropshire-born artist Ian Rayer-Smith, commissioned as a response to Dewhurst's artwork and inspired by the same colour palette.

This year's Arts Trail also features an open exhibition, demonstrations, workshops, arts café talks and a children's treasure trail.

Tutankhamun: The Immersive Exhibition

NEC, Birmingham, until Sun 13 September

In November 1922, in the Valley of the Kings at Thebes, British archaeologist and Egyptologist Howard Carter unearthed the tomb of Tutankhamun, a little-known Pharaoh of the 18th Dynasty.

Now, more than a century later, Carter's incredible find is being celebrated with this award-winning touring show.

Offering Midlandsers the chance to take a 'breathtaking journey' into ancient Egypt, its highlights include a Howard Carternarrated movie featuring 360-degree projections, a seated virtual-reality journey through the mystical Egyptian afterlife, and an interactive digital Metaverse walk-through of the Valley of the Kings. Two 'exceptionally curated' treasure rooms also feature...

Organisers are advising that visitors should set aside 90 minutes to properly experience the exhibition.

Curious Creatures, Stones And Bones

Herbert Art Gallery & Museum, Coventry, until July 2028

Available to enjoy for another two years, Curious Creatures, Stones And Bones comprises specimens from the Herbert's natural sciences collection and features everything 'from tiny insects to mighty mammals, and sea creatures to rocks from outer space'.

Visitors are also invited to make use of the separate meeting and wellbeing spaces 'to relax and connect'.

PERFECT GETAWAY

Find your happy place at Compton Verney

Pay a visit to Warwickshire's Compton Verney - a day-out destination boasting 120 acres of well-maintained parkland, a reimagined mansion, a host of permanent galleries, changing temporary exhibitions, and a programme of events and activities scheduled throughout the year to suit all ages and tastes. Whether you pop in for an afternoon, stay the whole day or become a regular visitor, Compton Verney promises to be an outing with a difference. And there's always something new to discover...

In the heart of the Warwickshire countryside, visual arts destination Compton Verney is the perfect place to visit for anybody who wants to absorb fantastic artwork, find their creative spark, get close to nature, or simply picnic and play.

Compton Verney designs and curates a programme of changing temporary exhibitions alongside the excellent permanent collections - and this summer, a full schedule of workshops, projects and events fills the grounds. There's also a well-equipped cafe, which serves food & drink in the house and on its terrace.

The estate offers 120 acres of expansive and immaculately maintained parkland to explore, while the central mansion, long ago a residential house, has been fully converted into modern galleries and rooms, where imaginations can run wild. Whether you're passing through the county, making a day trip or live nearby, a visit to Compton Verney is sure to provide a unique experience and plenty of lasting memories, with the venue's friendly staff ready and able to help visitors find their most memorable day out.

On arrival, visitors enter through the venue's Welcome Centre and then proceed on a five-to 10-minute walk through the grounds. Alternatively, you can take a free shuttle bus ride, which is available to everyone. By the time the house comes into view, you will be fully immersed in the venue's peaceful and picturesque landscape. With the Old Town Meadow on the right - at this time of year, alive with crickets and butterflies - and at first sight of the lake and sweeping lawns, it feels as though 'real life' is miles away.

Simply taking in the Capability Brown-designed grounds is a treat for the senses, but the lawns, fields and meadows of Compton Verney are also peppered with outdoor artworks. These can either be admired from afar or taken in on the sculpture trail, which provides visitors with the opportunity to explore the whole site.

The mansion itself is a stately home with a difference. The house hasn't been residential for years, and there are no preserved bedrooms or living spaces. That said, hints of history can be discovered around the estate - hidden in the landscape, the thatched ice house or renovated chapel. Previously derelict, the house has been purpose-rebuilt to offer an intuitive and accessible journey around the galleries, with child-friendly discovery rooms along the way.

Access to all galleries is included in the cost of admission, as are many of the school holiday activities scheduled throughout August and presented under the umbrella title of Summer Of Print, Pattern And Play.

The summer holiday is definitely a great time to get creative at Compton Verney. In the Meadow Zone, near the Welcome Centre and woodland adventure playground, an interactive and collaborative artwork will be coming to life; an outdoor installation guided by artist Matt Shaw, The Weave will develop and grow across the summer, as visitors add new natural materials to the artwork.

Nearby - on Wednesdays - Big Blue Blocks will put visitors' building skills to the test, and local RAF members will be on hand to teach STEM skills, leading sessions to fire rocket cars into the sky.

And there's lots more on the docket this summer - from giant bubble sessions to the forest school's Get Mucky, Get Making.

A sensory, colour-changing inflatable maze called Luminarium will pop up on the lawn from Wednesday 26 until Monday 31 August, introducing a new world of light and colour.

Young people aged 18 and under can visit Compton Verney for free, and people in receipt of Universal or Pension Credit can buy tickets discounted to £2.

Some events do require visitors to purchase a ticket in addition to the admission fee.

Notably, on the days when Luminarium is open, all visitors who wish to enter the maze - including children and members - must purchase a Luminarium ticket, which also includes admission to the house and grounds.

The house shares its name with the neighbouring village, and the estate belonged to the Verney family for almost 500 years, becoming the visitor destination it is today after it was purchased by the Peter Moores Foundation in 1998. After years of redevelopment - the mansion was derelict at the time it was bought - Compton Verney was transformed with the intention of connecting visitors with inspiring works of art.

Sir Peter Moores himself was a businessman and art collector, and his personal, eclectic collection is on display in the permanent galleries. The vast majority of art at Compton Verney is there to be seen, not hidden in storage - unless it happens to be on loan to other art galleries, or in the process of being restored. The collection features a wide variety of subject matter, including Baroque Neapolitan art in Sensing Naples, ancient Chinese bronzes and folk art.

As previously mentioned, alongside the exceptional permanent collections, the mansion's galleries also feature changing temporary exhibitions.

This summer, two British women artists are celebrated in temporary exhibitions. The first is Elizabeth Allen, known as 'Queen', who created textile artworks from her home in a woodland cabin. Her creations are displayed, alongside those of other visionary artists, in Troublemakers And Prophets, which runs until Monday 31 August... Meanwhile, open until early January, The Pattern Of Life showcases the abstract designs of Enid Marx. Designer of the London Underground seat fabric, Enid - alongside Margaret Lambert - donated works to Compton Verney's permanent collection. These can be found in the Marx-Lambert gallery.

The spacious galleries also provide inventive ways that visitors can approach and interact with the works on display. These include scents and sounds being paired with specific paintings in Sensing Naples, and patchwork samples - handmade by volunteers - which accompany artworks in Troublemakers And Prophets, offering a hint of their tactile nature.

All in all, a visit to Compton Verney provides an opportunity to travel at your own pace - to spend an afternoon connecting with a favourite artwork, to soak up the atmosphere on a walk around the grounds, or rediscover a sense of imaginative play, whatever your age.

With so much room to explore, there's always space to find your own space - and there will always be a warm welcome.

Telford Balloon Fiesta

Telford Town Park, Shropshire, Fri 28 - Sun 30 August

One of Shropshire's most popular family events, the Telford Balloon Fiesta returns late this month, taking over Telford Town Park across the August Bank Holiday weekend.

The three-day celebration will feature spectacular hot-air balloons, live entertainment and activities for all ages. Festivities begin with the popular Night Glow on the Friday evening, when illuminated balloons light up the sky in time to music during a special ticketed event.

The free-to-attend weekend programme includes parachute displays by the Wings Parachute Team, stunt performances, balloon-tethering demonstrations, live music, food & drink stalls, and a dedicated Kids' Zone.

A Community Carnival Day on the Sunday will showcase local talent via parades, dance performances and workshops. Weather permitting, the hot-air balloon launches will take place at 6am and 6pm.

Medieval Mayhem

The Commandery, Worcester, Mon 31 August

Step back into the Middle Ages this Bank Holiday Monday as The Commandery hosts a day of medieval fun.

Families can explore the historic site while taking part in hands-on activities designed to inspire budding knights and fascinate knowledge-hungry history enthusiasts. Young visitors can test their skills in Knight School, decorate their own shield, and follow the Knight's Quest trail through one of Worcester's most atmospheric buildings.

Elmer Hide & Seek Adventure Trail

Weston Park, Shropshire, until Sun 6 September

Based on the much-loved patchwork elephant created by author & illustrator David McKee, the Elmer Hide & Seek Adventure Trail invites children to explore Weston's beautiful parkland while searching for hidden Elmer characters and solving clues along the way. Designed for younger visitors and families, the interactive experience encourages outdoor exploration, imagination and teamwork, as children follow the trail through the estate's gardens and grounds. Alongside the trail, families can make the most of Weston's 1,000 acres of parkland and woodland. There's an adventure playground to enjoy too, ideal for youngsters with plenty of summer-holiday energy to burn.

Majestic Monarchs Of The Guildhall

St Mary's Guildhall, Coventry, until Sun 30 August

Families can enjoy an experience packed with royal history and hands-on activities at St Mary's Guildhall this month.

Running until the August Bank Holiday weekend, Majestic Monarchs Of The Guildhall invites visitors to discover the stories of kings and queens connected to the historic property. Admission includes guided tours, family trails and gaming kiosks.

Younger visitors can take part in the Royal Progress family trail or tackle the Crown Jewels Quest, while royal-themed crafts and historical costumes offer plenty of opportunity to enjoy some creative fun. Visitors will also encounter Tudor characters preparing a feast in the Medieval Kitchen, bringing centuries of history vividly to life.

Lunt Roman Festival

Lunt Roman Fort, Baginton, Warwickshire, Sat 8 & Sun 9 August

Thousands of years of history will be brought to life when the Lunt Roman Festival returns this month.

The 2026 theme is Year Of The Dragon, with visitors to the event coming face-to-face with the legendary Bagradas Dragon.

Roman battle reenactments, gladiator displays and living-history demonstrations also feature.

Families can explore a bustling Roman marketplace, test their skills at archery, and take part in the popular Family Battle experience.

The festival also features interactive play spaces for younger visitors, sensory-friendly activities and a range of food vendors.

A Whale of a Summer Lichfield Cathedral, until Mon 31 August

Art, photography, family activities, and thought-provoking discussions inspired by the natural world all feature in Lichfield Cathedral's programme of school summer holiday entertainment.

Attractions include Scottish sculptor Tessa Campbell Fraser's Whales, a striking installation - suspended within the cathedral nave - comprising three life-sized models of sperm whales. Made using recycled ghost netting and other materials, the artwork highlights the impact of human activity on marine environments, at the same time celebrating the power of creativity to inspire change.

Cathedral visitors can also explore the Ocean Photographer Of The Year 2025 exhibition, showcasing more than 100 award-winning images of marine life and underwater ecosystems.

Families can enjoy sea-themed crafts, activity trails and special-event days, while a series of talks and wellbeing sessions will encourage reflection on conservation and community.

The cathedral's popular attraction The Beach is also open throughout the month, so bucket & spade at the ready...

Civil War Weekend

Sudeley Castle, Winchcombe, Cheltenham, Sat 15 & Sun 16 August

History enthusiasts can step back in time to the turbulent days of the English Civil War when this popular Sudeley Castle event returns mid-month.

Set against the backdrop of the historic Gloucestershire castle, the event will bring the 17th century to life through immersive reenactments, military drills and living-history displays. Members of Lord Hopton's Regiment of Foote, part of the English Civil War Society, will recreate the story of Prince Rupert, nephew of King Charles I, who used Sudeley Castle as a Royalist headquarters during the conflict.

Visitors can watch dramatic skirmishes, witness pike drills accompanied by drummers, and explore a living-history camp, where reenactors provide fascinating insights into everyday life during the Civil War.

Vintage Transport Extravaganza

Severn Valley Railway, nr Kidderminster, Sat 8 & Sun 9 August

Bringing together an impressive celebration of transport history across six stations, Severn Valley Railway's popular Vintage Transport Extravaganza returns this month. Visitors can travel behind heritage steam and diesel trains while exploring displays of classic cars, motorcycles, buses, tractors, traction engines and other vintage vehicles from across the decades.

A highlight of the weekend takes place at Kidderminster, where enthusiasts can enjoy seeing a gathering of steam-powered traction engines in action.

Meanwhile, along the route, stations will be hosting their own unique displays, while the Engine House at Highley offers the chance to get closer to historic locomotives and railway heritage.
